LOWER GUNPOWDER

Mrs. Edith Sebree

Spring has arrived accompanied by 60 foot of water, highest since 1933, which was at at a stage of 63 feet then. At this writing it has started down and we think everyone in the bottom will be glad to see its disappearance.

We extend our sympathy to Mr. and Mrs. Ezra Aylor and family, who has just recently lost their oldest son, Howard and to his wife and children also. Howard was well liked by everyone who knew him.

We extend our sympathy to the Perry family in the loss of their youngest son, Donald. He will be missed by all who knew him and especially by Big Bone Church, of which he was a member.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Walston and children spent Saturday night with Bruce Ryle and family.

Mr. and Mrs. James Robert Huey and Mrs. Dick Schwenke and three children, Eugene, Norman and Alma took supper and spent the evening with Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Sebree and daughter Saturday night.

AGED WALTON MAN EXPIRES

GEORGE W. RANSLER VETERAN IN WHOLESALE TOBACCO, BUILDING AND LOAN, BANKING BUSINESS

..George W. Ransler, retired wholesale tobacconist and former President of the Walton, Ky., Building and Loan Association for 37 years, died Wednesday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Edna R. Metcalfe, Greenville, Ohio. He was 82 years old.

He was the uncle of Chas. Ransler, Walton, assistant regional cordinator of the Greendale project, Mount Healthy.

Born in Greendale, Mr. Ransler and his twin brother, Wm. Ransler, moved with their parents to Walton when he was 8 years old. When 25 years old, he and his two brothers, William and John, formed a partnership with the late A. J. Whipps, Walton, in the tobacco business.

Mr. Ransler was the last surviving member of the group of organizers of the old Walton Deposit Bank, now the Walton Equitable He also was a founder of the Walton Christian church, being an elder at the time of his death.

Relatives said that he had been ill for one year, but only seriously so for the last month.

His widow, Mrs. Barbara Ransler; the daughter, Mrs. Metcalfe; two sisters, Mrs. Barbarba Gibbs, Detroit, and Mrs. Katnerine Bieciele, St. Joseph, Mo.; two grandchildren, Brice Metcalfe, Jr., Oxford, Ohio, and Mrs. Carl Alorecht, Greenville, and three grand-cnudren also survive him.

Services will be held Friday morning at the Chambers and Grubbs funeral home, Walton.

WOOL GROWERS OPTIMISTIC

AS TO PROSPECTS FOR HIGH PRICES; CONSIDER LOSSES FROM DOGS SERIOUS

Boone County Wool growers held their Annual Organization meeting at Burlington Court House, Monday, April 6th. A large delegation of growers were present. Growers were optimistic as to the prospects for prices this year.

The following officers were elected to preside for 1936: Hubert E. White, President, Lillard Scott, Secretary-Treasurer. The following solicitors were appointed:

Chas. Stevens, Petersburg; Clint Riddell, Bullittsville; Lloyd McGlasson, Constance; C. F. Blankenbeker, Florence; Ezra Blankenbeker, Union; John W. Conley, Beaver; O. K. Powers, Verona; B. W. Franks, Walton; O. Y. Kelly, Carlton; H. E. White, Burlington; Lillard Scott, Grant.

The growers considered the present dog situation serious in that losses have been heavier than usual and fewer dogs have been licensed. The growers voted unanimously the following resolutions:

"Whereas there has been only only 937 dogs licensed in Boone County, whereas there are 4235 listed for license tax in Boone County, and whereas there has been sheep killed recently by dogs valued at $1857.50, we offer the following resolutions:

1. That the Sheriff of Boone County enforce 100% the State Dog Law and the collection of dog tax and that the Sheriff be strongly supported in this work.

2. That alist of all unlicensed dogs be prepared and presented to the Boone County Grand Jury of the April Term of Circuit Court.

3. That the April Term of said Grand Jury be instructed to bring indictments against all owners of dogs who have not purchased tags by that date."

NEW MELON VARIETIES

New wilt resistant watermelons will be grown in Belleview and Petersburg community programs this year according to H. R. Forkner. The varieties are Improved Stone Mountain No. 5 and Improved Kleckley Sweet No. 6. Tests of Iowa Experiment Station show these varieties resistant to wilt and of better quality than the wilt resistant varieties previously grown by local growers.

The community leaders in charge of the demonstrations with the new resistant varieties are L. W. Rogers, Belleview, John Klopp, and J. H. Huey, Petersburg

APRIL MARINE ENLISTMENTS

Macon, Ga., April 10—The U. S. Marine Corps District Recruiting Office, located in the Municipal Auditorium here, will furnish interested persons desiring to be enlisted in April with full information and application forms.

All enlistments are for a period of four years. Applicants must be American citizens not less than 18 or over 25 years of age, and not less than 5 feet 6 inches or over 6 feet 2 inches in height, and must be single and without dependents. If under 21 years of age parents' consent must be obtained.

FRANKS-TOMPSON

Mrs. Steve Burns spent last Saturday with her sister, Mrs. Carl Linville, of Price Hill and attended the wedding supper given in honor of their sister, Miss Leartia Franks, who became the bride of Mr. Clifford Tompson, Norwood.

Their many friends hope them life-long happiness and success.

INCOME TAX YIELD HIGHER

FOR FIRST NINE MONTHS OF FISCAL YEAR IN KENTUCKY

The Federal income tax collections for Kentucky for the first nine months of this fiscal year increased nearly $2,000,000.00 over the previous similar period. The Treasury announced recently that the collections for Kentucky for the first nine months of this fiscal year were $8,087,558, compared with $6,135,383 for 1935, $3,633,492 for 1934, and $2,858,364 for the low year of 1933.

EASTER SALE

One of the largest Easter sales in this locality is now going on at the Morris Department Stores. under the management of Morris Kaufman. All three stores Erlanger, Warsaw and Carrollton are active and progressive and furnish to the citizens of each community a complete and up-to-date department store.

The Erlanger store is most convenient for the citizens of Boone County and only the ones that have visited this store recently can appreciate the real value of such a modern service to our people.

These stores carry a complete line of all merchandise that is carried by the larger stores in the city and you will be surprised at the bargains that are being offered this week for the Easter shoppers.

Do yourself justice and inspect these stores at your very next opportunity.

PHYCHOLOGY TEACHER OF EASTERN STATE COLLEGE PERFECTS GRADING MACHINE

Richmond, Ky., March 30.—Dr. Noel B. Cuff, professor of psychology at Eastern Ky., State Teachers College, has received from the United States Patent Office that his testometer, a device for grading student examination papers by weighing results, has been granted a patent.

Dr. Cuff perfected the testometer after several years experimental work and it is now used by several instructors at Eastern for grading student examinations.

The invention uses a perforated test card over which a thin paper sheet, which has previously been punched by the student in taking the test, is placed in such a manner that weights suspended above the perforations fall through the perforations where correct answerers are given onto a scale below, where the result of the test is determined by reading from the scale.

The apparatus is novel in construction and eliminates the drudgery and errors in counting answers as is now done in educational institutions. While it is extremely simple in construction, it is reliable and efficient, enabling the instructor to obtain correct student grades at a glance and the device is said to be inexpensive.

Dr. Cuff has had several offers from firms interested in manufacturing the testometer but has not yet decided what plan he will adopt for the distribution of the device.

There will be an Operetta given by the Burlington school Friday night, April 10th at 7:30 P. M. The tittle "Coming of Spring" and also the noted Rhythm Band. This promises to be a very enjoyable evening of entertainment, so come and bring your friends.

YOUTH, 16, EVADES LAW

WHILE BEING TRANSFERRED FROM BOONE CO. TO CINCINNATI OFFICIALS—CHASE, GIVEN BUT IN VAIN

A youth, giving his name as Wallace Stephens, Jr., was arrested here by Boone County officials, Tuesday afternoon after notice from Ohio County officials that the boy was wanted for the theft of an automobile in Ohio.

Shortly afternoon Tuesday Sheriff W. B. Cotton and Deputy Sheriff Walton hauled a beer truck bound for Covington on which Stephens was riding. Although he was charged with stealing an automobile, he did not have any car and was hitch-hiking his rides. He was held by officials here and the Cincinnati officials were notified of his arrest as he had stolen the car car in Ohio. After he had been transferred to the Cincinnati officials, and as they were walking to their car, he asked for his pocketbook which had been taken from him when arrested and immediately upon receiving same made a break for his freedom. He ran for the nearest alley and made a clean get-away, although he was ordered to stop and three shots were fired by the officer. The chase was also taken up by the local officials, but the boy disappeared into the darkness.

The boy gave his age as 16, and the son of Wallace Stephens, Grant, Ky. Several reports of his whereabouts have been given but up to this time no further word of arrest has been received.

MRS. ROOSEVELT

Europe, Asia and African boil with war. In America the situation is not quite as bad, but there is plenty of war talk. While statesmen sputter, roar and threaten, one soft feminine voice has always spoken out bravely for peace. The wife of the President has convictions and opinions of her own on this subject and she is not afraid to express them.

LUSTENBERGER NAMED

Chosen District Secretary of Order Of Eagles

David Lustenberger, past worthy president of the Cheviot Aerie of Eagles, was notified this week that he has been appointed secretary of the first district of Ohio. The appointment was confirmed by the national headquarters of the Eagles on April 1. Appointment of Mr. Lustenberger was in recognition of the rapid growth of the latter. It was pointed out that the secretary is usually chosen from among the older aeries.

Mr. Lustenberger will go to State headquarters at Springfield for instruction in his new duties. The position will require only a part of his time. He will be required to attend the meetings and initiations held monthly in the district Hamilton County constitutes the first district. Aeries included are those of Cincinnati, Norwood, Madisonville, Mt. Healtny, Reading, St. Bernard, Elmwood, Price Hill, and Cheviot.

David Lustenberger is with the Cheviot Police Department and is the son of David Lustenoerger of R. R. 2, Burlington, Grant, Ky., and a brother of John Lustenberger of Petersburg.

TWO MEN FACE CHARGES

FOR THE THEFT OF AN AUTOMOBILE OWNED BY ROBERT REYNOLDS—BOTH REGISTER AS GRANT COUNTY MEN

Two men giving their names as Ezra Beech and John Webster, both of Grant County, were arrested Monday by C. B. Martin Sheriff of Grant County and brought to Burlington by Sheriff Cotton and Deputy Sheriff Walton late yesterday after being notified by the Grant County authorities of their arrest.

The car, a Ford roadster, belonging to Robert Reynolds, of Walton, Ky., was stolen Saturday night about 12:00 o'clock while parked in front of a dance hall at Verona, Ky. The officials were notified immediately but no trace of the car was found until Monday when Grant County officials notified Sheriff Cotton that two men were being held at Williamstown for the theft of the car.

John Webster, charged with accessory to the theft, was given $500 bond and released to await trial. Ezra Beech, charged with robbery was placed under $1,000 bonds, which he was unable to raise and thus placed in the custody of the jailer to await trial.

CONGRESSMAN IN HOSPITAL

Washington, April 3—Although the condition of Congressman Glover Cary, of Owensboro, Ky., was described today as not serious, he probably will have to remain in a local hospital for several weeks for a complete rest.

Congressman Cary was admitted to the hospital yesterday, suffering from what his office described as a cold and possibly influenza. His wife was to arrive today from Owensboro.

Dr. T. B. Castleman returned to his home in Florence Sunday nite after a very delightful visit in Florida. Dr. Castleman reports that he made a short visit with Judge J. M. Lassing, of St. Petersburg, who has been quite ill for the past few months, and says that Mr. Lassing is much improved. Dr. Castleman will resume his dental practice.

Mr. Edwin Aylor, son of Lester Aylor who resides on the Hebron-Limaburg road was the victim of an automobile accident Saturday night. Although the car was damaged considerably, no one was reported injured. The accident happened on the Hebron-Limaburg road just a few hundred yards from the state Highway through Hebron.

DAVID COPPERFIELD

The editors of the Recorder are the proud owners of a complete set of Charles W. Eliot's HARVARD CLASSICS There are 52 volumes in all, constituting one of the most complete sets of literary works available. Anyone desiring to use these books are cordially invited to come to our office and do so.

Go-To-Sunday-School Campaign

The Go-To-Sunday-School Day Campaign for 1936 will include five Sundays, beginning April 5th as Every Member Day; April 12th as Church Day; April 19th as Family Day; April 26th as Neighbor Day; May 3rd as Kentucky Day, when all people of Kentucky would find a welcome if they attended some Sunday School.

This movement is not to help any one Sunday School, but is intended to help every Sunday School in the State. It creates a Sunday School atmosphere. It reminds people that one of the finest things in life is to know and worship God and to learn what God has done for man and what God expects of man in his dealings with his fellow-men.

Kentucky was the first State to have a state-wide Go-To-Sunday-School Day. This was May 3, 1914. The attendance at the Sunday Schools of Kentucky that day was about double the number who regularly attended. Many who came that day became regular members of the Sunday School.

Governor James B. McCreary, who was governor of Kentucky in 1914, was the first governor to issue a proclamation inviting all the citizens of the state to attend Sunday School. His example was followed by the governors of many of the states in the years following 1914.

President Woodrow Wilson sent a message commending the service being rendered by the Sunday School teachers of Kentucky, saying: "The Sunday School lesson of today becomes the code of morals of tomorrow. The study of the Bible makes better American citizens."

FORMER JUDGE APPOINTED

COUNTY ATTORNEY OF BOONE COUNTY, SIDNEY GAINES FORMER CIRCUIT JUDGE TO SERVE UNTIL NOVEMBER ELECTION. SEVERAL CANDIDATES TO MAKE RACE FOR OFFICE.

Judge Sidney Gaines, Walton, who served as circuit judge for a number of years, was appointed County Attorney of Boone County by County Judge N. E. Riddell Monday morning to serve in that capacity until the November election at which time a number of candidates will make the race for the remainder of the unexpired term which ends January 1, 1938.

Judge Gaines is too well known for the Recorder to attempt to give his qualifications as he was born and spent his entire life in the county, during which time he has made innumerable friends and has been a real asset to his community and county.

Judge Riddell had several applications for the appointment but he appointed Judge Gaines leaving the field open to all aspirants in November, as it is reported that Judge Gaines will not be a candidate at that time, thus leaving to the people of the county to select the successor to B. H. Riley, who died March 4, 1936.

WOMEN'S DEMOCRATIC CLUB TO MEET

The Young Women's Democratic Club will meet at the court house, Burlington, April 13th, at 7 o'clock p. m., at which time Mrs. Hogan, of Frankfort, will be the chief speaker. It is the club's desire to have all members present and that the members pay their yearly dues of 10 cents.

CONSERVATION PROGRAM BEGUN

IN BOONE COUNTY. TEMPORARY COMMITTEE APPOINTED TO COMPLETE PLANS.

The new Soil Conservation Program replacing the old AAA started officially in Boone county Wednesday, April 8th according to H. R. Forkner, county agent. The program differs from the old AAA in that it is primarily a program to conserve and improve soil fertility and halt wasteful exploitation of soil resources.

A temporary county committee met Wednesday to complete plans for community meetings, publicity and other means of best presenting the new program to the farmers of the county. Notice of the official appointment of the temporary county committee was received the past week. The committee is composed of B. W. Franks H. E. White and J. H. Huey. Three community committees or one for each 500 farmers of the county will be appointed in the near future.

The educational program will be vigorously pushed so that every farmer of the county will have an opportunity to learn the purpose and plans and what the new program has to offer for his individual farm. Whether a former AAA contract signer or not every farmer is eligible to cooperate and is urged to use every effort to become informed at the earlist possible date.

NEW FARMERS PROFIT SHARING DISTRIBUTING AGENCY FORMED

George S. Myers, Secretary of the State of Ohio, has just issued a Charter for the Farmers Profiting Sharing Corporation, Cincinnati, Ohio to handle poultry, hides, calves wool, walnuts, and walnut kernels for the farmers on a profit sharing basis.

Mr. Geo. Gesselbrecht, who has been with the Blome-Dreifus Co., of Cincinnati, Onio for the last thirty years, will be Managing Director of the newly formed Profit Sharing Corporation.

Headquarters will be at 1008 Race Street, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Many farmers have already agreed to ship all their products of this nature to the corporation which promises to be a real benefit to all farmers in disposing of products of the nature handled by the new concern at the least possible cost to them, and produce for him the greatest possible returns for his products.

LOOKING AT THE OTHER SIDE

Mr. George Creel, who first launched the Federal government upon propaganda in a big way during the World War and who now writes from Washington, laments that government officials handling big jobs get so much less than officers of private industry. He draws some interesting comparisons.

For instance, he pointed out that one government official charged with spending billions of dollars receives only $10,000 a year salary, while the head of a certain great industrial plant receives $200,000.

But Mr. Creel failed to state whether the $10,000 a year man made any sacrifice in coming to the government, or whether $10,000 was not a rather attractive salary to him. Mr. Creel also failed to point out that if the head of the industrial plant operated his company with the reckless extravagance of the government official cited, then the company would soon be in bankruptcy, and certainly the president would be tossed out on his ear in short order. The Industrial magnate could not charge it to the taxpayer.

And lastly, Mr. Creel failed to state that the industrial chieftain worked from the bottom of the ladder to his present post, and that if the young government official has "enough on the ball" there is no limit on his opportunities under the American system.

The industrial leader did not rise to his highly paid post by political preferment.

Low salaries in government service are not new. In fact, there are more jobs in Washington now paying above $7,500 a year than ever before. Honor, power—coupled with the inherent love of most people of seeing their name and picture in the paper—have always attracted men of high caliber to government service in the past without so much thought of material reward.

THOSE WHO SERVE

We'd like to pay tribute to the rural mail carriers, and the men who keep the highways open to traffic.

Like most real ones, they don't think of themselves as heroes. Being out of doors when it is below zero and a howling gale is blowing is too much punishment for most of us. We install ourselves in warm rooms and exclaim at the howling of the wind and feel right sorry for ourselves because of the growing cavity in the coal bin and the fact that Providence doesn't arrange to keep our walks shoveled.

Meanwhile our mail is delivered in the city by a corps of faithful carriers with just as freezing fingers and noses and ears as our own. In the country, rural carriers struggle through roads that would make most of us give up and quit. It's all in the day's work for them.

This past winter has been a hard one. Despite the deep snows, high winds and bitter cold, men have battled against the elements to see that we are served with our mail.

It would be difficult to list all the unsung heroes of winter—the railroad men who keep the trains running, often with great difficulty; the men who maintain service in the electric, gas, telephone and water utilities; the city firemen, the police who are forced to be on the streets. All of them have jobs we are perfectly willing somebody else would have. But what would we do without them?—Kentuckian-Citizen.

STRETCHES CREDULITY

Wonders never cease in Nature's realm and now comes Jess Fauconer, of the Berry neighborhood, with a limb from a redbud tree tnat has almost a perfect formation of a Poland China hog's foot, even to the white spon above the foot, which we believe Jess formed himself just to help nature out.

He claims he had been putting wood on the fire and discovered the freak formation, but anyone who knows Jess will stick their tongue in their cheek at that story. Jess's wife may have been putting wood on the fire and Jess may have noticed the stick, but personally we don't take much stock in his story, that he cut the wood and put it on the fire too.

FLOOD BRINGS PIANO

The river during the recent flood has been noticeably free from the usual heavy run of drift, but still some object has occasionally floated downstream attracting a great deal of attention. A few days ago a part of the hull of a burning boat went floating by near the Indiana shore, and a short time later what was thought to be another section of the same craft passed near the Kentucky shore sill burning fiercely and sending out great clouds of smoke. Reports have also reached here that a piano was pulled from the swollen river at Vevay at the same time some one caught a barrel of varnish in the tide. It is said the piano was slightly out of tune after its prolonged swim. Although a shortage is noted in the amount of floating logs and brush, thousands of shocks of fodder have passed out of the lowlands and on toward the mighty Mississippi.

TAILORED LINES FOR THE EASTER PARADE

For the Easter parade, tailored or feminine lines characterize clothing, with broad shoulders, dresses fitted at waist and over the hips, and the silhouette slim, says Iris S. Davenport, clothing specialist for the Kentucky College of Agriculture. Sleeves furnish a point of interest, whether perky with pleats or gathers, or full and free.

Necklines are high this season with waistlines normal and marked by wide belts or sashes often of a contrasting color to the dress. For general wear, skirts are 11 to 14 inches from the floor, depending upon the individual. Skirts appear slim, though there may be flares or pleats in front or back, or in both places.

The detils of dress are of unusual importance, Miss Davenport states. Trimmings and gay belts are used, and stitching and fagoting is seen. Leather is liberally used, as are buttons, especially unusual ones. There are buttons of nutts, tiny braid, flower-shaped and wooden buttons.

This is also a season of accessories, which do not match the dress or suit as they formerly did. They harmonize, but they are often in some contrasting color or two. Hats, shoes, bags and gloves are fundamental, but they are not the only ones. For a suit, gay colored accessories add to the tailored foundation. Flowers for the lapel and hat are popular. Stiff ones of patent leather in red and pique in white gice a spring-like touch. Large carnations and big natural-looking bunches of flowers are favorites.

Only the ultra-conservative will match all accessories. It is smart to have them match in pairs and the third color in the costume, as a gray suit, blue hat and shoes, red purse and cherries on lapel.

Now is the time for all good men to come to the aid of their wives, who are busily engaged cleaning lawns.

What Irvin S. Cobb thinks about:

Racial Hatred.

BEVERLY HILLS, CALIF. —It may be old to you, but it's new out here:

Small Prussian town turns out for traveling circus. Ferocious lion escapes; villagers flee madly. Sinewy stranger grapples, single-handed, with ravening brute; twists its jaws, hammers its nose, boots it back into cage.

Entire community starts jubilation —flags flying, bands playing, burgomaster puts on his high hat, special train arranged for rushing the hero to Berlin to be decorated by Herr Hitler as reincarnation of ancient Nordic demigods, typifying spirit of old German stocks—all that sort of thing.

Irvin S. Cobb

Suddenly hideous discovery is made that stranger's background is not Teutonic, the family name being Ginsberg. Celebration called off; flags furled, bands sneak home, special train canceled, burgomaster has apoplexy.

And next day the local paper comes out with scathing article under the headline, "Jew Attacks Defenseless Lion."

Criminal Lawyers.

WE'RE a funny people. Did we read where, in some far-off country, men who had access to zoos picked the locks on the cages and freed the man-eating tigers and the blood-thirstiest wolves and the deadliest poison snakes to go forth and kill again, we'd marvel at a land which endured such a thing.

But when in our own land criminal lawyers truthfully boast that, of all the individuals charged with deliberate murder whom they have defended, no single one ever went to noose or chair, and that ever so many more were, by their skill, saved from the prisons where we are supposed to pen our human tigers and wolves and snakes, we give these geniuses our admiration and much free advertising, and young lawyers crave to follow in their illustrious footprints.

We are indeed a funny people—so funny it's hard to decide whether we should laugh at ourselves—or weep.

Husbands and Wives.

LOTS of matrimony in the news, now that marriage, instead of being a contract, is a ninety-day option.

A Pittsburgh gentleman gets fined for dunking his lady's face in a simmering beef stew. That's no way to treat a lady. Or a beef stew. Take the average lady, and would you care for a beef stew flavored with lipstick, eyebrow pencil, mascara, cold cream, hair dye and three kinds of paint?

A gentleman who's president of the —take a deep breath—American Creative League of Harmony and Music Students, declares if ill-suited couples learn the guitar happiness would return, the guitar, he states, being the most romantic instrument there is. But once, in vaudeville, I saw a peevish helpmate crown friend husband with an inlaid guitar, and it didn't seem to do him any real good.

Slowing Up Youth.

OBVIOUSLY it's too late to save the confirmed speed-maniacs among the adult population. They won't be with us long, anyhow, and will be missed by but few, if any. Every time one of these madmen whizzes past, I find myself saying to the back of his neck, "Well, brother, glad to have this glimpse at you. Probably I'll not be seeing you again unless I should drop in at the morgue the day you arrive."

But maybe we might help to insure the oncoming generations by inaugurating a definite course of juvenile education. Let's start with the babies; let's make it a fixed and required ritual in every kindergarten, every public or private parochial school—yes, every Sunday school, every Boy Scout camp and at every girl's campfire; every place where youngsters are gathered. Over and over again, let's pound it into them that reckless driving is neither gallant nor smart nor sporting, but that it is stupid and criminal and vicious and murderous.

Desolation of Floods.

THE first time we went to Venice my wife looked across the Grand canal and said:

"Did you ever see anything like it?"

And, trying to be funny, I said: "Absolutely, looks just like South Third street did during the big rise of 1913. If right now a fellow in a skiff should come rowing up to this window to collect the water-rent, I'd swear I was back home."

That seemed a sorry joke as I read of a monstrous yellow torrent sweeping down on the beleaguered lowlands where my people have lived for nearly a century and a half, bringing ruin on its crest and desolation in its wake.

Surely nature has been pitiless this last year—drouths and duststorms; forest fires and smokepalls; blizzards and icepacks; and now these cruel floods. Still, amid the afflictions, one consoling thought gleams like a star: congress will adjourn pretty soon.

Lesson for April 12

JESUS TRIUMPHS OVER DEATH

LESSON TEXT—Luke 24:1-35.
GOLDEN TEXT—Because I live, ye shall live also.—John 14:19.
PRIMARY TOPIC—The Glad Surprise.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus the Conqueror.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Jesus Is Alive.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Our Living Lord.

The supreme test of Christianity is the fact of the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead. It matters little what Jesus said and did while alive if his body remained in the grave. If he did not come forth in triumph from the tomb, then all his claims are false. On the other hand, if he did arise, all his claims are true. Fortunately, there is no better authenticated fact in all history than that of the resurrection of the body of Jesus Christ.

I. The Empty Sepulchre (vv. 1-3).

1. The coming of the women (v. 1). As an expression of affectionate regard for the Master, they came with spices for his body. This was a beautiful expression of sentiment but showed their lack of faith. If they had believed his words, they would have known that his body could not be found in the sepulchre.

2. What they found (vv. 2, 3). When they came to the sepulchre, they found the stone had been removed. How the stone was to be removed greatly perplexed them on their way, but on their arrival they discovered that their difficulty had already been met. They found the stone rolled away, but they found not the body of Jesus. For them to have found his body in the sepulchre would have been the world's greatest tragedy. The empty tomb spoke most eloquently of the deity and power of the Son of God (Rom. 1:4).

II. The Message of the Men in Shining Garments (vv. 4-8).

1. "Why seek ye the living among the dead?" (v. 5). This question has been reverberating through the centuries since it was uttered by the angels.

2. "He is not here, but is risen." Jesus had made all these matters quite plain. He had told them that the Lord must be betrayed and crucified and that on the third day he would arise again. If they had given heed to his words, they would have been relieved of their perplexities.

III. The Women Witnessing to the Eleven (vv. 9-11).

Their thrilling testimony concerning the empty tomb and the words of the angels appeared to the disciples as idle tales and they refused to believe:

IV. Peter Investigating (v. 12).

While the testimony of the women seemed as idle tales, Peter was not of the temperament to dismiss the matter from his mind. Therefore, he ran to the sepulchre. Upon close investigation he found the linen clothes lying in such a way as to prove the reality of the resurrection.

V. The Convinced Disciples (vv. 13-35.)

1. The walk of two discouraged disciples (vv. 13-15). Emmaus was seven and a half miles northwest of Jerusalem. Just why the disciples were walking this way we may not surely know. The topic of conversation as they walked miles northwest of Jerusalem. Just why the disciples were walking this way we may not surely know. The topic of conversation as they walked was the tragedy of the cross and the resurrection rumors. If they had believed what Jesus said about his coming forth from the grave, they would have expected to hear such reports.

2. The unrecognized companion (vv. 16-24).

a. Who he was (v. 16). While they reasoned together on the wonderful events of the past few days, Jesus joined them on the journey.

b. His question (v. 17). Perceiving their sadness and perplexity, he sought to help them by calling forth a statement of their grief. This question surprised them and caused them to jump at the conclusion that he was a stranger in Jerusalem, for the condemnation and crucifixion of the great Prophet of Nazareth were so recent and notorious that no one who had lived in Jerusalem could be ignorant of them.

3. The Scriptures opened (vv. 25-31).

a. His rebuke (vv. 25-30). He rebuked them not for their unbelief of the strange stories that they had heard, but for ignorance and lack of confidence in the Old Testament.

b. Jesus recognized (v. 31). While sitting at meat with the disciples their eyes were opened as they saw him bless the bread and distribute to them.

4. The effect upon the disciples (vv. 32-35). They were so filled with joy over this revelation of the Saviour that they hastened back to Jerusalem to tell the other disciples of his resurrection.

God's Love

God's love gives in such a way that it flows from a father's heart, the well-spring of all good. The heart of the giver makes the gift dear and precious; as among ourselves we say of even a trifling gift, "It comes from a hand we love," and look not so much at the gift as at the heart.—Luther.

Laugh From the Heart

A laugh to be joyous must flow from a joyous heart, for without kindness there can be no true joy.—Carlyle.

THE EDUCATED MAN

In view of much recent discussion of the attributes of an educated man, Edward Wiggam, the author and lecturer, are interesting. They are as follows:

He always listens to the man who knows.

He never laughs at new ideas.

He cross-examines his daydreams.

He knows the value of good habits and how to form them.

He knows when not to think and when to call in an expert to think for him.

You can't sell him magic.

He lives a forward-looking outward-looking life.

He cultivates love of the beautiful.

PLENTY OF ROOMS

Dallas, Texas—Fifty thousand rooms will be available for tourists visiting Dallas to attend the Texas Centennial Exposition which opens June 6. This announcement was made today by Frank M. Smith, director of the Exposition's housing bureau.

All these rooms will be available at moderate cost. The Dallas Hotel Association, including all local hotels and the Dallas Restaurant Association, embracing local restaurants, have signed a formal pledge to the effect that there will be no increases in room rent or of food prices in Dallas during the progress of the $25,000,000 World's Fair.

An elaborate system of room registration has been started by Director Smith whose staff will occupy two floors of a downtown office building. Lodging will be found there for all visitors of the type and price which they desire.

THE INFALLIBLE SIGN

Signs of spring are everywhere
On bush, in tree and air;
The elm buds now are swelling,
And birds flit here and there.
But still these signs reminds us
That spring does not commence until the thrifty farmer
Repairs his pasture fence.

Perhaps you heard a robin
Caroling at dawn,
Or maybe saw a blue bird
Hop across the lawn.
But still the signs remind us
That spring does not commence
Until our backyard neighbor
Repairs his garden fence.

TEST FEEDING OF DISTILLERY SLOP

PROVES THAT MIXTURE ALONE IS NOT PROFITABLE—TANKAGE AND CORN SHOULD BE ADDED.

In a test of feeding distillery slop to hogs at the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station at Lexington it was found good practice to settle the slop, so as to increase its solid content, and then to add corn and tankage.

One lot of 10 hogs fed thin slip alone, just as it comes from the presses and in the form it is usually delivered to farmers, had lost weight at the end of five weeks, although the animals were then consuming an average of four gallons daily. The slop was than allowed to settle for 24 to 36 hours and about a third of the liquid skimmed off. Corn was added at the rate of 50 pounds per barrel of thin slop and tankage at the rate of a tenth of the weight of the corn. The hogs then began to gain.

Another lot of 10 hogs received all of the settled slop they would eat for 15 weeks. The lost weight for five weeks and then gained the rest of the period, making an average gain of less than a third of a pound daily, which was less than the first lot gained.

A third lot received settled slop and corn, but no tankage. They gained for five weeks and then went off feed. Knowing what the first lot had done after corn and tankage were fed, tankage was added to the slop and corn of this lot. The animals regained their appetites and gained weight.

The experimenters conclude that it is good practice to add corn and tankage and to settle the slop, in attempting to fatten hogs on distillery slop.

TIMEY TOPICS

After divorcing her husband, Mrs. Mary Draft of Philadelphia, consented to permit him to remain in their jointly-owned home as a boarder. The plan didn't work satisfactorily, however, as she later told the judge: "I had to put him out, because he began beating me just as if he was still my husband."

Bolton Hall, a New York attorney, at the age of 81 makes this observation: "The law is a game, played by us lawyers under complicated rules made by ourselves for our benefit, at the expense of our clients." Many laymen will agree.

George E. Feser, 54-year-old war veteran of Oakland, Calif., recently read his name and the number of his regiment on a gravestone at the Presidio of San Francisco, and wrote to the Veterans Bureau about it. The bureau informed him that he was listed on the records as dead, but Feser strenuously asserts that he is very much alive.

Betty Davis, who was once told in Hollywood that she would never make good in the films, was awarded a trophy for the best performance by any movie actress during 1935 for her work in "Dangerous." Victor McLaglen received the men's award for his acting in "The Informer."

Reading the headline Plan 'Depository for Cobb Records" in the Atlanta Georgian, we thought they were going to bunt a vault or something in which to preserve Ty Cobb's baseball records. Reading the article, we discovered our mistake—the depository proposed is for the records of Cobb county in 'Gene Talmadge's state.

Police chasing a speeder in Memphis collided with another car, with the result that one policeman and three civilians were killed. Added to the irony of the tragedy, the speeder escaped.

B. C. Forbes, the noted financial writer, states that in the 60 years since 1876 the population of the United States has increased 180 per cent, while the government's expenses have increased 5,148 per cent.

Following an admonition by his editor to condense his news stories a London reporter covered a tragedy thus: "Sir Edward Hopewell, a guest at Lady Panmore's ball, took a highball, his hat, his overcoat, his depature, a taxicab, a pistol from his pocket, and finally his life."

A resident of Cairo, Egypt, is charged with a serious shortage. He is called upon to account for 60 wives who have disappeared during the last 30 years. Some are said to have been divorced, but most of them died under suspicious circumstances.

USEFUL WEDDING GIFTS

A woman writer in the Household Magazine discusses the desirability of giving useful wedding presents and makes the following suggestions:

"Most of us are in a flurry as to whether or not our bride friends will have tested recipes and good kitchen equipment. I think it is as important that a man finds clean hose in their accustomed place, when he gets up in the morning, and a shirt that he can depend upon to make him feel presentable, as that he is served a slice of toast that is a rich, golden brown and coffee made the way he likes it. If I were a man and had to take my color between the coffee and the shirt I would take the shirt, and I believe most men would.

"What a helpful and appreciated change in wedding-gift buying there will be when a washing machine of the bride's choosing is purchased by a near relative, when the stationary tubs in the laundry are considered as important when the new home is furnished as the stove, and when a friend may feel confident about bringing a neat little clothes-pin bag filled with clothes pins to a shower! There should be no thought of such gifts being too porsaic, or too imbued with the suggestion of hard work.

"The bride-to-be will appreciate your help in equipping her home laundry. A clothes hamper and a drying rack make splendid wedding gifts."

COLLEGE OUTLINES PROVISIONS OF SOIL CONSERVATION MEOSURE

Lexington, Ky.—Under the new Soil Conservation and Domestic Allotment Act program, farmers will receive payments for diverting land from soil-depleting crops to soil-building and soil-conserving crops, says a statement from the College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky.

For changing land from growing tobacco to soil-building crops, farmers will receive 5 cents a pound for the normal yield per acre of burley and 3½ cents a lb. for dark tobacco. Thirty per cent of the tobacco base may be shifted to soil-building crops.

For such other soil-depleting crops as corn and small grains, sweet sorghum, soybeans harvested for seed or hay, potatoes and sweet potatoes, payment will be approximately $10 an acre. Fifteen percent of such crops may be shifted.

In addition to receiving payments for diverting tobacco, grain and certain other land, farmers will be eligle to a soil-building payment for the planting of such soil-building crops and the use of such soil-building practices as may be recommended by the state committee and approved by the Secretary of Agriculture. The maximum for this payment is not to exceed $1 an acre but in no case will be less than ... per farm.

No payment will be made unless the total acreage in soil-building farm in 1936 is at least equal to and soil-conserving uses on the 20 percent of the soil-depleting base, the minimum acreage is to equal the acreage for which a soil-conserving payment is obtained.

The tobacco base to be used in the new program will be that recommended for the 1936-39 base, under the AAA program. The base for the other crops will be the 1935 acreage of those crops.

Farmers planning to participate in the new program may help speed up the work by gathering figures on their crop acreages last year and in recent years, the latter to be used in case adjustments have to be made. These figures should include land devoted to tobacco, corn and other grains, bluegrass for seed and for pasture, other pasture land, gardens, woodland, land in lots, buildings, roads and lanes, and waste and idle lands.

Where planting time is at hand, farmers should plan their seedings so as to have the specified percentages in soil-building or soil-conserving land. The upper limits are 30 percent of their tobacco land and 15 percent of their other crop lands. In the case of cotton, it is 35 percent.

County and community meetings are now being held over the state, in which the new program is being discussed and explained. The program will be carried out by county and local committees, temporarily appointed and to be elected at some later date.

FARM RELIEF PARADOX

Improve the soil, but raise less. That is the paradox presented by the latest "farm relief" act, which is just now being widely discussed both with respect to its practical administration and with a view to its ultimate effects by those who have given thought to the probable consequences of the new law.

It is proposed to distribute some 500 million dollars a year to farmers who cooperate in a plan to take a portion of their land out of production and devote it to conservation purposes, such as soil improvement, the prevention of erosion and the like. What it is proposed to do with this improved land later on has not been disclosed.

The immediate effect, it is assumed, would be a reduction in farm production of salable crops, in the hope of increased prices for what is produced, thus continuing to put into practice the "economy of scarcity" theory which has been highly favored in government circles for some time. How long such a program and its heavy drain on the public treasury can be continued is an important question.

Surely the government can not continue to pay vast sums for such a program idefinitely, and when payments for non-production cease it is inevitable that the land temporarily left idle, and improved through the soil conservation plan, will again be cultivated, with the result that surplus crops greater tha never before will be produced.

ONE FORECLOSURE BY HOLC OUT OF EVERY 140 BORROWERS

More than $600,000 is being received daily by the Home Owners' Loan Corporation in Washington in payments by its borrowers located in every city and town in the United States on loans for relief of home mortgage distress during the past 2½ years. As of February 29, total payments of interest and principal amounted to $246,795,297 or 73.4 per cent of the $335,669,010 total due the HOLC to that date since the beginning of its operations in the Summer of 1933. In the 24 business days of February, total payments were $15,179,851. March payments through the third week are running much higher.

Of the total of 7,295 foreclosure proceedings instituted by HOLC—out of 998,850 home owners to whoc loans were made, 4,162 were described as having persistently refused to attempt to make settlements although "demonstrably in a position to pay."

The foreclosure proceedings, about half of which are subject to settlement, amount to one out of every 140 of the corporation's borrowers, practically all of whom were in default on their original loans from other sources, and therefore faced the loss of their homes when HOLC came to their assistance.

2.55% ON U. S. DEBT A RECORD LOW RATE

The average rate on the interest-bearing public debt according to the latest announcement of the U. S. Treasury was 2.55 per cent, a low record since the World War. The record high average rate was 4,339 per cent on June 30, 1921, when the interest-bearing debt was $23,737,352,080, as compared with $29,449,803,670 on Feoruary 29, 1936. Under the Roosevelt Administration the interest rate has gradually declined. It stood at 2,-715 per cent on une 30, 1935, on a debt of $27,583,193,670.

ORIGIN OF BASEBALL

While baseball as we know it is a sort of comparatively recent development, a game in which a tossed ball was batted with a rude club has been traced back to the 14th century in Europe. The present American game was probably an outgrowth of that of "town ball," played in New England from about 1830, in which the runs were made around posts set in the ground, instead of bases.

The first code of baseball rules was formulated by the Knickerbocker club of New York in 1845, the first match game was played the following year, and the first gate money series of games took place at Hoboken in 1858. The development of the game was checked by the Civil War, but was revived in 1865, when a convention was held at which representatives of 30 clubs were present.

A Rockford, Ill., team first employed regularly salaried players, but the Cincinnati Red Stockings, organized in 1868, is consider the first professional club. It made a tour in 1869, winning 69 games with meeting a single defeat. In 1870 it won 29 straight games, being defeated in the 30th by the Atlantics of Brooklyn.

Gamblers having gotten control of the game, a convention was held in oLuisville in 1876, at which strict rules to overcome bribery, betting by players and other abuses were adopted, and the National League was formed. There are now more than 20 professional leagues, of which the National and the American, originally the Western (formed by Ban Johnson in 1893), are the two "big leagues."

The most significant event in baseball history was the appointment of Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis as "baseball czar" in 1920.

FALSE SAFETY SCHEMES

How misguided zeal for a worthy cause may defeat its purpose is illustrated by the display of "safety" posters on billboards along New Jersey highways. The design of these posters is described as "striking and even gruesome," tending to divert the attention of drivers and cause the very accidents which they are intended to prevent.

A protest against their use has been made by the National Council for the Protection of Roadside Beauty, which says: "The menace of the roadside billboard through distraction of attention, as well as through clubwomen's notion, but may be a contriouting cause to accidents.

Commenting on the same matter the New York Sun says: "There are less objectionable ways of presenting a striking safety message to motorists. New Jersey's sanction of distracting roaaside signs will weaken the fight of one state's civic organizations against the bulboards blight."

The need for safety education is urgent and should be promoted in every community through a sane and unemotional appeal to the common sense of those who operate motor vehicles. It can not be promoted through a sensational and obstructive billboard at the very spot where the accident is already due to happen.

All the school in Blue Eye, Mo., have been closed on account of an epidemic of pink eye among the children.

LIFE LARGE AND SMALL

Some interesting reflections on the size of living things are made by the noted scientist, Julian S. Huxley, in a magazine article. Many of the facts which he relates are not only interesting, but surprising.

When we speak of living things, in the broad sense, we must include the vegetable kingdom, so found among the big trees in California the largest living things are to be fornia. These, incidentally, are also the oldest, with an age of around 5,000 years.

These trees, some weighing nearly 1,000 tons, are massive indeed when compared with the largest animal, the whale, whose weight seldom reaches more than 100 tons. Yet a large elephant could maneuver inside a whale's skin.

Most wonderful is what we find among the smaller orders of life. We can see a flea, though with difficulty catch him, yet 80,000 would weigh scarcely an ounce.

Some of the insects which are hardly visible to the naked eye are fitted out with "compound eyes, a nice nervous system, three pairs of jaws and three pairs of legs, veined wings and striped muscles." Tiny birds weighing only 10 grams or about as much as 10 large ants, fly thousands of miles during their migrations. And ants, by the way, are the strongest living things in proportion to their size.

Man is about half-way in the scale between large and small mammals, and when grown he contains about a hundred million cells. He requires all his brain as well as his strength to cope with the great animals on one side and the insects on the other. And then there are the microbes to worry about.

Seen And Heard Around The County Seat

Rev. O. B. Crockett, Presiding Elder of Ft. Thomas, Ky., will occupy the pulpit of the Burlington Methodist church Easter Sunday at 11:00 A. M. Everyone is invited to attend this service.

B. W. Southgate, 1551 Scott St., Covington, one of the Recorder's first subscribers made our office a very pleasant call last Thursday.

Wm. Cook, who is employed by the Messer Construction Company, Frankfort, spent the week-end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Mark Cook, Camp Ernst Road.

Misses Helen and Melicent Berkshire, students of K. F. O. S., Midway, were the week-end guest of their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Berkshire, of Petersburg.

Mrs. Silas Corbin, of the Florence pike was a business visitor in Burlington, Monday.

Mrs. Wallace Ryle of the Burlington-Florence pike, has been seriously ill for the past week. However, her condition is reported very much improved at this writing.

Don't forget Easter services at your local church this week.

Mr. Reuben Kirtley and mother Mrs. B. C. Kirtley, were business callers at our office Tuesday of this week. Mrs. Kirtley reported that she had come outt part way in a boat as the river is rising blocking exit from their home again, although it is thought that the river will not reach a dangerous stage, we can never tell about the weather these days.

It seems that the disease of TRADING is very contagious in this immediate locality, as certain persons can hardly wait until the Recorder is printetd so they can scan the classified ads for bargains. This group started with only a small membership, but in the past few weeks they have been growing rapidly, and almost everyone has been a victim of trading.

The local painters report that they have a lot of painting to do this spring, but the weather has prohibited their getting an early start. Maybe there are other things worrying them too.

Young Democrats don't forget the meeting at Hebron, April 13th at 7:30 p. m. Come and invite your neighbor.

The American Legion met at the court house Tuesday night for their regular meeting, and election of new officers.

The meeting of the Wool Growers of this district, which was held Monday of this week, was attended by a very large crowd of farmers who expect to have wool for market this spring. The meetting was reported a very large success.

Don't forget the big sale at the McWethy Estate April 18th. This sale is in the hands of the Guy Downs Realty Co., and is also advertised in this issue of the Recorder. Don't fail to read it.

H. L. Feldhaus, Union, who is an agent for the Rosenbaum & Co. wool buyers, of Louisville, was a business visitor at our office last Thursday.

Quite a large crowd attended the program given at the local school, Friday evening.

Mrs. Mildred Kirk and Mrs. Cecil Gaines were calling on Mrs. N. W. Carpenter Friday.

Miss Mary Lou Renaker spent the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Renaker.

Mrs. A. D. Yelton is quite ill.

Miss Dorothy McClure spent the week-end with Miss Frances Finn.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilford Rouse had as Sunday guests Mr. and Mrs. Harve Tanner, Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Kelly and family and Mr. and Mrs. Karl Rouse.

Even though Richard Bruno Hauptmann is dead, there is still considerable comment about his guilt. It can be heard on almost every street corner.

Colds this spring seem to be something that last a long time. Don't let them get the best of you, see your doctor at once and be on the safe side.

The local W. M. U. will hold their regular meeting Thursday afternoon at 2:00 clock at the home of Mrs. M. A. Yelton.

Sheriff W. B. Cotton of Boone County reports that there are approximately 1300 dogs in this county for which license has not been purchased. Sheriff Cotton urges everyone that has not purchased their dog license to do so promptly.

Weaver & Easton, local paint contractors, were fortunate in receiving a contract from Mr. W. H. Whitehouse, of Richwood, to paint the buildings of his entire estate. It is expected to take two months to complete the work.

Elmer Kelly, who represents a hatchery in Missouri, has been busy taking orders for chiks the past few days—he has sold 600 so far this week (Wednesday.)

E. E. Kirkwood, Principal of the local school, who has been quite ill for the past several weeks is rapidly recovering.

C. G. Lamb, form - teacher of the local school and present Principal of the Morgan Consolidated school, Morgan, Ky., was a brief caller in Burlington, last Wednesday night.

Mrs. Maggie McBee and family, of Mt. Zion, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Lester McBee and son.

Rev. Cline Vice, of Louisville, spent the week-end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Vice, of Woolper.

Mr. Lee Cropper is ill with a cold.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Arnold and daughter Wilma Lee, spent Monday with Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Yelton.

Elza Poston was appointed foreman of the Federal Grand Jury which met in Covington this week.

Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Crisler, of Covington, were visiting Mr. and Mrs. Robert Clore, Sunday.

Robert Eades, of Florence, was in Burlington Tuesday afternoon.

G. L. Alford, of Louisville, spent Tuesday night with Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Porter.

GREENS

Doubtless there are few gardens in which there are not some greens, kale or Seven Top turnips of last fall's planting, or mustard sown in early this spring. These will soon be gone, and it would be a shame to have the greens' program stop then. Greens are a valuable part of the diet, both as sustenance and as a corrective. and though this latter feature is sometimes perhaps overworked, greens should have a place on the table the year through. From the standpoint of easy monotony of the diet, they are valuable, for greens of several distinctive flavors may be had.

The first of the less common greens is spinach. As to season, spinach is usually considered a companion of early mustard, but this is a mistake, because there are varieties that thrive for quite a few weeks after the ordinary sort, Bloomsdale Savoy, goes to seed. These are Long Standing and Prickly Seeded Summer. Another variety, which has the merit of resisting warm conditions is King of Denmark, which has the merit of resisting warm conditions is King of Denmark, which variety, by the way, is resistant to quite cold weather, as well. This makes it a good sort with which to close the fall season, for, unless the winter is unduly severe, there will be early spinach in the spring to follow. Incidentally, it may be good news for those gardeners who have failure, year after year, in raising spinach satisfactorily because of the plants yellowing and even dying, that the Norfolk Savoy is resistant to the Yellows disease, indicated by the symptoms just described.

Another quite different type of greens is Swiss chard. It is one of the family of beets. Those who have used red-beet tops for emergency greens will enjoy Swiss of being able to sustain itself in hot, dry conditions, and, of returning an almost unbelievable amount of food from a ridiculously small garden space. Harvesting is done by breaking off the outer leaves of the plant, new ones continuously forming. Sown at the same time as are garden beets, the plants are thinned to a stand of from 8 to 10 inches. One packet of seed will sow a row 30 feet long, ample for a family of 5 to have at least one serving a week all summer long. Lucullus is the variety.

Still another green, useful particularly after hot weather comes, is New Zealand spinach. In flavor, it resembles ordinary spinach, but its habit of growth is quite differentt.

The seed should be sown in pairs where it is desired a plant shall stand. The spacing of the plants should be 3 feet apart in rows 4 feet between. To harvest, only the end-clusters of leaves are taken. New branches and clusters of and clusters continuously form, making New Zealand a "cropper" until quite severe cold weather comes.

Seeding time is when the ground has definitely become warm. Greens' harvest may begin within 6 weeks, the amounts harvested becoming progressively larger as the size of the plants themselves increases. Twenty plants are ample. The variety is New Zealand.

Greens need land rich in nitrogen, land into which a generous amount of stable manure, or, better still, chicken manure, has been worked. In addition to the manure nitrogen, chemical nitrogen should be given, as top-dressing the rows with nitrate of soda, 1 pound to 100 feet of row. Such dressings are particularly valuable on early greens which make most of their growth beforde land has become warm enough to release nittrogen rapidly enough. Later greens usually get along well enough without extra dressings, in well manured gardens.

135-ACRE FARM

At Auction

SATURDAY, APRIL 18, 2 P. M. C. S. T.

On Premises PETERSBURG, KENTUCKY

About 23 miles west of Covington, via State Highway No. 20, about 10 miles west of Hebron. School Bus and Milk Truck from door—just a few minutes to Cincinnati, a ready market for your produce.

The heirs of the late Mrs. Eva McWethy have authorized us to sell this fine farm of about 135 acres at ABSOUTE AUCTION; therefore bid last and you'll buy. Regardless of price and weather the highest bidder will get a deed—A Guy Downs Auction.

A real farm plant, in one of the best sections of Boone County—Excellent soil, well equipped. Owned by McWethy family for over a half century.

Home and Improvements

The home, situated on a beautiful knoll, surrounded by the green lawn with large old shade trees here and there—if you please, seem to beckon. For truly, one feels that it is home. A most comfortable 2-story frame (newly painted) in good condition. 5 rooms on lower floor, 3 bed rooms on second floor. Woodwork throughut good, several attractive old mantels. Cistern at door, sink in kitchen, slate roof, large concrete basement (inside and out entrance), hot air furnace, electric lights, 3 porches, concrete walk to outbuildings. Chicken house, meathouse (concrete floor). Strawberries, grape arbor.

Large tobacco and stock barn, inside corn crib (rat proof), wired for lights, cistern at door, everlasting well in barn lot with engine driven pump (most convenient for watering stock), 2 ponds, cow barn with 12 steel stanchions, lights and silo. Nice 3-room cottage with porch, cistern and outbuildings.

OHIO RIVER BOTTOM LAND A TRUCK FARM—FERTILE AND VERY PRODUCTIVE, EASY TO CULTIVATE. Nearly every foot tillable, and with a tractor, too. An ideal truck or stock farm, adapted to any crop grown in this section. Lots of grass—lespedeza, blue grass, grain.

Invest in a good farm, it's a safe spot. Money is cheap, farm commodities are up. Many investors have already bought land. the Back-bone of the nation. Don't wish you had, put your money to work now, get a better return—where it will be safe, where you can walk on it today, tomorrow, next year. Build an estate, secure your future.

COMMUNITY MEETINGS NEW FARM PROGRAM

The New Farm Soil Conservation Program will be presented Boone County farmers in a series of community educational meetings to be held the next two weeks. All farmers and others interested are urged to attend the meetings in their respective communities to hear the new program explained.

The series of meetings will be held as follows:

Petersburg—April 14th at the School house—7:00 P. M.

Grant—April 15th at the school house—7:00 P. M.

Walton—April 17th at the school house—7:00 P. M.

Burlington—April 18th—at the Court House—1:15 P. M.

Florence—April 18 at Tanner's Feed Store—8:00 P. M. (Fast Time)

Hamilton—April 20th at the school house—7:30 P. M.

New Haven—April 21st at the school house—7:30 P. M.

Hebron—April 22nd at the school house 7:15 P. M.

Verona—April 23rd at the school house—7:00 P. M.

The County Agricultural Agent, Community Committeemen and others will be present to discuss the program and answer questions of the producers. Much interest is being shown and the program is expected to meet with favor with farmers.

AAA Substitute Aimed to Hit Fundamental Farm Problem

By H. R. KIBLER

PASSED as a substitute for the AAA, the "Soil Conservation and Domestic Allotment Act," signed by the President on March 1, strikes directly at the fundamental national farm problem. It seeks to end the terrific annual national loss from soil erosion. In this respect, it follows the permanent original intention of the AAA plan.

Interest in the temporary phase of the AAA, especially the immediate benefits to be secured through evaporation of farm surpluses and the resulting higher farm commodity prices had rather obscured this long-time purpose which had contemplated establishment of a wise land use to check the drain on the food resources of the nation.

Exhaustion of new land areas for farming development, a country-wide soil survey and the dramatization of erosion by the choking, blinding dust storms that swept over half the nation in the summer of 1935, has brought city dwellers as well as farmers to the consciousness of the necessity for a national soil conservation policy.

National Action Demanded

The soil survey disclosed erosion had destroyed 51,465,097 acres of land for further use in crop production. In addition, it was found that practically all of the top soil was lost from 105,549,229 acres, and a total of 513,074,201 acres had been robbed of from one-fourth to three-fourths of its top soil, It is estimated that 3,000,000,000 tons of soil are washed out of our fields and pastures every year with a loss of not less than 126,000,000,000 pounds of plant food. The value of nitrogen, phosphoric acid and potash lost amounts annually to $2,000,000,000.

This destruction of rich food and fibre producing resources indeed constitutes a national calamity. It demanded national action. The new act of Congress deals directly with the problem. It seeks to:

Preserve and improve soil fertility; promote the economic use and conservation of land; diminish the exploitation and wasteful and unscientific use of national resources; protect rivers and harbors against the results of erosion so as to aid flood control and maintain navigability.

And finally, it seeks to re-establish the ratio between the purchasing power of farmers and of people not on farms, which prevailed during the five year period, August 1909 to July 1914.

Individual Grants

To accomplish the purpose of the act there is authorized an annual appropriation of not more than $500,000,000. Under the terms of the act, federal aid will be made in the form of grants direct to individual farmers to assist voluntary action for the stated purposes of the act until Jan. 1, 1938. After that date, grants will be made only to states upon submission of approved state programs.

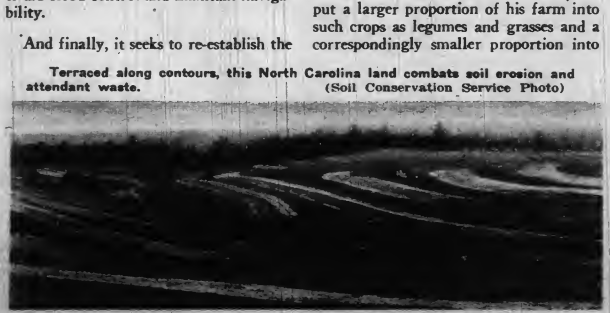
Methods of checking and stopping soil erosion on individual farms include terracing, the growth of cover crops and in some cases, reforestation. Economic pressure has for many years forced farmers to produce cash crops that not only sapped soil fertility, but exposed the land to terrific erosion losses.

The amount of soil and water loss from various cropping systems was effectively illustrated on test plots in the Spartanburg, S. C., area, Comparative figures on pounds of soil lost per acre from these plots show that from a given number of gallons of rainfall per acre, bare plots lost 56,522 pounds of soil per acre; cotton plots 37,745 pounds; corn plots 13,152 pounds, while on lespedeza plots the loss was 2,360 pounds and on Bermuda grass plots only 262 pounds.

Secretary Wallace Explains

Under the two-year or temporary plan of the new Soil Conservation Act, payments will be made to producers for treatment or use of land for soil restoration, conservation or erosion prevention; also for changes they make in the use of their land and for the percentage of their normal production of one or more designated commodities equal to the normal national percentage required for domestic consumption,

Secretary of Agriculture Wallace is quoted directly on this phase of the program as follows: "Payments will be made for the growing of erosion-preventing and soil-building crops, of which there is no surplus, rather than soil-depleting cash crops, of which there is a surplus. That is, a farmer who wishes to put a larger proportion of his farm into such crops as legumes and grasses and a correspondingly smaller proportion into such crops as cotton, wheat, corn and tobacco will be compensated by the government for so doing, Without some compensation, many farmers could not afford to sacrifice any of their acreage of cash crops."



How Farmer Benefits

Thus, the farmer will be benefitted by direct payments for the development of soil conservation practices. At the same time, he will be building and conserving the value of his farm. In addition, he will receive an increase in yield of crops produced. The county agricultural agent of Yancey County, N. C., has surveyed this latter possibility and concludes that over $200,000 annual increased crop income will be the immediate reward to farmers in that county resulting from the soil improvement and conservation program. Estimated crop increases are: Corn, 8 bushels per acre; wheat, 5 bushels; oats, 15 bushels; tobacco, 122 pounds; potatoes, 50 bushels, and hay 1-2 ton.

But the protection and conservation of our national food production resources, is of consequence to the entire nation and not to the farmer alone. The stark tragedy of China dramatizes unmistakably the effect of unchecked soil waste on an entire country.

In a final summarization of the plan of the new act, Secretary Wallace states: "I believe that under this new program, we can do a more constructive job of putting a firm physical base under our civilization than has ever been done by any great nation with a continental climate."

Terraced along contours, this North Carolina land combats soil erosion and attendant waste. (Soil Conservation Service Photo)

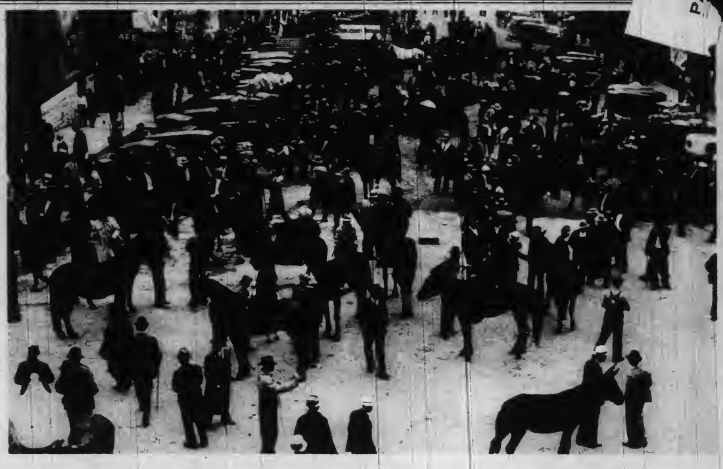
Profitable Tomato Crop Seen



ADVISED by the Tennessee-Kentucky Canners Association to reduce their tomato crops for the coming season, farmers in these states are looking forward to a profitable cash crop. The association, in a resolution also advised that prices paid producers be on the 1935 basis or less.

Stokely Brothers & Co., vegetable canners, are offering farmers in localities where the Tennessee plants are situated a flat rate of $13 per ton for all tomatoes suitable for canning or preserving. Receiving stations will be established by the company for sufficient numbers of growers in localities too far from the plant to permit hauling by the farmers. Plants are located at Newport, Sevierville, Tellico Plains and Jefferson City, Tenn.

Roy V. Montgomery, editor, Montgomery's Vindicator, Sevierville, Tenn., declares the coming season is the best opportunity farmers have had with the tomato crop. "Faarmers should by all means use the latest and best known methods to improve and cultivate their crops and increase production," says Editor Montgomery.

KING . . . . . for a Day!

Maury County's Mule Day Directs Agriculture World's Eyes to Importance of Work-Stock Production

A street is set aside for mule and horse transactions on Mule Day at Columbia, Tennessee. Buyers from a dozen states are represented in this photograph on the big day of the year when prospective buyers obtain individual mules, matched teams, young and old mules, saddle horses, work horses and even ponies. Mounted buyers can be seen in the foreground. Practically all of the stock shown here took part in the morning parade of two miles of work animals and saddle horses.

KING for a day, the humble mule takes his rightful place in the limelight on that first Monday of April, when the farmers of Maury county, Tennessee and the townfolk of Columbia, the county seat, join in playing host to thousands of buyers and farmers from a score of states come to participate in the pageantry, and shrewd trading of National Mule Day.

Originally local in scope, Columbia's Mule Day has become a national event focussing the attention of the country on the necessity for the reestablishment of this branch of the livestock industry in the furtherance of agricultural prosperity.

Mule Day has awakened a widespread interest in work stock production among Tennessee farmers. The mule that was, in days gone by, a source of considerable income to farmers in Tennessee is again coming into his own. Agricultural authorities point out that work stock production is one of the most vital problems confronting the livestock industry. Mule Day furnishes the inspiring object lesson that dramatizes the problem.

All County Aids

All Maury county joins in this unique annual celebration in honor of the mule industry, which, according to the County Agent of Maury County, E. A. Kerr, has brought millions of dollars to farmers of that section of the state.

Although more than 20,000 persons took part in last year's Mule Day celebration, at which the Columbia Chamber of Commerce, farm organizations, leaders and others were hosts, the entire nation through radio and the printed word is familiar with Columbia's Mule Day and the vast importance of the mule industry.

The late Will Rogers contributed to the national attention centering on Columbia's Mule Day program last year, devoting his daily syndicated newspaper article to Maury county's annual mule sales day. He told the world that "when you want to buy a mule, the place to go is Columbia, Tenn."

Hastings in Charge

The reaction to Will's big boost was immediate. All Middle Tennessee was stirred by this tribute from the beloved humorist and philosopher. And Maury County went ahead with one of Columbia's leading citizens, W. D. Hastings, in charge, and an all day program was staged.

And the mule was really king for the day!

Two miles of mule and horse flesh filed through Columbia's streets in one of the greatest parades, featuring livestock, ever held in the South. Literally there were thousands of mules, horses and ponies in the long line of march. Hundreds of men, women and children rode in the procession. But it was one parade in which automobiles were barred. Floats were drawn by mules.

Auto Traffic Barred

All of the city's main streets were closed to automobile traffic as the mules took possession of the city for the day.

After the gigantic parade, judging was held on the main streets.

One street was set aside for mule and horse transactions with plenty of deals reported by satisfied buyers, sellers and traders.

Mule Day at Columbia is the one day of the year when a prospective buyer can obtain individual mules, matched teams, young mules, old mules, saddle and work horses or even a pony for the youngster at home—unless like thousands of other children they came along to see the Mule Day show.

As a rule, on Mule Day, trading begins in the afternoon. Practically all of the stock takes part in the parade in the morning, making the day more than ever one much like a good old fashioned circus day, with the parade in the morning and the big show in the afternoon.

Buyers come to Columbia from a dozen states. But the primary value of Columbia's Mule Day, it is pointed out, is not the volume of sales. Mule sales days start earlier in the year. Mule Day is unusually significant because it stimulates interest in mule production throughout the county and state.

Maury county can boast a high record in the state for the volume of mules sold. Now it is being regarded as the center of a move for increasing mule production which is spreading to other Middle Tennessee counties.

Broadcast to World

Radio station WLAC, of Nashville, carried the event to the nation.

Development of mule production, which includes the buying of young Jacks and Jennets, and educational work showing the growing need for mules in recent years, is part of the farm program of the state department of agriculture and University of Tennessee Extension Service. These agencies cooperated with Maury citizens in working for the success of Mule Day.

In 1935, there were 5,225 mules and mule colts in Maury county; approximately 3,500 horses and colts; 29 534 head of cattle and 30,235 sheep and lambs. This does not include 20.843 hogs and pigs.

It is evident from these figures that the county's 4,419 farms are taking advantage of pastureage. Maury has an unusually high percentage of land under cultivation. Of the 372,480 acres in the county, 351,105 acres, or 94 per cent of the total acreage, is in farming tracts. The average size farm is 79.5 acres.

Maury county lies within the Central Basin, with limestone soil save for a few Highland Rim sections, and the soil as a whole has an ample phosphorous content. Bluegrass grows naturally generally. The land is rolling, and is admirably shaped for extensive grazing and pasture crops.

Led by bands, two miles of mule and horse flesh file through the crowd-jammed streets of Columbia, Tennessee on Mule Day. The colorful procession is pictured here approaching the town square. Just for fun, see if you can spot an automobile in the parade. You're right, you can't find a car! Neither could some 20,000 other persons who saw the parade, because not one motor drawn vehicle took part in it.

Balancing the Budget with Sound Practices

In Tennessee, the program of agricultural development rests squarely on a foundation of sound practices, recognizing that successful farming starts with soil conservation and demands, among other things, accurate, dependable records. Carrying out one part of this program, left, this thinking farmer goes over his farm account book with County Agent Harmon Jones. Below, dark fired tobacco on a steep slope. Note the terrace to the left?
(All Photos from Chatham County.)

When you practice soil conservation along the approved methods of erosion control as illustrated here with this splendid lespedeza field, the farm account book is bound to look a little rosier, although not written in the red.

STILL FISHING TIME'S HERE

These Tennessee farmer-fishermen are out after suckers.

By DICK WOOD

FOR every angler who fishes flies or casting lures, there are about six who merely still fish with natural live bait. Even many of the "sport fishermen" occasionally resort to the use of live bait.

There is an art to still fishing. Must be. When a boy, I've sat beside a companion who caught fish consistently on the same bait I was using, although my offering seemed to be entirely ignored. When my pal would yank out a fish, I would sneak my baited hook into the same hole. He would re-bait and drop his hook into the spot mine formerly occupied—and catch another whopper before I could get a bite. There must be a trick to it.

Still fishing is cheap sport. Two bits will buy the essentials of line, cork, lead sinkers and hooks. Even pieces of sheet lead, or bullets hammered flat will suffice for sinkers. The pole is cut on the river or creek bank—preferably a long river cane, well seasoned.

The still fisherman may devote all of his attention to one pole, or may tend two or three extra poles—stuck in the bank. Still fishing is usually done in deep holes, where big fish congregate. If the banks are shady and big boulders extend into the water, the situation is ideal.

The most popular bait is earth worms, or night crawlers. These worms are secured by digging up the ground, by wetting the lawn and catching them at night or by extending an iron rod into the ground, charging it with electricity. Worms may be raised in a flower box, by pouring milk over the soil for food.

Live minnows are preferable for many game fish, particularly pike, bass, muskies. Crawfish are often used for trotline baits for bass, catfish and drum. The helgramite is one of the best bass baits. For still fishing the peeled tail of a crawfish is unsurpassed, but is difficult to fasten on a hook. Liver and other stale meats are often used to lure catfish. Doughballs are the accepted carp bait. And don't let anybody tell you a carp can't put up a fight.

White ash grubs, crickets and grasshoppers are excellent bait for trout and such pan fish as croppies, rock bass, bream and perch. The green meadow frog is one sure-shot bait for large bass, pike and muskies.

Still fishing is not so sporty as casting or fly fishing, but it's a lot of fun for a million or two men and boys who measure their sport in fish poundage.

And at another college they're tellin' tobacco growers how to starve to death tobacco worms that do so much damage to the roots of tobacco plants, and cuts down the yield per acre. They've been knowin' about these tobacco worms for a long time, but like the boll weevils in the cotton—all states weren't affected at the same time. The tobacco worms are hard to get rid of. The best way to do is to starve 'em by planting other crops the worms won't eat—about like getting rid of a fellow by stopping his pay.

And there's been all kinds of ways to try to determine the sex of baby chicks—none of 'em always for certain — but there's a feller who's succeeded in establishing a new breed of chickens that the males are hatched with black spots on the shanks of their legs and the females have no spots. That'll be a pretty handy thing for the big hatcheries—so they can sell you a lot of chicks and guarantee them 100 per cent pullets.

Looks like with all this breeding and experimenting and developing and improving that's going on there is big things in the future for us country fellers.

What kind of boys are these CCCers? How do they compare with the boys in the World War?

"Better in some respects; 'worse in others," writes Brig. Gen. H. L. Laubach who was in command of 80,500 boys at Camp Dix in 1933-34. "Physically," he says, "the CCC boys showed marked deterioration in legs and abdominal muscles. One word explains it—automobiles. Negro boys were stronger—they were used to walking."

"Chief defect," he said, "was inflammation of the middle ear—from bathing in sewage-polluted waters.

"Morally the boys were honest but cussed to much."

And here's something that will interest you about these CCC boys: "If they were Catholics they went to church. If Protestant they had no apparent religious tendency. A Protestant service held for 9,000 boys drew a congregation of 34."

JEST A-WHITTLIN' AN' A-THINKIN'

BY PETE GETTYS

BETWEEN THE ROWS

By ROY H. PARK

About the best definition of a farmer I've seen is the one given out by the University of Tennessee. According to it a farmer is—

A capitalist who labors—

A patriot who is asked to produce at a loss—

A man who has every element of nature to combat every day in the year—

A man who works eight hours twice a day—

A man who is a biologist, an economist, and a lot more "ists";

Who gives more and asks less than any other human being;

Who takes unto himself for his own sustenance and that of his family, those products that other people will not utilize;

Who is caricatured on the stage and in the daily press, but who comes nearer taking hold of any business and making a go of it than any other American alive or in captivity.

Just the same, farmers live a rather long life, especially in South Carolina, if one is to believe the story of Alfred Land, down in Greenwood.

Land wrote me that the other day he saw a gray-haired, long-bearded man sitting on a fence sobbing as though his heart would break. Sympathizing, he stopped, and asked:

"My friend, why do you weep so bitterly?"

"Pap whupped me—that's why," answered the sorrowful one as he wiped the tears out of his whiskers.

"Your pap whupped you?" repeated Land, dumfounded. "You mean your pap whipped you. Do you mean your father?"

"Yep — cause I throwed rocks at grandpap."

Theo Davis, of Zebulon, tells the story of the youngster who said a loud "doggone" and forthwith received a dime from his father on the promise that he wouldn't say it again.

"Say pop," said the boy a few minutes later, "I know another word that ought to be worth a half a dollar."

Relative to mention here last month of peculiar town names, Hoyle Broome, of Dobson, comes forward with the information that North Carolina, although once saved from the bottom in literacy only by South Carolina, has a Hamlet, Ivanhoe, Emerson, Ruskin, Cooper, Whittier, Rubyatt, Eldorado, and Milton.

In addition, the following classes are represented: Barber, Brewers, Butler, Carpenter, Farmer, Ranger, Mechanics, Cashiers, and Guide.

L. J. Taber, Master of the National Grange, tells the story of two stuttering blacksmiths in West Virginia. They had finished heating a piece of iron and one of them placed it on the anvil.

"H-h-h-h-h-h-h-hit it," he stuttered to his helper.

"W-wh-wh-wh-wh-wh-where?" asked the other.

"Ah, h-h-h-h-h-heck, we'll have to h-h-h-heat it again now."

By getting a group of co-eds to press their lipstick-coated lips on graph paper, a student in a midwestern college recently found—

The average lipstick coverage was .83 of an inch. This he multiplied by 32—, the average number of applications per week—and this in turn was multiplied by the number of weeks in the year. The average annual lipstick coverage per co-ed was 9.68 square feet.

Golden Fleece Tarnishes Unless Burs are Removed

Professor L. J. Horlacher of Kentucky College of Agriculture Suggests Methods for Shearing Sheep

Prize winning Kentucky Cheviots

It is best to shear sheep after most of the cold weather is over and there have been enough warm days to make them uncomfortable, suggests Prof. L. J. Horlacher of the Kentucky College of Agriculture.

In Kentucky, some sheep raisers shear in April; most of them in May.

Warm weather starts the flow of oil and puts the wool in good condition for shearing. Late-sheared fleeces are heavier than those sheared early, because the fiber has grown slightly longer and more yolk has been secreted.

Good shelter should be available for sheep after they are sheared, because a sudden change might cause colds and even death. Never shear sheep when the wool is wet or even damp. Never put them in a barn when their wool is damp. It takes wind and sunshine to dry wool.

Remove Burs First

Before shearing, cut off all tags and pick or clip out burs. The tags may be saved and sacked separately. Removal of burs after shearing injures the wool and results in a broken fleece. It is possible to make 50 cents to $1 a fleece by using care and taking time in removing the burs. Wool containing seed and chaff is placed in the reject grade because of the expense in removing this material and because of the poor condition in which the fleece is left after its removal.

If the weather is good, there is no better place to shear than on a good, clean Bluegrass sod. If necessary to shear inside, remove all straw and litter so that nothing will stick to the wool. Some sheep men spread a large canvas on which to shear; others use a board platform. Clean up after each sheep is sheared.

Machine shearing is more rapid than hand shearing. It clips the fleece closer to the skin and gives a more uniform length of staple. Two men are required in machine shearing, one to furnish the power and the other to handle the clippers.

How to Tie Fleece

Tie each fleece as soon as it has been removed from the sheep. Although length and quality of fiber are the first things considered in determining the price of wool, the general appearance of the fleece is a big factor that is not overlooked.

Before the fleece is tied, remove all tags that were not clipped before shearing. The grader can tell by feeling the fleece whether it contains tags, stones or other foreign material.

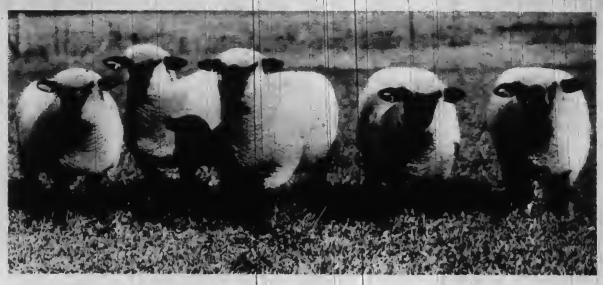
Roll the fleece carefully, with the clean, flesh side out, and with no loose ends protruding. To do this, spread the fleece on a clean floor with the outer side upward. Fold the two sides back so they will meet in the center. Then roll the fleece toward the neck as compactly as it can be done by hand. Tie carefully with paper twine, wrapping it around the fleece two or three times. This gives a neat, attractive package and prevents the mixing of fibers of different fleeces.

All tags removed that were not clipped before shearing, the grader will find his a well-tied fleece. And a better price may result.

Use Right Twine

The use of the right kind of twine in tying fleece is very important. Strands from ordinary binder twine will cling to the wool and materially impair its quality, since they are hard to remove and will not take dye. A fleece tied with binder twine is heavily discounted. It is better not to tie the fleece at all than to use this type of twine. Jute twine is as bad as binder twine.

Paper twines are on the market which fill the bill, since they are hard and smooth, and are easily dissolved by the fluids used in scouring wool.

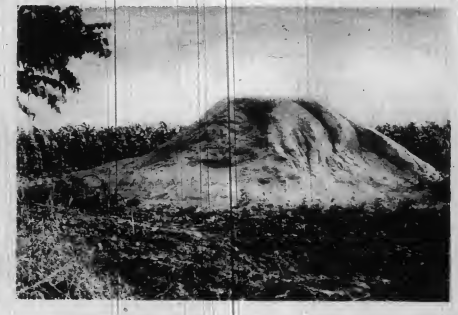


Pack Wool Tightly

In packing the wool for market use the standard-size wool sack. These sacks made of burlap, are 40 inches wide and 7 1-2 feet long. To fill a sack it may be suspended through a trap door or from a special tripod made for that purpose. Pack the wool tightly by tramping; then sew the end of the sack with twine.

It is best to pack all buck, wether, ewe, lamb, black, burry and seedy wool, tags and wool from dead sheep separately.

Buck fleeces are usually heavy with oil and yolk and have a strong, musky odor. They are not as valuable as the fleeces from ewes, pound for pound.



After the wool has been packed in sacks, do not allow it to become wet. A heavy rain on sacked wool practically ruins it.

Wool contributes its share to the Kentucky farm income. Assisting sheep raisers, the state Experiment Station produces these prize Hampshires.

Serving another purpose for perhaps a century, this old Kentucky stone fence is destined to be crushed into limestone to sweeten the land, now soured by 100 to 150 years of cropping.

Ground from three quarters of a mile of old tumbled down fence on the farm of Jonas Weil, Fayette County, Kentucky, this pile of 550 tons of limestone will help produce good alfalfa.

Old Fences Now Sweeten the Bluegrass They Guarded for Over A Century

By C. A. LEWIS

THE picturesque old stone fences of Kentucky, built for the most part by slaves in a by-gone era, are fading away, as miles of them yearly are turned into limestone to sweeten the land of the Bluegrass now soured by 100 to 150 years of cropping.

In the place of these stone fences are springing up the modern woven wire fences. While some persons complain that the passing of the old-time fences is taking with them much of the picturesqueness of the countryside, many of them are tumbling down and growing up in briers and bushes, giving the farms a forsaken look.

One thing that gave a big stimulus to grinding up the stone fences was the discovery that most of the land in the famous Bluegrass region of the central part of Kentucky needed limestone. This is naturally a limestone region, but long cropping has tended to exhaust the lime in the soil.

Needed For Alfalfa

Owners of race horse farms were among the first to discover that limestone helped bluegrass. Then farmers found that limestone was needed to produce good alfalfa.

Also, wealthy Northern and Eastern men buying huge bluegrass estates did not like the appearance of the old-fashioned tumbling down stone fences. Some land owners had them rebuilt with cement placed between the stones. More of these men had them torn out and replaced with up-to-date steel fences.

Handy For Spreading

The introduction of the portable limestone crusher made it relatively easy to move down the fence row, stopping every few rods and crushing a section of the fence. The crushed limestone thereby was placed along the end of the field in a handy manner for spreading.

In some instances, a stone fence a mile or so long is first concentrated into a huge rick, and later a limestone pile appears containing several hundred tons.

Rebuilt with cement placed between the stones, this old curved stone entrance continues its vigil on the grounds of a Kentucky estate, safe from the limestone crushers.

A few of the picturesque old rail fences, split by pioneers, are still left in the Bluegrass sections of Kentucky. This veteran land guardian now does duty around a tobacco plant bed.

GOLDEN GLOBE NASTURTIUM

YOU'LL like the fragrant nasturtium Golden Globe, new addition to the Gleam family, first named color variety of the Gem type and winner of a 1936 All-America award of merit.

Uniformly dwarf and compact, it suggests many garden uses. Its deep golden yellow has a warm and mellow appearance, making it welcome alone or in company with other colors.

Nasturtiums will grow almost anywhere, with little attention. They will respond and produce larger growths when well supplied with water. Dwarfs should be planted on poor soil as they have a tendency to run to leaves at the expense of bloom on richer soils.

A charming feature of the nasturtium is the mingling of flowers and leaves.

They make showy beds. Dwarf types are good edgings. The tall ones are really sprawling in habit, but may be easily trained to climb a trellis or wall fitted with wire or lattice work by tying the vines.

Below, the Zinnia of today, ranging from pompom to double flower nods an Easter greeting.

When removing breakable baking dishes from the oven, use dry cloth. A damp cloth is liable to crack the dish. When soaking this type of baking dish, use warm water.

In preparing dressed eggs, it is best to use eggs a day or two old as the shells can be removed much easier than from very fresh eggs.

HOME millinery project meetings are scheduled for twenty-four Kentucky counties this Spring. Last year, the popular project, directed by Miss Iris Davenport, University of Kentucky clothing specialist, resulted in new, remodeled and renovated hats in twenty-three counties valued at $6,228.50.

Hats were made to match or harmonize with dresses and suits, often at no additional cost. Old hats of fine material were reshaped.

In some counties, hat shows were given. In Boyle county, 23 women (see picture) took part in a millinery parade. A Madison county woman made or remodeled 15 hats for herself, family and neighbors.

MARGARET SULLAVAN
Pattern No. H-3126

Not too many tricks to make you tire of this sport dress after a few donnings, because this dress has lines that will make you cut a perfect "figure."

The four patch pockets carry out the deep point motif of the collar and the tricky arrangement of bakalite buttons which is amazingly intriguing and new. The wide flapping collar schemingly borrowed from little brother's sport blouse suggest a mannish line but not too extreme because it is overlayed with another collar of contrasting color which is more than fascinating and feminine hinting. A set of cuffs to match are casually turned back into wide bands. Select a color which is flattering to your personality and carry it out in a coarsely woven wool, or a summer tweed.

Pattern available in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Corresponding bust measurements 30, 32, 34, 36 and 38. Size 14 (32) requires 2¾ yards of 54-inch material, plus ⅝ yard 36-inch contrast.

TWO-PIECE FROCK
Pattern 3098

Trim, slim and anything but prim, this striking two-piece frock is perfect for day time wear in town from now on throughout the season. The unusual and seemingly intricate detail of the printed top is surprisingly simple in construction. The model pictured is made of washable rayon crepe, the navy background of the broken-circle print blouse matching the solid color of the fitted skirt. This material is easy to handle in sewing and does not pull away at the seams in wear.

Pattern designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20; 40 and 42. Corresponding bust measurements 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 14 (32) requires 2¼ yards of 39-inch fabric for the blouse and 2 yards for the skirt. Fabric: Chulla crepe (Marvlo Mills) about $1 per yard.

WITH WHITE ACCENTS
Pattern H-3136

White accents for Spring are high fashion this season and unusually smart and becoming when used on the new tailored prints. This nicely tailored shirtwaist dress achieves distinction through use of a wide under-collar and under-cuffs in white crepe, matching the square composition buttons and belt buckle.

Pattern available in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Corresponding bust measurements 30, 32, 34, and 36. Size 14 requires just 4 yards of 39-inch fabric plus 2-3 yard contrast.

Fabric: Nu-Clipper crepe (Arthur Beir) about $1 per yard.

PLAYTIME FROCK
Pattern No. H-3123

This little Miss Muffett is Betty Holt, wearing a sweet little daytime or playtime frock which you can make for your own Miss Muffett in less than a jiffy. It has just those features you always look for in little sister frocks.

There is a button trim all the way down the front, to simulate the styling of your own spring frock, but the buttons open only to the waist. If you wish, of course, you can open the frock all the way and use the buttons accordingly.

Pattern designed for sizes 2, 4, 6, 8 and 10. Size 4 requires 1⅞ yards of 35-inch fabric plus 1-3 yard contrast.

Good Irish Cobblers, one of the leading varieties, with an ancestry traced back to Peru.

Here is how approximately 80,000 pounds of broom corn looked when arranged for the first broom corn co-operative auction ever held in Tennessee. The sale was held in a tobacco warehouse at Franklin. There was no effort at grading the product.

The Potato in World History

By JOHN S. GARDNER
(Kentucky College of Agriculture)

TO FIND the first mention of the potato, one must read the annals of one Pedro de Ciezo, a Spanish adventurer, who, in 1538, led an expedition into Peru searching for Inca treasure. Whether he found gold or not is not vouchsafed, but mention is made of finding huge caches of the fore-runner of the modern potato chip, flaky material made by drying the tuberous roots of a plant with which the country abounded. To this day, Indians in the Andes, high above the zone where corn can be grown, annually store vast quantities of these dried potatoes as food for the army, for tribute to the Great Inca and against lean years.

The first potato was carried to Europe between 1580 and 1585, but by whom, nobody knows. Certain it is, it was not Sir Walter Raleigh. Equally certain, Ireland was not the first of Europe to receive the potato, but Spain. Sir Francis Drake, whom the Germans have honored with a monument as having introduced the tasty tuber to Europe, could not have done so, because neither he nor Sir Walter, nor the Virginians of their time knew the white potato. It is possible these tales were built about the sweet potato and the groundnut.

Opposed From Pulpit

From Spain, the potato migrated to Italy and in 1588 it reached the hands of Charles l'Ecluse who made a planting in the botanical gardens of Vienna. All this while, the potato struggled valiantly to become an article of diet, but against great odds. The pulpit thundered against it, because it was nowhere mentioned in the Bible, except that conceivably it was the forbidden fruit of the Garden of Eden. The botanists joined in by saying that, related to the nightshade and to tobacco, as it is, the potato must be poisonous ,too.

Marie Antoinette endeavored to give the potato royal sanction by wearing its blossoms in her hair. Frederick the Great planted potatoes in the Lustgarten at Berlin. Still later, his grandson made it a misdemeanor not to plant potatoes, the penalty being having the tip of one's nose cut off.

So keen continued the antagonism against the potato as food that finally the Potato War was fought, which the potato protagonists won. The matter thus settled, the potato became a staple article of diet in Germany. In other Northern European countries, and especially among the poor, potato popularity grew.

Exodus From Ireland

In Ireland, especially, where dependable food crops were few, the potato was received with open arms, ultimately to change the diet habits of a whole people. So dependent on this vegetable the Irish became, that when the successive crop failures of 1845, '46 occurred, over a million peasants died of starvation, and wholesale exodus of those that could leave took place. During these two years, it is estimated that almost two million Irishmen migrated to the United States, most of them settling in the state of New York to overwhelm the original Dutch influence. Thus, the potato made history.

Potato growing was begun in the United States in 1719, by a group of Irish Presbyterians who settled in what is now Londonderry, New Hampshire. They began with strains developed by European botanists from original Peruvian seed-stocks. Because of differences in climate, this imported seed behaved quite uncertainly, and new lots of seed were continuously brought over to maintain yields, until at last, in 1853, a real American variety appeared. This was the result of the work of the Rev. Chauncy E. Goodrich of Utica, New York, who, starting with seed-balls obtained from the mother country, Peru, after much selection, isolated what he called the Garnet Chili. From Garnet Chili, came the Red Rose, which has remained a popular potato. From Red Rose, came the White Rose, later popularized by Luther Burbank as the Burbank potato, improved over the first White Rose, especially with regard to freedom from disease. Mr. Burbank went further to develop a russeted Burbank, the widely publicized Idaho Baker.

This modern potato planter aids in the production of civilization's most important food.

American Potato's Godmother

From the Garnet Chile's seedlings or from crosses of its seedlings came almost the whole gamut of our American varieties, red, white and of whatever shapes, the only exceptions being those that arose from mixing Garnet Chili blood with that of the most promising European sorts. Garnet Chili was the godmother of the American potato.

As the population of the United States moved westward, so moved the potato until it reached the eastern slopes of the Rockies, where its wild relative, the Buffalo Burr thrives. For generations, this weed has served as food for an inconsequential beetle, which, learning how much more palatable the foliage of the potato was, fell upon it. A European ban was placed on American potatoes. Raising potatoes became a highly precarious proposition. After many desperate ways out of the difficulty were tried, the applying of arsenicals to the beetle-infested leaves developed, and the potato was saved to America, and, our modern agricultural pest-control methods were born. Thus, the potato had again made history.

The potato is today a world food, thanks to its almost endless climatic adaptation and to the ease with which it can be transported. In its modest way, it has influenced civilized history, filling the impressive role of civilization's most important food.

First Co-Op Broom Corn Sale

By A STAFF WRITER

THE first cooperative broom corn sale ever attempted in Tennessee, and perhaps the first of its kind in the country, was staged at a tobacco warehouse in Franklin, Tennessee, in February.

While results from the sale, judging from the approximately 80,000 pounds of broom corn offered, with 50,000 pounds sold, were not entirely satisfactory, another sale is planned next year, with the expectation that more buyers could be persuaded to attend.

No Grading Attempted

Sales averaged several mills below five cents. But as an experiment in co-operative marketing, the sale will have a good effect in the future.

The broom corn was bundled and placed in tobacco baskets. No attempt was made at grading, due to buyer's insistence, nor was the broom corn separated as to lengths. Purchases were made by bundles. There is a movement under way to grade the product in future sales, the argument being that better prices will be obtained.

Larger Crops Planted

Williamson county is one of the largest broom corn producing sections of the state. Last year, western broom corn was short, due to the drought, and Williamson farmers received around 10 to 12 cents for their broom corn. Larger crops were planted and stocks were considerably larger the first of this year.

Another large broom corn producing county is Sumner. Many growers from that county attended the Franklin auction, held under supervision of H. H. Jones, Williamson county agent. Assisting were Tom McCord, state division of markets; Guy E. Craddock, county resettlement administration supervisor, and Roy H. Milton, U. T. Extension Service marketing specialist.

"Who'll make it five cents? Five—I have. Who'll make it five and a half—five and a half—" So ran the chant of Tom McCord, Tennessee department of agriculture marketing specialist, as he cried Tennessee's first broom corn co-operative sale.

Agricultural Brevities

Prices

Livestock and livestock products brought 39 per cent better prices in 1935 than in 1934 and they were 61 per cent higher than in 1933, according to the Bureau of Agricultural Economics.

Wool was the one exception to the general trend. It was off 11 per cent last year. Outstanding gains were made in prices of hogs and cattle and calves advanced sharply in price. Beef cattle averaged $6.21 as compared with $4.16 in 1934.

Of the dairy products, butter fat showed the greatest gain, advancing from 22.7 cents per pound to 28.1 cents per pound.

The opening month of 1936 gave farmers the highest cash income for any January in five years. The January income totalled $566,000,000. Gains in income from sales of farm products this January were reported for grains, cotton, cottonseed, fruits, vegetables, meat animals, dairy products, poultry and eggs.

Grass

In all sections of the country, farmers this Spring are reseeding abandoned fields to grasses or legumes to prevent soil washing and blowing and to supply feed for livestock.

The Soil Conservation Service is assisting by testing the adaptability of many native grasses and approximately 400 grasses of foreign origin.

The Service is testing these grasses for effectiveness in erosion control, suitability to different soil types, drought resistance and handling characteristics.

Exhibits in the turkey division will include the complete story of the evolution of the turkey, from egg to grown bird, dressed and ready for the market.

The turkey show will be held in conjunction with poultry, pigeon and rabbit shows.

China

Acreage of flue-cured tobacco in China this year will probably exceed last year's, according to the Bureau of Agricultural Economics. Recent improvements in business conditions have improved the cigarette trade in China, but despite the increased cigarette business, there has been a steady decline in the proportion of American, and an increase in the proportion of Chinese flue-cured leaf used.

Increased Chinese demand for foreign cotton is in prospect according to reports from Shanghai. The Chinese crop in 1935 was about 25 per cent smaller than in 1934. Mill consumption is expected to be about the same as for 1934-35.

As the 1936 truck season gets underway, county agents are busy assisting farmers throughout the South. In this case, the extension worker inspects a field of tomatoes and lettuce, intercropped, near Castle Hayne, N. C.

India

A cotton crop of 4,752,000 bales of 478 pounds each from 25,025,000 acres is the official estimate in India for this year. This represents an increase of about 21 per cent as compared with the 1934-35 crop. The production trend in India has been upward for several years.

Indian cotton is the shortest staple in commercial use, most of the crop ranging from 3-8 to 7-8 inch. The Indian government has been trying to increase length of the average staple to make it more nearly comparable with other cottons sold in world markets. Should these efforts be successful, it will be of special interest to American growers whose cotton is largely in the 7-8 to one-inch class.

Argentina

The largest corn crop in the history of Argentina is the report from Buenos Aires. The all time record embraces an area of 18,854,000 acres—an increase of 8.6 per cent over last year. The corn area in Argentina has been increasing steadily for a number of years.

Japan

Seriously concerned over the condition of agriculture in Japan, the Japanese government has enacted measures to prevent a further fall in agricultural prices; increase the purchasing power of farmers and ease the burden of farm indebtedness.

Difficulties for Japanese farmers have steadily increased since the World War. Some of the factors accounting for the depression in Japanese agriculture are: The sharp decline in world prices; a heavy farm debt and tax burden; the fact that the average farm unit is only 2.5 acres; inability to expand further the area of land under cultivation; a rural population of about 30,000,000 people on a cultivated area of less than 15,000,000 acres; high land prices and rent, and specialization on rice and silk as chief cash crops.

Germany

Germany has adopted a program aimed at increased production of fruit in order to reduce the nation's dependence on foreign supplies, according to a report from the agricultural attache in Berlin.

The government is subsidizing fruit tree planting. A subsidy is given to growers, to the extent of 30 per cent of price of trees, who plant a minimum of ten trees. Plantings are limited to a maximum of five basic varieties for each fruit in a particular growing area.

Winter

The Winter of 1935-36 broke all time weather records in almost every part of the country. North Dakota claims the record of being the coldest state with temperatures registered at 50 degrees below zero.

In only three states—California, Nevada and Arizona—was the weather this Winter warmer than normal. Unusually heavy snowfalls occurred in the East, the North Central states and the Northern Rocky Mountain area, while the South had more rain than usual. The outlook for soil moisture and for water for irrigation is unusually favorable.

Interest Grows in Bang's Control

Cattle owners in nearly all states show increasing interest in testing their herds for Bang's disease. The U. S. Department of Agriculture's map, as of Jan. 1, 1936, shows the extent of official supervision of cattle herds in the combined efforts of the Government and State to combat the malady. The map shows that in seven states the percentage of cattle under supervision exceeds 20 per cent and in only twelve states is the proportion five per cent or less.

Production Credit Loans Aid Kentucky Livestock

By EDWY B. REID

The Moss farm is located in Barren County, one of the ten included in the area of the Mammoth Cave Association. Like the other 11 associations, which altogether serve the entire state, the Mammoth Cave organization is now entering its third season of crop and livestock financing for East Kentucky farmers.

The Moss farm consists of 150 acres devoted to general farming and dairying. An ice-cream company in the nearby town of Glasgow uses the whole milk from the dairy cattle.

Mr. Moss generally raises about 20 head of hogs for sale and, in addition, eight or ten for family and tenant use. A small flock of ewes is kept to graze off the wasteland and consume roughage on the farm. Lespedeza is the main grazing and hay crop. Usually, some 30 acres are planted in corn and a yield of over 50 bushels an acre is not uncommon. In season, as many as eight to ten acres of soy beans, standing waist high, will also be seen on the Moss farm.

Repayment of the production credit loan, for which the dairy herd offered security, was provided by setting aside a portion of milk checks each month and by cash returns from tobacco crops.

FARM RECORD BOOKS AID COUNTY PLANS

Farm income gains, credit statements and estimates of income, are among advantages gained through application of farm management policies in Tennessee, examination of reports by the U. T. Extension Service shows.

Results of Farm Inventory Week are being tabulated. Farmers attended community meetings; were given instructions in preparing inventories covering the past year's operations.

Farm record books kept by hundreds of farmers are being analyzed. Data will be incorporated in county planning programs.

The farm management section, directed by J. H. McLeod, has figures covering from 1932 to the first of this year, showing the gross farm income jumped 43 per cent.

At the depth of the depression, the state's gross farm income was $105,000,000. At the end of 1935, it had climbed to $150,000,000. The number of farmers gained from 245,000 to 273,000.

"Book Learnin'" Practices Pay Kentucky Poultrymen

By CARL CAMENISCH

MONEY can be made from a flock of chickens if the project is managed right. This is proved by Grant Maddox, Florence, Boone county, Kentucky. Mr. Maddox has one of the outstanding Single Comb Rhode Island Red Flocks in the entire state.

Mr. Maddox was graduated from the College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky in the Spring of 1929. He was an honor student and everything he did was done well.

After graduation he was offered a number of positions, but he did not accept any of them for the simple reason that nothing looked as good to him as his home farm run on the agricultural theory and science that he had learned in school. If the theory or "book-learnin'" that is taught in the University is applied to practice, the returns are usually a thousand fold.

Inexpensive Equipment

When Mr. Maddox went back to the farm, he started culling and trap nesting the flock, which happened to be just another ordinary farm flock. As shown in the picture accompanying this article, the equipment is very inexpensive and practical. He started out with about 100 birds, now he has around 900 birds in the flock. This is a little larger than the common run of farm flocks, but if the same principles are used, the results will be the same.

The last inventory year ran from Nov. 1, 1934 through Sept. 30, 1935. The total income for that period equalled the inventory value, which is something that rarely happens. During the year, Mr. Maddox had 588 hens which laid 178 eggs per hen. The average income above feed costs per hen was $1.87.

Low Mortality Rate

October 1 was the beginning of this inventory year and since that time through January 31, his 870 hens averaged 44.62 eggs for these four Winter months, which is more than half as many as the number of eggs many farm flocks lay during the course of a year. For the month of January, Mr. Maddox sold 945 dozen eggs.

So far, his hens have netted him more than $1.00 per hen. During these four months he lost only 1 1-2 per cent of his birds. This is a very low mortality rate for such high egg production. This also proves that high egg production can be obtained without losing very many hens.

Incidentally, he keeps a close check on diseased and sick birds. During the month of January, he tested 934 birds for pullorum (BWD) and there was not a single reactor. Keeping a flock of chickens healthy, means greater efficiency per bird and that, poultry experts agree, is what counts in the long run.

Dual Purpose Breed

When he first started to build up this flock, he knew that a dual purpose breed would be the most profitable, because he could sell broilers as well as fryers and eggs on the Cincinnati market. So he chose Single Comb Rhode Island Reds.

At first, he delivered everything in Cincinnati. Now, the customers come to the Maddox farm. Some of them, on frequent occasions, wait two and three hours to give the hens time to lay eggs so that their orders might be filled. He receives three cents extra for eggs over 25 ounces to the dozen besides the premium for fresh eggs.

Mr. Maddox's success in building up this outstanding Record of Performance flock of Rhode Island Reds may be attributed to his close culling, constant care, watching feed costs and—probably the most important is putting his college theory into practice.

Championships a Habit with this Tennesseean

Realizing the vital necessity of livestock to Tennessee agriculture, H. F. "Buck" Brannan, Belvidere, Tennessee, (above), is taking the leadership in building quality beef cattle herds.

Eight years in a row, he's taken a championship home from the International Livestock Exposition in Chicago.

And what's more, Mr. Brannan plans to keep on producing champions—and retaining Tennessee's place on the world livestock map.

At the right are Silver Bracelet and Lady Fragrance 21st, undefeated pair of Polled Short-horn females of 1935, bred and owned by H. D. Brannan and son.

H. F. "Buck" Brannan, Elm Grove Farm, Franklin County, Belvidere, Tennessee, is a breeder of Polled Short-horns.

He shipped to New Zealand, on Jan. 8 of this year, what is said to be the most valuable animal ever to be exported from the United States—"Silver Bracelet," Grand Champion Polled Short-horn female International Livestock Exposition at Chicago in 1935.

Five others of the same herd were shipped to Australia in January.

Mr. Brannan has never missed getting a championship at the International in eight consecutive years. President Roosevelt's farm at Warm Springs, Georgia, has used one of his bulls for several years.

PLANNING COMMISSION MAKES FIRST REPORT

Recommendation that more than 2,000,000 acres of Tennessee land be retired from cultivation, and given over to reforestation, extensive grazing and other purposes, is made in a preliminary report of the Tennessee Planning Commission. The recommended withdrawal of acres represents 12.2 per cent of all farms in Tennessee, and 11.11 per cent of the total acreage of farms.

FEEDING THE BABY CHICKS

FEED for the first week of the chick's life should consist of sweet or sour skim milk or butter milk and chick grain, advises the Kentucky College of Agriculture poultry department.

Any good commercial chick grain may be used, or a grain mixture made of equal parts by weight of finely cracked corn, cracked wheat and steel-cut or rolled oats.

Feed the grain mixture five times daily, but only the amount the chicks will clean up in 15 minutes. Keep milk before the chicks at all times.

The second week, continue feeding the same grain mixture, but feed only three times daily and begin feeding a dry mash.

Formulas Given

Any good commercial chick mash may be used, or a home-made mixture made as follows: 100 pounds of each bran, shorts and ground yellow corn. 40 pounds of each meat scrap and dried butter milk, 20 pounds of raw or steamed bonemeal, 4 pounds of salt.

Another formula is 100 pounds each of bran, shorts and ground yellow corn, 50 pounds of meat scrap, 10 pounds of dried butter milk, 20 pounds of raw or steamed bonemeal, 3 pounds of salt.

If a large number of chicks are to be raised and no milk is available, use the first formula.

Mash may be fed at first in small pans or boxes, three times daily, and only the amount the chicks will clean up in about 30 minutes. Continue to give them all the milk or water they will drink. If the chicks are given all the milk they will consume, use the second ration. Allow at least one inch of mash hopper space for each chick. This will prevent crowding around feeders. Eight two-quart water containers should be furnished for each brooder of 300 chicks.

Plenty of Milk

From the third to the twelfth week continue the grain feeding, changing to a coarser grain mixture about the seventh week. By the twelfth week, chicks will be able to eat the same grain that is fed to laying hens, except it is best to crush or crack the corn. Keep the mash always before them in a self-feeder or hopper. Continue to give them all the milk they will drink.

TENNESSEE FFA USE CO-OP INCUBATOR

An 18,000 capacity chicken incubator is being used cooperatively by Future Farmers of Putnam county, Tennessee, and P. C. McCanless, Cookeville grain dealer.

The first hatch out in December, the project will continue until June. The object of the projects was to interest Putnam farmers in producing better grade chickens. It requires 6,000 hens to furnish eggs for the incubator. At present, one third of the incubator's capacity is set each week, this system permitting weekly hatches of one third capacity.

David Terry and W. B. Follis, vocational agriculture teachers in the county high school at Cookeville, are supervising the Future Farmers' part of the project.

MEMORIAL SERVICES

HELD AT COURT HOUSE IN HONOR OF THE LATE BENJAMIN H. RILEY, COUNTY ATTORNEY FOR MANY YEARS.

At a meeting of the Coone County Bar held in the Circuit Court Room Monday April 13th, 1936, Judge J. G. Vallandingham was elected Chairman and Circuit Clerk A. D. Yelton, Clerk. On motion of O. M. Rogers seconded by D. E. Castleman and carried, Judge Sidney Gaines, John L. Vest and N. E. Riddell were appointed a committee to draft resolutions on the death of B. H. Riley, who was a practicing attorney and County Attorney at this bar for more than 20 years.

The committee to report at a meeting of the bar to be held Friday, April 17th, 1936. They reported as follows:

Benjamin H. Riley, a member of the Boone County Bar, died at his home near Union March 4th, 1936. He was born near Scotts Post Office, Kenton County, Kentucky, May 22nd, 1889. He was educated in the Covington schools, later attending the Y. M. C. A. Law School in Cincinnati and earned his funds for the expense of this legal education. He came to Burlington August, 1915 and began the practice of his chosen profession in partnership with Edgar C. Riley. He enlisted in the World War but was rejected, thereafter was enlisted during the draft and was honorably discharged at the end of the war. He then began the practice. He was appointed County Attorney by N. E. Riddell, County Judge, March 17th, 1919, and held that office continuously until his death. He married Miss Alma Blankenbeker May 19th, 1923, and to that union one son was born, Ben Al. He is survived by his widow, son and mother, 75.

He was an honest, energetic and faithful County official and the duties of that office were performed by him with credit to the county. He was at all times ready and willing to assist in the upbuilding and betterment of his county and mankind in general. He was an able lawyer and given thought and consideration to the question. His last work as an attorney was the writing of a brief to be filed in the Court of Appeals, this brief was in his own handwriting, was typewritten and filed in that Court after his death. The Bar and this County has lost an outstanding citizen and lawyer. He lived a life not only in his profession, but generally, that one can point to with pride and satisfaction. He was ever alert to look to the interest of the County and his clients.

Such men as Ben H. Riley are a credit to the Bar of Kentucky and it is with regret that in our feeble way we must pay respect to one who in the prime of life was called to the heavenly bar from which there is no appeal. We extend to his wife, son and mother our sympathy. He is gone from us but not forgotten and we cherish in our memory his qualities of good fellowship, integrity, and loyalty to clients, and his fidelity to the Bar as a whole.

The report was adopted and together with the minutes of the meeting of the Bar were directed to be recorded on the Order Book of this Court and a copy thereof sent to Alma B. Riley, his widow, and to Mrs. Carrie Riley, his mother.

Signed:
SIDNEY GAINES
JOHN . VEST

HOME BEING REMODELED

The old Roger's homestead just north of the court house, which was recently purchased by A. B. Renaker, is now being remodeled and modernized by Mr. Renaker. This is one of the oldest houses in Burlington but when fully remodeled it will undoubtedly add to the attractiveness of the town.

Mr. Harold Garrison and Miss Libby Holbrook will represent Burlington High School Friday afternoon at Fort Thomas, Ky. They will also sing at Hebron at a recital Monday afternoon.

A. B. Renaker attended the funeral of Dr. Price at Sherman, Sunday afternoon.

Mr. Wallace Green still remains very ill.

OWEN PRESSER SUCCUMBS

HEART ATTACK IS FATAL TO AGED MAN—SURVIVED BY WIDOW.

Owen Presser, aged 73 years, passed away Friday morning of a heart attack at his home, in the Grange Hall neighborhood.

The remains were taken to the Taliaferro Funeral Home for preparation. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Lula Presser, one son, Cecil Presser, a brother. Perry Presser, and one sister, Mrs. Varenna Rice, besides a host of other relatives and friends.

Funeral services were conducted at the Big Bone Baptist church Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, interment following in the nearby cemetery.

The pallbearers were Kenneth Aylor, Harry Rouse, Arch Rouse, Huey Ryle, Russell Garrison and James Aylor.

Funeral Director Philip Taliaferro had charge of the funeral arrangements.

WINS STATE SPELLING BEE

HAD PERFECT WRITTEN PAPER AND SPELLED PERFECTLY IN ORAL CONTEST FOR FOR THREE HOURS

As winner of The Courier-Journal State Spelling Bee, held as a feature of the Kentucky Education Association convention in Louisville, Kathleen Koger, 11, Parmleysville, Wayne County. will go to Washington compete Tuesday, May 26, in the National Spelling Bee. Kathleen was the smallest of the approximately 100 city and county champions who took a fifty-word written test held during a morning session. She handed in a perfect paper and then spelled perfectly for three hours during an oral match in the afternoon, while forty-three opponents who made the highest grades in a written test were falling by the wayside. Kathleen, seventh-grade pupil, has selected her coach and mother, Mrs. Willie Koger, as her chaperon for the Washington trip. Thirty-six other spellers received awards from The Courier-Journal, ranging from $100 to $5.

SAFETY-FIRST NEWS

The Auto Brake Company is now located in their new quarters, 107-109 East Second Street, near the Suspension Bridge, Covington, Ky. They have spared no expense in installing the latest type of factory equipment for the testing, repairing, and re-lining of automobile brakes.

It is good advice to all motorists to avail themselves to the free testing devices, especially the Factory Four-wheel tester, which is operated by trained brake mechanics. The motto of this firm is "Save a Neck, maybe your own," carries plenty food for thought.

DISTRICT MEET OF HOMEMAKERS

BIG SUCCESS. SEVERAL COUNTY LADIES ATTEND

A district meeting of the Kentucky Federation of Homemakers was held at the Bryan Station school house at Lexington, Saturday, April 18. The program was most interesting and the principal speaker was Mrs. Evelyn Tobey, a designer and student from New York. She spoke in the morning on "Its Thrifty to be Smart" and again in the afternoon "Its Smart to be Thrifty."

Several women from Boone county attended the meeting. Mrs. Mattie M. Hamilton, Mrs. Walter Renaker, Miss Lillian Harris, Mrs. Joe Berkshire, Mrs. C. F. Blankenbeker, Mrs. J. S. Morgan, Miss Anna Mae Cleek, Mrs. D. Hess Vest and Mrs. John E. Vest.

BAKERY SALE

There will be a Bakery Sale given by the Ladies Aid Society of the Florence Methodist church at Anten's Food Store in Florence, Saturday, April 27th.

This society is certainly doing everything possible for the benefit of their church and should have the support of everyone interested in the promotion of Christian education.

This is not the first sale of this kind that the Society have sponsored, as they have a sale of this kind almost every week.

Mr. Ben Anten, the grocerman at Florence, has cooperated with this society by giving them space each week on his circulars that are passed out throughout this community, and also by granting them permission to hold this sale at his store. If you are not sure of the sale each week, watch for Anten's circulars and if there is a sale it will be announced on his circular, which are passed out Thursday of each week.

CONSTANCE LADY DIES

MABEL ELNORE CASELDINE, LIFELONG RESIDENT OF CONSTANCE, PASSES AWAY AT YOUNG AGE.

Mabel Elmore Caseldine, daughter of John Lewis and Nora Jane Hawkins, born May 31, 1908 and departed this life April 14, 1936, age 27 years, 10 months and 13 days. She was born in Constance neighborhood and has spent her entire life among her beloved ones there.

On December 22, 1929, she was united in full fellowship with the church of the Brethren and since that time has given her untiring service to the work of the Lord. Mabel's joy in life, her wit and humor and a very agreeable disposition has won her unlimited friends who she leaves now to mourn her passing. She also leaves her devoted husband, William Caseldine, two daughters, Joan Louise and Marion Rose, her father, mother, two brothers and three sisters.

Funeral services were held at her church after which her remains were removed to the Constance cemetery for burial.

We, and many friends and relatives take this opportunity to extend to her sorrowed family our sympathy.

DEMOCRATS TO SPONSOR DANCE

AT STEVIE'S CLUBHOUSE ON MAY 29TH — JUSTIN HUBER AND ORCHESTRA TO FURNISH MUSIC

In announcing plans for a second dance for members of the Boone County Young Men's Democratic Club and their friends at Stevie's Clubhouse, Ft. Michell, May 29th, the entertainment committee wishes to inform that numerous requests from those interested in the advancement of the organization, for another dance is the primary reason for the occasion.

Music for the event will be furnished by Justin Huber and his ten piece orchestra and an eight-act floor show will be added as special attraction.

A similar evening of entertainment was sponsored by the Young Democrats some weeks ago and was a great success from every standpoint and those present are requesting a second dance.

MENINGITIS PROVES FATAL

TO VERONA YOUTH—SUCCUMBS AFTER ARRIVAL AT HOSPITAL

Irvin Brewster, five year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Brewster, Verona, died at St. Elizabeth Hospital, Covington, Sunday night, of cerebral spinal meningitis, an hour after his arrival.

According to reports the youth was injured last Thursday while playing with other boys. Saturday he became ill and his condition growing serious Sunday, he was removed to the hospital. He was sent to the hospital by Dr. J. L. McCormac, Verona, who diagnosed the case as meningitis. M. L. Swetnam Sons Company, Covington, were in charge of funeral arrangements.

CARD PARTY

There will be a card party consisting of Euchre, Lotto, 500, and Bridge given by the Ladies Club of the St. Paul Parish, Monday, April 27th at 2:30 p. m. This entertainment will be held at the church building in Florence, and everyone is cordially invited to attend.

Reserve Seat tickets for SCARECROW CREEPS, Burlington Senior play, are on sale at Poole's Barber Shop.

May Day--Child Health Day

"Health and Security for Every Child" is to be the central theme of the 1936 celebration of May Day —Child Health Day, the objective of which is the consideration, in each State and community, of measures for maternal and child health and for child welfare under the Social Security Act.

"At the request of the Conference of State and Provincial Health Authorities of North America, the May Day program sponsored in former years by the recently dissolved American Child Health Association, was," says Dr. Juanita Mch. Jennings, May Day Chairman for Kentucky, "be organized this year by the Children's Bureau of the United States Department of Labor, in cooperation with other federal agencies.

"Leadership in the States will be under the auspices of the State and local health officers, with organizations and agencies concerned with child health and child welfare participating in the program.

"The May Day—Child Health Day program this year will furnish an opportunity for each community to determine the needs of its own mothers and children, to consider the local agencies available to give maternal and child health and welfare services, and to canvass the local funds required for the extension of such services.

"The May Day program in Kentucky will, in many counties, be developed around the awarding of the Kentucky Blue Ribbon of Health to eligible children. Approximately 45,000 children will receive the Kentucky Blue Ribbon.

DOUGLAS RICE PASSES AWAY

AT HIS HOME IN AURORA—FUNERAL SERVICE TO BE HELD THURSDAY AT BELLEVIEW

Stephen A. Douglas Rice passed away at his home in Aurora, Ind., Tuesday, April 21, at the age of 71 years, 8 months and 8 days. He had been in failing health for some time.

Mr. Rice was married to Pearl Clore early in life and to this union five children were born, two daughters dying in infancy; one daughter, Mrs. Carrie Huntginger, of Florida; two sons, Shelby, of Indianapolis and Pearly, of Grant. This union was broken in 1910 when Mrs. Rice died, however, several years later Mr. Rice married Vivinda Hueitt, who also survives him besides three brothers Robert, of Grant; William, North Manchester, Ind., and Ezekeiel, Grant, two sisters, Agnes Spacy, North Manchester, Ind., and Susie Moon, Peru, Ind., three grandchildren, and many neices and nephews.

Funeral services will be held at the Belleview Baptist church on Thursday (today) at 2:00 p. m.

APRIL COURT

GOES INTO SECOND WEEK

As the Judge raps for order in the second week of Boone Circuit Court, after dismissal since Friday of last week, we find the streets of the county seat still crowded with busy people. Although many report that April Court is not what it used to be back in the "good old days," yet this session of court has been well attended and large crowds have been in this town every day since the beginning of court.

The members of the Grand Jury were in session beginning Monday, April 6th. Those called to serve on this jury were as follows, namely: John Connelley, Foreman, Lou Williamson, Mike Dye, Harvey Baker, Bernard Rogers, J. T. Whitaker, Wm. Snyder, L. Clifford Tanner, Bert Jones, L. W. Scott, Charlie Bachelor and J. G. Hubbard. Those called to serve on Petit juries were as follows: Petit Jury No. 1—Albert Willis, Frank McGlasson Ell Williams, E. B. McClure, Homer Osborne, T. C. Bonar, C. P. Gripsmore, T. W. Hubbard, J. Bud Smith, Orville Kelly, J. W. Berkshire and E. H. Clore. Petit Jury No. 2—August Trapp, H. A. English, R. S. Hensley, John Snelling, Clem Kendall, R. L. Anderson, Jonas Stevans, Marvin Gaines, Earl Smith, Tom Huff, A. L. Gripsmore and J. J. Maurer.

With the recently appointed County Attorney, Judge Sidney Gaines, on duty, we find the following reports:

IN THE CASE OF:

Mrs. Dora Fields, Plaintiff vs. Herbert Hughes, defendant. Hughes was charged with striking Mrs. Fields while driving his car through the town of Walton, Ky., and inflicting bodily injuries therefrom. The jury heard the evidence in the case and a verdict was rendered in favor of Mrs. Fields to the amount of $10,000 for damages. Herbert Hughes was a non-resident.

Commonwealth of Kentucky, Plaintiff vs. O. W. Gray, defendant. Gray was charged with uttering a forged check and was found guilty and sentenced to two years in the State Prison.

Commonwealth of Kentucky, Plaintiff vs. Ezra Beech, defendant. Beech was charged with stealing an automobile. The jury heard the evidence in the case and were unable to agree, therefore no verdict was rendered. The case was dismissed for further consideration.

Admx. of A. L. Acra Estate, Plaintiff vs. Ambrose Easton, defendant. Easton was sued for damages inflicted while driving car that struck Acra. The jury heard the evidence in the case and were unable to agree. Grounds were given for a new trial and jury which will come to hand at a later date.

City of Walton, Ky., Plaintiff vs. R. A. Thornton, defendant. Thornton was charged with selling intoxicating drinks not in accordance with the ordinance of the City of Walton. Jury heard evidence and failed to agree. Case dismissed.

These are the highlights of the court news up to this writing as reported by Boone Circuit Court Clerk, A. D. Yelton. Although there are several cases to come before the Court yet, it is expected that this week will bring it to a close.

GREYHOUND RACE TRACKS

ADVOCATED BY GALLATIN CO. REPRESENTATIVE — REVENUE WOULD REACH $500,000.

Frankfort, April 22—Greyhound race tracks will pay almost enough taxes to the state to replace the state tax on real estate, Representative Harry Records, Gallatin county, estimated here today. Records, a farmer and country banker, is author of a dog track tax bill that is on its way through the General Assembly.

Revenue from greyhound race tracks, Records said, will be about $500,000 a year, only a little less than the $600,000 formerly received from the five-cent tax on land. Governor Chandler has asked the legislature to pass new revenue laws to balance the budget, making up what the state lost when the realty tax and sales tax were repealed.

The Records bill calls for taxes on both the pari-mutual betting and entrance tickets at dog race tracks. Stringent enforcement features are designed both to protect the patrons of the tracks and to guarantee that the state received the full amount due it.

Records and a group of associates in the House voted against the tobacco tax bill in the House last week. He advanced the dog track bill as a substitute method to raise part of the money needed to balance the budget. Several leaders of the so-called "farm bloc" in the House are associated with him in backing the dog track bill.

"Racing is a sport that can only make money near large cities," Records said. "The city counties like Jefferson (Louisville) and Kenton (Covington) will be the ones to have the tracks. The local option feature of the dog track bill probably will mean that very few rural counties will have racing. Putting dog tracks under the law, so that the cities can have them, will keep tracks from coming into the state without paying taxes, like they did a few years ago at Erlanger, near Covington. It will stop Kentucky money being carried to tracks in other states, like it is at the dog track in Indiana across the river from Louisville."

The dog track bill was introduced during the regular session, last January, and had a majority when it reached the floor, but was killed by parliamentary tactics. Gaining support since because of unpopularity of several of the taxes that have been offered as budget-balancing schemes, the dog track bill is now certain of passage, legislative leaders believe. It will be sponsored in the Senate by Senator John T. Murphy, Covington.

RURAL HIGHWAY COMMISSIONER

APPOINTMENT BY GOVERNOR A. B. CHANDLER—APPOINTMENT BECOMES EFFECTIVE MAY 1.

Frankfort, Ky., April 22.—Cecil Williams, Somerset editor and former member of the Democratic State Central and Executive Committee from the Ninth District, was named as Commissioner of Rural Highways today, by Governor A. B. Chandler, the appointment to become effective May 1st.

Mr. Williams' department will be under the direct supervision of the State Highway Commissioner, who with nine advisers will operate the state road department as provided in the administration's new reorganization bill.

The department of rural highways will have complete supervision of all agreements made between the state road department and county officials relating to the use of convict labor in road construction. The department will also have supervision of the expenditure of approximately $2,000,000 annually on county market roads which are to be constructed as a portion of the program outlined by the Chandler administration.

Mr. Williams' office will be attached to the central offices of the highway department located here. His staff of assistants, clerks and stenographers will be provided by the Highway Commission.

THE GROWING ROAD BILL

The exceedingly hard winter through which we have passed, makes the spring thaws doubly welcome. But they bring with them a relatively new problem—that of repairing, at public expense, our roads and highways. Spring has always necessitated a certain amount of road work—more and more is required each year because, according to experts, of the exceptional wear and tear caused by increasing motor traffic.

Twenty years ago only 215,000 trucks were registered in the entire nation. In 1934, there were 3,500,000, and each year witnesses enlargement of the motor army. The trucks fill a certain transport need, and they are here to stay—but it is a fact that their extremely rapid growth was largely due to their being in an artificially advantageous position in competing with the railroads in handling merchandise freight.

Railroads have to acquire, build, maintain and pay heavy taxes on their right of way. Trucks use highways built and maintained at public expense, they contribute to their upkeep, in a measure, through registration fees, gasoline taxes and in some states other kinds of taxes—but it cannot be questioned that the public through general taxes, builds and maintains the highways that enable the trucks to operate.

As a result, there is growing sentiment in this country to make trucks pay the increased road upkeep that results from their steady pounding. Just how this can be done has not been determined—but the sad condition of thousands of miles of road this spring is bringing the problem to public attention with more than ordinary forcefulness.

DEATH AND LIFE

A writer on life insurance once said: "The primary expenditures of a life insurance company are the payment of death claims and the payment of matured policies during the old age of the policyholders. Thus the contingencies against which the company insures are death and time. Death and time—these are the fundamental factors of existence...."

That is a somore thought, but it is inescapable. There is always the chance that we will die, leaving dependents who are unfitted by experience or are too hold to support themselves. And there is always the chance that we will live beyond the age of good earning power and find that our savings and investments have vanished or become greatly depleted from one cause or another. The purpose of life insurance is to assure our dependents a livelihood if we die—and to assure a comfortable and economically independent old age if we live. We cannot do away with death and time—but we can protect ourselves against some of their most unfortunate consequences.

JEST A-WHITTLIN' AN' A-THINKIN'

By Pete Gettys

A State Farmer Section Feature

In this awful and purty world of ours there are more than 700,000 kinds of insects that have been named and told about, and now ones turn up every now and then. In North America there are 50,000 kinds—6,500 being plain destructive all the time. And most of us on the farm believe every one of them 50,000 and all their grandchildren are on our own places.

Some scientists believe some day insects will destroy us all. Guess most of us know something about being kicked to death by the grasshoppers of little debts, and eaten up by the boll weevils of the depression.

Most of us can recollect when cotton seed was thrown away—used for washes and filling up gullies. Now look what has been learned about them—making meal and oil and butter and most everything else—and some of the Agricultural Experiment Stations recommend cotton seed hulls for making hen nests. Eggs laid on hulls even hatched a little better than eggs laid and hatched on straw nests—and we fellers in the country used to think cotton seed hulls was no good for nests 'cause the oils in the hulls gets on eggs—and they are even making eggs hatch and the rooster may be over in the next county and never did even see the hens. That's something your granumaw didn't dream of.

If a feller just knew enough he could save his poor old tired legs and aching back a lot of misery. Here comes the Department of Agriculture and says: "If weed control in potatoes is not a major problem, the extra work of more than one good, deep cultivation probably will not pay. In a 3-year test one cultivation potatoes yield slightly more on the average than potatoes cultivated five times. In both cases there was a light cultivation 2 weeks after the potatoes were planted and before they were up. The potatoes cultivated five times were ridged moderately. Both plots were hand hoed once to kill weeds. When cultivation is necessary, to control weeds, it should be shallow. Deep cultivation prunes the potato roots and the freshly tilled soil loses moisture'.'

But the trick in that is "if weed control is not a major problem"—like telling a feller to plow his corn only enough to control the weeds. "Only enough"—but if he does cultivate enough to keep 'em down he'll be plowin' about every other day.

Now along comes Pennsylvania and establishes a sanctuary for hawks. Pennsylvania, perhaps, leads all other states in game and wild life protection. Knox county, Tenn., through the influence of the Izaac Walton League, pays a bounty on certain of our hawks—which means a dead hawk—a good one or a bad one—for every opportunity to kill it—for how many gunners know the kinds of hawks when they see 'em? A bounty on stray cats would be more beneficial.

Last spring all farmer members of a Southern church agreed to plant an acre of some crop to go toward church expenses. Many of 'em planted cotton. The government's request to plow under 50 per cent of the cotton brought on a problem. Was it right or wrong to destroy the cotton on "God's acre," as it was called? The congregation finally voted half the cotton of each of "God's acres" should be plowed under, on the declaration that "what will help the country will also help the people." Mighty easy for most of us to divert the Lord's share, ain't it?

Some people's idea of moving rubbish is to wait until the wind blows it over into their neighbor's yard.

What Irvin S. Cobb thinks about:

SANTA MONICA, CALIF.—Maybe the English have the right idea. The Reds spout as they please—so long as they stay off the radio and take it out in spouting.

There's a story in point: In Hyde Park where the crackpots and clack-jaws speak their pieces, an impassioned radical is in full eruption. Being a hater of kings, he would drive the royal family forth and set fire to their official London residence. A heckler quarrels with the orator; the crowd joins in, about equally divided, trouble impends. A large calm policeman plows through the jam.

Irvin S. Cobb

"'Ere, now!" he commands. "All them as is going to burn down Buckingham palace form on this side, please. All them as is not going to burn down Buckingham palace kindly form on that side."

When you start people laughing at an agitator you've killed him colder than though you used an ax. I wish we'd club in and laugh some of our half-baked Communists to death. But for desperate cases we might keep an ax or two handy.

Rise of Landon Boom.

AS ONE state delegation after another swings toward Landon, his campaign managers are as optimistic as a seed catalogue. To be sure, taking the first heat doesn't necessarily mean your nag will win the county trophies, but it certainly does cheer up the stable-hands—and sometimes starts a stampede for front seats in the grandstand.

For once in G. O. P. history the rank and file shun a brother from the Atlantic seaboard as though he were a pesthouse.

At the ensuing convention it looks as though all the easterners will get will be the seconding-the-motion concession.

And yet I can remember when, if you called a fellow a Wall Street Republican, you didn't have to smile as you said it.

War Debt Specters.

FIVE and a half million European troops are drilling and seven million more are practically ready for service, more by one million and a half than there were in 1914, when the last big mess broke out.

Those Americans who are being grievously taxed because the powers won't pay back what they have owed us since the armistice for refinancing and rehabilitating their own lands—and that, one way or another, includes every living soul in this country—are invited to save up these statistics for use next time they meet one of those gentle souls who'd cancel these mounting foreign debts. Not war debts, mind you, but peace-time debts.

So let's call them by their right name as we sing: "I didn't raise my dough to arm a soldier but by golly that's what happened to it."

Idlers on Relief.

AT LAST we know wherein the League of Nations really functions. It keeps a good set of statistics. It says that in the world are 24,000,000 unemployed, and of this total more than half are in the United States. Since we are spending more government funds to aid the idle than any country, can it be there are persons among us who prefer staying on relief projects to taking regular jobs?

Next time I pass a public works undertaking I'm going to put the question to some able-bodied party who, if he's following the frequent custom, will be whiling away the hours between meals by gently fanning himself with a shovel.

A pick handle, as I've often observed on one road-digging operation that's being financed by Uncle Sam, comes in handy for leaning purposes, but the shovel is preferable for fanning.

Kentucky Colonel.

OUT here they've found a mail-order theological mill which, for $10, ordains you to preach, christen, marry, bury, and—oh, goodie—take up collections. Mickey Mouse lately lost his commission as a Kentucky colonel, but on behalf of Joe Penner's duck somebody wrote in and he became the Rev. Drake Googoo, D. D. Thus are honors balanced in this world.

Recently, when the present bumper crop of Kentucky colonels was plowed under, we natives stayed calm. Nobody takes away our titles—we were born with 'em. In my youth, anybody good at guessing the weight of hogs was called "Judge," and a man who cured warts with stump water was "Doctor," and all the rest of us automatically were colonels, except one chap who was a major on account of having so many major operations. Poor fellow, he died before he attained his life's ambition. He wanted to run somebody's general store and be a general.

Lesson for April 26

JESUS LOOKS AT WEALTH AND POVERTY

LESSON TEXT—Luke 16:19-31.

GOLDEN TEXT—The rich and poor meet together: the Lord is the maker of them all.—Proverbs 22:2.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus' Story of a Beggar Man.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Which Was the Rich Man?

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What Money Cannot Buy.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—How Can We Make Our Social Order Christian?

The topic as given by the Lesson committee is hardly a fair statement. The supreme message is the presentation of contrasted lives and destinies as expressed through the accidents of wealth and poverty. Lazarus was not entitled to heaven because he was poor, neither did the rich man reach the place of torment because he was rich. In this lesson two worlds are unveiled before us, disclosing extremes of character and conditions of persons. In this world we see a rich man reveling in luxury and a poor man in sore affliction begging at the rich man's gate. In the other world we see the same men in reversed positions. These lives were intended to be representive.

I. The Contrasted Lives (vv. 19-21).

1. The rich man (v. 19). He seems to have lived in a mansion secluded from the common people. He was clothed in costly raiment. He was served the richest food that could be provided. His sin was selfishly to indulge his appetites without consideration for others.

2. The beggar (vv. 20, 21). He was laid at the rich man's gate with the hope of getting at least the crumbs from his table. The rich man gave him no consideration. The dogs of the street were more kind to him than the rich man. Though destitute and helpless, the man's name is most suggestive. "Lazarus" means "God is a help," indicating that a godly life shone through his poverty. Worldly condition is not a sure test of a man's position in the sight of God. All rich men are not wicked and selfish, neither are all poor men godly.

II. Their Contrasted Deaths and Burials (v. 22).

1. The beggar. He was found dead and his body was hurried off to a pauper's grave. No notice was taken of his death by the world. Doubtless the only loss to the world was that he was no longer to be seen at the rich man's gate.

2. The rich man. He also died. His gold could not bribe the messenger of death. Doubtless a costly funeral was held, attended by those who moved in his social class, the officiating priest pronouncing great eulogies over him.

III. Their Contrasted Destinies (v. 23).

1. The beggar. He was at once carried by the angels into Abraham's bosom. Te souls of believers are especially cared for at the hour of death (Phil. 1:23). They go immediately to be with the Lord.

2. The rich man. Though he had an elaborate burial, he lifted up his eyes in hell being in torment. When the veil of futurity is lifted, we see the positions of these men are reversed. The poor man is in the company of just men made perfect because of his life of godliness on the earth, and the rich man is stripped of his purple and fine linen and cast into hell with all wicked men, because while on earth he lived only for selfish ends.

IV. The Reality and Fixedness of Life Beyond the Grave (vv. 24-31).

1. The cry for mercy (v. 24). Dives, which is the Latin name for "rich man," was now willing to claim relationship to Abraham. He was keenly conscious and the appetites which controlled him while on earth were still with him. Part of the torment of hell will be the cravings of appetite and lust with no means of their gratification.

2. Abraham's reply (v. 25). This reply cast the matter back upon the man's memory. He said, "Son, remember." The lashings of a guilty conscience will be most real in hell.

3. Their fixedness. Human destinies are fixed during this life. When one passes out of this life he enters into a condition unchangeable.

4. God's Word is the all-sufficient light (vv. 27-31). Dives now requested that Lazarus go on an errand of mercy to his brethren. He regarded the testimony of a spirit of more value than the Word of God. Many today are more willing to trust the rappings of a ghost than the sure Word of God. Abraham declared that God's Word is sufficient, that those who rejected Moses and the prophets would not repent though visited by one who had risen from the dead.

HEBRON NORBEH CHAMPION 4-H CLUB HOLDS MEETING

The Hebron Norbeh Champion 4-H Club held their regular monthly meeting Monday, April 20, 1936, with a total of 36 members present.

The President called the meeting to order by having the Pro-Temps Secretary, Evelyn Kilgour, call the roll and read the minutes of the last meeting. We then had a report from each captain of the different project groups and by their reports quite a few have started on their work. Mr. Forkner gave us a very interesting talk on 4-H Junior Week and 4-H Rally Day. Quite a few from our club are planning to enter the demonstration Contest. Two adult leaders, Robert Graves and John Crigler, were present and gave us some very good advice concerning the Community Club Fair.

We adjourned by repeating the club pledge and by giving one peppy cheer for our club.

PLACEMENT ACTIVITIES OF N. R. S. GREATLY INCREASES DURING MARCH

Placement activities of the National Reemployment Service in Kentucky showed a marked increase for March according to Myer Freyman, state Director. Total placements for the month numbered 3,690, a gain of 146.7 per cent over the February figure of 1,496, and 115 per cent above the total for the corresponding month of last year which was 1,716. The March figure represented the greatest total number of placements made since August, 1934, when 3,900 persons were placed.

Of the total placements made, 852 were in private employment, 2,209 were on public works, and 629 were on Works Program jobs at security wages. Total lacements included 3,246 men, and 445 women. Jobs were found for 400 veterans.

The private placement figure represents an increase of 103.3 per cent over the preceding month when 419 private placements were made, and 2.7 per cent above the March figure of last year, which totaled 830. Renewed activities in the private employment field resulted in the highest figure since May 1935.

Industrial classification of placements made in private employment shows that domestic and personal service accounted for 283 placements; building and construction, 184; manufacturing 151; agriculture and mining, 98; wholesale and retail business, 88; transportation and communication, 16; governmental service other than public works jobs, 15; professional 11; and miscellanous, 6.

Public works placements gained 105.1 per cent over February and 149.6 per cent over the March 1935 total. Besides Bureau of Public Roads jobs, which are all serviced by the National Reemployment Service, 61 PWA projects underway during March were supplied with labor. Twenty-five projects were already under way while 36 started construction. New projects which got underway were: Waterworks at Drakesboro and Taylorsport; a filtration plant at Covington; two sewerage jobs in Louisville and one in Erlanger; a hospital annex in Louisville; new Court House in Madisonville; Federal pipe lines at Fort Knox; five street projects in Louisville and school projects at Wingo, Clinton, Murray, Reed, Hopkinsville, Crofton, Dixie, Madisonville, Bowling Green, Guthrie, Glasgow, Buffalo, Williamstown, Eminence, Russell, Louisa, Drift, Cumberland, two at New Castle and two at Nonesuch.

Applications in the active file as of March 31 totaled 242,931 of which 17,337 were veterans. New applications for the month numbered 4,528 of which 132 were veterans. Six hundred and thirty renewals were made; 2,981 reregistrations were recorded and 14,439 reinterviewers of applicants were given; 995 field visits and 763 firm visits were made.

Placements for District No. 5 show: Public Works 178; Others 11; Private 73; Total 262; veterans 25.

SMALL PERCENTAGE OF AMERICAN FARMERS HAVE ELECTRIC POWER

Too few American farmers have electric power and light service according to the Rural Electrification Administration. It has been rther widely assumed that since the great majority of our farmers do not have this service and all the conveniences, comforts and economies that go with it, that it is not possible or practical for the farm. In many sections this is not true today.

The number of farmers who DO have automobiles and telephones would suggest strongly the feasibility of their also having electricity.

National surveys disclose that of the thirty million persons in this country dependent on agriculture for their living, 75 per cent must carry water from well or other sources of supply; 77 per cent have to get along with outdoor toilets; 93 per cent have neither bath tub nor shower; 46 per cent are dependent upon kerosene or gasoline lamps; (apparently about 10 per cent either depend on candles or are entirely without light) 33 per cent heat their homes partially or entirely with stoves; 48 per cent have to do their laundry work out of doors.

It is becoming more and more apparent that farmers can and should have electricity and the benefits that go with it. In some of the richer farming country the private power and light companies are now able and willing to provide electric service without aid from the Government.

At the other extreme there is farming country which is too thinly settled, with the productive value of the land too low, to support the cost of erecting lines, unless or until new inventions and reduced costs make it possible to provide service.

But in between these two situations, there are hugh areas where rural electrification is feasible but has not been undertaken. These great areas present virgin fields for electric power and light which heretofore have been denied this boon.

In order to bring electricity economically into these areas, the co-operation of fairly large groups is indispensable because there are certain expenses growing out of the establishment and operation of a power and light line which would be very burdensome if they were not shared.

HAMILTON

Mrs. Tom Huff

James Lawrence Wharton, of Covington, was called to the CCC Camp last Monday and sent to Ft. Knox. James had been staying with his uncle, John Rich, of this place for some time.

Mrs. Rebecca Conley entertained last Monday in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Jones and son and Mrs. Etta Jones and children.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Pitcher and son George, called on Mrs. George Burris, of Walton, last Wednesday. Mrs. Burris is seriously ill at her home.

The entire faculty of Hamilton school attended the K. E. A. at Louisville, last week.

Mrs. Lillie Huff was the guest of her aunt and uncle of the Taylor family, last Thursday and Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Lute Bradford spent Monday with Mr. and Mrs. Henry Huff.

Mr. and Mrs. Ceberry Allphin and daughter Esther, were guests of their son Charlie and wife, Friday—it being their little son's first birthday.

Mrs. Julia Jones and two little daughters, of Indiana, crossed the river here Friday to visit her mother, Mrs. Marian Walton.

Friends in this community were sorry to hear of the death of Mr. Owen Presser. His loved ones have the sympathy of all.

NOTED MINISTER TO SPEAK

OBITUARY

Laura A. Riddle Sebree was born April 28, 1861, departed this life April 11, 1936, age 74 years, eleven months and 14 days.

She was married to Winfield Scott Sebree Dec. 21, 1880. To this this union were born three children, one daughter, Mrs. Ethel Wofford, of Carthage, Ohio, two sons Leslie and Bernard Sebree, of Burlington. Her husband died September 24, 1892. Four grandchildren, and two great grandchildren, one brother, Wm. M. Tolin, of Indianapolis, Ind., and a host of relatives and friends. She was a member of the Petersburg Baptist church for many years. She was a kind and loving mother and good neighbor. Her funeral was held at the Petersburg Baptist church on Monday afternoon by her pastor, Bro. Dunaway.

CARD OF THANKS

We take this means of thanking our friends and neighbors for their kindness to us during the illness and death of our beloved mother, Laura Sebree. Especially do we thank Drs. Lawson and Yelton for their services and Bro. Smith and Mrs. Zora Scott for the beautiful song, and Bro. Dunaway for his consoling words, and Chambers & Grubbs for the manner in which they conducted the funeral, and the friends who gave the flowers.

TWO PAYMENTS IN NEW SOIL PROGRAM

Farmers who conduct their farming in a manner that will result in preventing soil and plant food loses through erosion and conserve and improve the fertility of their land, will be eligible for two closes of payments under the provisions of the national soil conservation program.

Class 1 payments are called soil-conserving payments. They will be made for substituting soil-conserving and soil-building crops on soil-depleting base acres. The maximum acreage on which Class 1 payments will be made is 15 per cent of the soil-depleting base acreage, except in the case of tobacco and cotton, where payments will be made for a maximum of 30 and 35 per cent respectively.

The average rate of the Class 1 payments except for special crops for the entire country will be $10 per acre, but will vary on each farm according to the productivity of the land. The rates for Class 1 payments are based upon an estimate of available funds and upon an estimate of approximately 80 per cent participation by farmers. The rates in any region may be increased or decreased pro rata by not more than 10 per cent if participation is more or less than estimated.

Class II payments are called soil-building payments. They will be made for planting soil-building crops on land which has produced at least one harvested crop (other than wild hay) since January 1, 1930, or for approved soil-building practices on crop land or pasture. Class II payments will be made at rates and for practices recommended by the state agricultural conservation committee and approved by the Secretary of Agriculture. The number of dollars of the Class II payment for any farm cannot exceed the total number of acres of crop land used for soil-conserving and soil-building crops in 1936, except in the case of farms having less than 10 acres of these crops.

Acreage diverted to soil-conserving and soil-building crops which replaces base acreage of soil-depleting crops to qualify for Class 1 payments, can also be included in total acreage of soil-conserving and soil-building crops to measure the total possible Class II payment on any farm.

In addition to the above general provisions regulating payments, specified rates and conditions for payments have been established for "special crops," which include cotton and tobacco.

1,646 FARMERS AT LAMB CONFERENCES

Ways of improving quality of lambs, orderly marketing, grading and other means of increasing returns from sheep were considered at a series of 13 quality lamb conferences held over Kentucky this spring by the extension division of the State College of Agriculture in cooperation with local farmers, buyers and packers. A total of 1,646 farmers attended. Ae definite program was developed at each meeting whereby local farmers could make sheep raising more profitable.

Another series of meetings is being planned for June and July, in which breeding problems, parasitic control, grading and marketing lambs, selection and judging of breeding sheep and the feeding of western lamos will be considered.

SHOW TO EMPHASIZE BABY CHICK QUALITY

To promote the production and demand for high quality chicks, students of the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture will hold a baby chick show May 12-13. Scoring will be done on the basis of weight, uniform size, vigor, condition and color.

Entries, which are being received by Louis Ison at the College, consist of 25 day-old chicks or 15 turkeys, ducks, geese or guineas. The show will be open to all producers of baby chicks, and several thousand chicks will be on display.

Entries by members of the Kentucky Improvement Association will be shown in special boxes with glass tops. The association and college are cooperating in the show.

Everett Cason and Cliff Jones, of near Waterloo, were business visitors in Burlington, Monday.

THE FIRST INSECTS

By John S. Gardner, Kentucky College of Agriculture

In no time at all, the first of these insects will emerge from their winter shelter, and the annual battle to outwit them will begin. While it is true that, in severe seasons, insect mortality is high, it is too much to hope that last winter's low temperatures have solved the gardener's insect problem for him, but he should prepare his campaign.

Among the first pests to come are the plant lice, on cabbage and on the spring greens. For some of these, the gardener is himself responsible, for, with the "frost-proof" cabbage plants he bought, he also bought cabbage lice, and perhaps infant Harlequin bugs, or their eggs. With the coming of cabbage-growing weather, these insects, too, become active, and multiply, sometimes in numbers great enough entirely to destroy cabbage and the related greens, mustard, Seven Top and kale, or, at least, seriously to hamper them.

To forestall the lice, a good precaution to have taken would have been to douse all "frost-proof" cabbage slips in a strong decoction of tobacco, or in a solution of nicotine sulfate, to kill the lice that are almost always present, and the young of the Harlequin bug. The latter insect is the gaudy orange-and-black diamond-shape "bug" that causes "blisters" on the cabbage foliage and that of the related greens.

Supposing, however, that the slips were not so treated, these pests may be held in check by spraying with stout tobacco tea or with commercial tobacco extract. A sprayer is needed, to drive the material into the leaf crevices and into the central buds. The lice are destroyed only by direct contact, and so are the Harlequin bugs in their younger soft-bodied stages. After these latter have taken on their hard-shelled form, no spray is of any avail, but only hand-picking. Although this may seem quite a chore, it is quite effective, if it is done before much breeding takes place.

No exact schedule for spraying for lice can be given; rather, the presence of the insects should determine. There should be no live lice 15 minutes after a spraying has been given.

The earliest chewing insect that attacks cabbage and its kinsfolk greens is the green cabbage worm. With the coming of the first warm days, the familiar yellow and white "butterflies" will be seen bobbing here and there among the plants, laying eggs from which this pest hatches. The obvious remedy is to apply stomach poisons but that is safe to do only until heading of the cabbage is under way, and never on greens, because of the risk to humans.

For greens, and for cabbage that has begun to head, the material to use is rotenone, deadly for all chewing insects but harmless to human beings. It is recommended to apply rotenone in dust form, because of the difficulty met in making wet spray stick, a dust whose base in lime or sulphur, and which carries taree-quarters of a per cent of rotenone. Such dusts are readily obtainable, anywhere.

On younger cabbage, an arsenical may be used, again preferably in dust form. An acceptable dust may be malde by mixing calcium arsenate and lime, 1 part to 6 parts, by weight.

It is always best to apply the dust through a ust-gun, because of better coverage, with less material, but either the rotenone or the arsenical may be sifted on the plants through a sack of porous material. Applications should be made as need for them is indicated by the injury the worms do. Too, when harvest begins, the stubs should be pulled and destroyed as the cabbage heads are cut, so as to remove further breeding places for the pest.

BLESSED ARE THE LAWMAKERS—MAYBE

Press distpatches to daily newspapers state that the present session of the legislature will probably continue until July. We do not have the official figures, but starting with last summer when Governor Chandler called a special session to pass a primary election law, there have been one regular session and three special sessions of that body. If they continue in session until July as is forecast they will have by that time been in session nearly 200 days.

There are 138 members of the legislative body, senate and house of representatives. Each member receives a daily stipend of $10 per day and perquisites, and the good Lord only knows how much the perquisities amount to. There are also a lot of pages and other employees who receive good pay. All in all, each day's session probably costs the state around five thousand ($5.000.00) If they are in session for 200 days these sessions will have cost the state around a million dollars. Instead of increasing taxes on many things, it seems like it would be better to economize a good deal in not holding sessions of the legislature.—Grant County News.

A LAWYER'S TRICK

In New York is the 71-story building of the Bank of Manhattan company, an institution whose history goes back almost to the foundation of the government. It is recalled by a recent writer that the institution resulted from the shrewd trick of a lawyer, who was none other than the notorious Aaron Burr.

At the time the bank was projected the group behind it were "in bad," politically and hence unable to obtain a bank charter. They organized a water company instead, but in drawing the charter Burr added a clause permitting the company to engage "in other necessary business." The other business was construed to include banking and it has been carried on ever since.

The structure in Wall street adjoins the lot formerly occupied by Federal Hall, the first national capitol, where Washington took the oath of office as President. That tract is now the site of the subtreasury.

If Aaron Burr and his associates could look upon the scene today they would marvel at the development which has resulted from their clever scheme for obtaining a bank charter.

KENTUCKY 4-H CLUB ENROLLMENT 32,542

Kentucky 4-H club enrollment on April 1 totalled 32,542 farm boys and girls, a new record for the state, according to J. W. Whitehouse, state club leader at the College of Agriculture. This compares to approximately 28,000 last year, which was the largest previous enrollment. The work is being conducted in 119 counties this year, a gain of 13 counties over last year.

There are approximately 1,500 local community 4-H clubs in the state, directed by about 3,500 local volunteer leaders. Jefferson county has the largest enrollment of any county, 1,008, although Johnson and Bell counties each has a goal of 1,000 club members. The largest individual club is the Forks of Elkhorn in Franklin county, with 169 boys and girls.

Most popular projects among boys are poultry, baby beef and tobacco, in the order given, while the girls are largely interested in clothing, the preparation of foods and canning.

Increased 4-H club enrollment this year was due in part to the fact that many county agents had extra time between the expiration of the A.A.A. and the inauguration of the new soil conservation program, Mr. Whitehouse pointed out.

Joe Huey, one of our local paper hangers, has been busy the past few days. Mr. Huey has been receiving calls from every section of the county.

REAL ESTATE TRANSFERS

Garnett Clore of the East Bend pike recently traded his fine 208 acre improved farm for a 5-room house and lot in Erlanger belonging to Joe Hogan. Mr. Hogan then traded the 208 acre farm to Met Lucas, of the East Bend pike for Mr. Lucas' farm of 63 acres. All parties were well satisfied with the manner in which Groger Bros., Realtors, of Erlanger, handled the deal.

RUSK FARM TO BE SOLD

ANOTHER WELL KNOWN TOBACCO FARM TO BE SOLD AT PUBLIC AUCTION.

Thursday, May 7, 1936 at 10:00 A. M., (Central Standard Time) is the date of one of the outstanding auction sales to be conducted in this locality. The farm is known as the J. W. Rusk farm consisting of 224 acres of fertile land will be sold to the highest bidder, rain or shine. This farm is located just 4 miles east of Walton, 4 miles west of Independence and 16 miles south of Covington.

This sale is in the hands of that well known auctioneer, Col. R. G. Kinman who always is known by that expression "will be sold rain or shine" and which he always carries out. The Auction Company makes this statement, quote: "In all our experience in the auction business, this is absolutely one of the finest farms we have ever sold. Mr. Rusk has owned this farm for over forty years and it has not been cultivated but very little. 200 acres of this land will grow BURLEY tobacco."

The sale begins at 10:00 A. M., and lunch will be served by the ladies of the Independence Baptist church. Free cash presents will be given away the day of the sale.

For further details of the sale, read the advertisement in this issue of the RECORDER.

DEMOCRATIC CLUB ENJOY SOCIAL AFFAIR

The Young Men's Democratic Club of Boone County were the guest of Col. Joe Anderson at his Cafe in Erlanger Tuesday night. The affair was purely a social get-to-gether and was immensely enjoyed by those attending.

S. W. L. MEMORIAL SOCIETY WILL MEET

The Sophia Webster Lloyd Society, of Florence, will have an all day meeting Saturday, May 2nd, at the Lloyd Homestead 21 Shelby St. There will be a business session, review and quilting.

Mr. John Crigler, of Burlington, one of Boone county's outstanding Utopia Club members, won first prize of Eastern Kentucky in the State Utopia Contest. Mrs. Ben C. Stephens, also of Burlington, an outstanding member, won second prize. The question was "What Industry could be started in Kentucky to be of a help to the farmers and city men."

Dr. and Mrs. G. T. McCauley and family, Mr. and Mrs. Everett Light Hickman and daughter, Patsy, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Robinson and daughter, and Mr. Ray Hickman, all of Ludlow, were visiting Mr. and Mrs. Everett Hickman, Sunday.

BANKERS MEET AT MAYSVILLE

JOHN M. YOST, PRESIDENT OF KENTUCKY'S BANKERS ASSOCIATION ADDRESSES THE NORTHERN KENTUCKY BANKER'S AT MAYSVILLE, KY.

The regular meeting of the Northern Kentucky Bankers Association was held April 23rd at the Country Club, Maysville, Ky.. with a large crowd present to hear the main speaker of the evening, President John M. Yost, who is at the present time cashier of the First National Bank of Pikeville, Ky., and also president of the State Bankers Association.

The meeting was called to order at 6:00 p. m., at the Country Club and a very delightful dinner was served to 101 of Kentucky's most outstanding bankers. The subject for discussion given by President Yost was "The Decline In Bank Earnings."

Among the local bankers to attend this event were: A. B. Renaker, Burlington; C. L. Cropper, Burlington, Judge N. E. Riddell, Burlington, L. C. Beemon, Burlington, Charles Riley, Hebron, Liston Hempfling, Hebron, Herbert Grant, Hebron, and Dr. S. B. Nunnelley, Hebron.

At the close of the meeting President Yost also extended an invitation to all bankers in this district to attend a group meeting to be held in his own town, Pikeville, Ky., date to be announced later.

BOONE COUNTY'S 1935 TOBACCO CROP AVERAGES $21.79

Boone County's 1935 tobacco crop produced under the AAA allotment, averaged Boone County farmers $21.79 per hundred pounds without benefit payments, according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent. With the rental payment the crop averaged $24.76 per hundred pounds. Compared with $7.55 per hundred pounds for the 1933 crop and $15.54 per hundred for the 1934 crop.

Eight hundred and sixty-four contract signers the past year grew 1278.5 acres; sold 1,290,525 pounds on regular allotment for $281,884.59 or $21.79 per hundred. 136,821 additional pounds of excess tobacco was sold for $10,683.02 or an average of $7.59 per hundred making a total of 1,427,446 pounds of contract tobacco average $20.30 per hundred pounds.

Growers produced on 71% of their allotted acres and sold only 90% of the total pounds they could have sold on their regular contract allotment.

Boone County's tobacco crop averaged approximately 3 cents above the entire Burley belt average. The Burly belt averaged 2 cents above the parity price set by the contract. Under these conditions there will not be any adjustment payment as the AAA contract guaranteed only parity price for 1935.

Growers however are more interested in a fair price for their crop than benefit payments.

GAS STRUCK NEAR HEBRON

ON THE ESTATE OF O. C. HAFER TUESDAY NIGHT—LARGEST VEIN STRUCK AT 500 FEET DEPTH.

The Herbrt Harris Drilling Co., who have been in Boone County for several months drilling for oil, struck one of the largest veins of natural gas that ever been discovered in this part of Kentucky.

The well is located on the Estate of O. C. Hafer, Hebron, Ky. According to geographical reports this area in and around Hebron is the ideal location for oil, and many attempts have been made by prospectors in the past few years but none have as yet seen oil in Boone County. In almost every instance that the large drills have been lowered into the wells they have struck somewhere in their drilling a small pocket of natural gas.

Tuesday night, however, one of the largest natural gas wells ever known to this group was discovered at a depth of approximately 500 feet. They have found several pockets of gas in this well, but the last one Tuesday night carried a pressure of 160 pounds.

The equipment at hand at the time the large vein was struck was not sufficient to hold this extreme pressure and naturally the gas was allowed to escape through shut-off valves after the pressure reached a certain point.

According to spectators, the end of the pipe leading from the well was lighted and allowed to burn, and as the pressure was released through this pipe at regular intervals the flames would reach a height of twenty-five feet.

According to the drillers there is no possible way to tell just how long the life of a gas well will be, as it might last at this pressure for many years and on the other hand it may last only for a few months. The 160 pound pressure, as explained by the drillers, is quite a large amount for a gas well, for as a comparison the average home if it were to have gas piped to it for use would only require a 4 oz. pressure to supply its needs.

Although nothing is certain as yet, many Boone ountians are very anxiously awaiting the day when we can have a supply of natural gas in our homes for heating and cooking purposes.

STUDENT PARTICIPATION IN COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES AT LOCAL SCHOOL

In a most unique program, following the present trend of student participation in as many school activities as possible, the local school commencement exercises proved very interesting. The program was in the form of a combination of class night and commencement with various pupils contributing a part to the program.

INTERESTING NEWS EDITION

OF THE RECORDER'S ROTOGRAVURE SECTION—OUTSTANDING ARTICLE ON THE COMING OF 17-YEAR LOCUSTS

Warning of an army of 17-year locusts, buzzing like a gigantic squadron of baby bombing planes, due to roar into Kentucky along about the last week in May, is one of many outstanding and informative articles which will be featured in the May issue of The Recorder's all-rotogravure STATE FARMER SECTION.

The 12-page agricultural supplement, packed from cover to cover with scores of interesting and entertaining pictures and editorial features of a wide variety, will come to rural subscribers of The Recorder next week without additional cost.

The locust warning, however, is not as ominous as it may sound, because Professor W. A. Price, Kentucky State Entomologist expresses belief that the insects will be out of the picture by June 20. The main damage, he asserts, will be confined largely to young trees.

More cheerful notes than the fearful buzz of the flying pests are sounded in a number of constructive articles of benefit to every farm family in Boone County. The history of White Burley from 1864 to 1936 is traced by S. E. Wrather of the Kentucky College of Agriculture. C. A. Lewis presents some excellent pointers on the application of fertilizer by tobacco growers.

Feeding of distillery slop in hog production formerly was a popular practice in this state. With its revival in Kentuckythese days, a practical discussion of the subject, showing the value of adding corn to the feed is presented in another timely feature.

The regular, big two-page women's section devotes considerable space to "play acting" by Kentucky farm home makers. New Spring and Summer styles as shown in this section are certain to be received with vivid interest by most of our feminine readers.

Kentucky poultry raising practices and many other regular departmental features in THE STATE FARMER, all-rotogravure agricultural supplement round out an especially interesting issue, as will be found each month by readers of The Recorder.

WOOL GROWERS TO SELL WOOL

Boone County Wool Growers will meet at Burlington Court day, Monday May 4th to set the date for selling the Boone County Wool Clip.

The Clip will be sold around June 2nd.

FARMERS SIGN NEW FARM PROGRAM

Boone County farmers are rendering strong support to the New Farm Program according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent. The sign up the first part of this week has been especially good.

The first series of educational meetings was completed the past week. Growers have requested that this sries be followed by community sign up days. The dates of these community sign-up days will be announced the coming week.

Farmers may sign up for the new program on any week days at the County office at Burlington, between the hours of 8 a. m., and 4:30 p. m. (Slow Time).

All growers are urged to file their work sheets at the earliest possible date. The New program should help hold and build on to the progress made under the old AAA.

EDWIN BOTTS VICTIM OF PARALYTIC STROKE

Mr. Edwin Botts, of Woolper Road, was the unfortunate victim of a paralytic stroke, which struck him last Thursday afternoon while crossing the street from the People's Bank to Rouse's lunch room. A number of people were near but no one was able to assist Mr. Botts before he fell to the sidewalk. A doctor was immediately summoned and Mr. Botts was taken to his home, where he is slowly improving.

64 STUDENTS TO GRADUATE

FROM CONSOLIDATED HIGH SCHOOLS THROUGHOUT BOONE COUNTY — CLOSING SCHOOL ACTIVITIES NEAR END.

With the High School term shortened one month this year, thus bringing school to a close at April 30th rather than May 30th, we find throughout the county many proud students who will receive their high school diploma some time this week.

Due to a considerable rush at the closing of school this year, we find that all the different activities have been somewhat on the same nights and many persons who wished to attend these programs were unable to do so for this reason. We find it impossible to enumerat each program for all the schools as space will not allow, but the list below will give the students who have successfully met tne requirements for high school graduation and who will receive diplomas this year.

NEW HAVEN HIGH SCHOOL

Emma Jane Black, Katherine Flynn Carr, Ralph Skinner Coppage, Clinton Head, Jennie Hart, Harvey Johnson, Harold Franklin Rouse, Adele Stamper.

FLORENCE CONSOLIDATED SCHOOL

HEBRON CONSOLIDATED SCHOOL

Mary Cathryn Bullock, Evelyn Nelson Conrad, Lallie Gray Delph, Delliliah M. Dolwick, Dorothy Margurie Dunaway, Andrew Wood Edwards, Manlius R. Goodridge, Anna Lucille Grant, Earl J. Heinbach, Vivian Elizabeth Hood, William Gene Jones, Orville O. Judy, Ruth Eileen Lancaster, Geo. William Loze, Joseph Eugene Peeno, Gertrude Randall, Bessie Reeves, Edward James Reinhart, Milton E. Rodamer, John O. Sebastian, Emma Frances Siekman, Lucy Marie Souther, George D. Sprague, Ruth Hodges Tanner, Kenneth J. Wohrley, Gaines Stephens.

BURLINGTON HIGH SCHOOL

HAMILTON HIGH SCHOOL

William Wilson Allen, William Wesley Aylor, Hazel Lee Craig, Bertha Doolin, Virginia Maud Miller, Edward Napier, Paul Robinson, Wiliam R. Walton.

Although all the schools have been crowded for time, they also report that their programs have been supported by large crowds and that each program has been carried out in a very satisfactory manner.

BOONE COUNTY MAN MOVES UP

FORMER BURLINGTON MAN RECEIVES HIGHER POSITION WITH DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

William Finn, former resident of Burlington and graduate of the local school, has recently been appointed to a higher position with the U. S. Bureau of Agriculture Economics, according to a news report from the University of Kentucky. In addition to Mr. Finn, who graduated from University of Kentucky, two other graduates of that institution, J. P. Hutson and Jesse W. Tapp, also received appointments for higher positions. Mr. Hutson is assistant administrator of the Agricultural Adjustment Act and Mr. Tapp is in charge of marketing agreements and orders under section 32 of the AAA.

PLAN EXTENDED

The Modernization Credit Plan provided by the National Housing Act has been extended until April 1, 1937. Originally this provision of Government insurance on modernization loans made by private lending institutions for property repair was to have expired April 1, 1936. Recent congressional amendment brought about the extension.

ARE BOONE COUNTIANS INTERESTED IN ORGANIZED BASEBALL ? ? ?

We have been asked daily if there is going to be an organized base ball league in Boone County this year and as yet we have not been able to give an answer to this question. It is a known fact from observation that in the years that Boone county had a base ball league, whether Sunday School league or County wide league, that base ball interest was high and in years that such leagues were not sponsored that very few games were played, therefore, with the abundance of young material within the county, who if not permitted to play regularly this season will undoubtedly lose interest, we sincerely trust that those interested in the National past time will attempt to organize and sponsor teams in the various communities of the county and that a league, with regularly scheduled games, will be organized

Boone County has been the home of a number of great base ball players and has furnished many surrounding teams with players during the past several decades and there are many more promising young players, who if given several years of steady playing at home, could reach greater neights.

OFFICER KILLS ELSMERE MAN

AS MARSHAL STRICKES VICTIM IN SELF-DEFENSE — PISTOL DISCHARGED BY FORCE OF BLOW — DEATH COMES INSTANTLY

John Thomas Angel, age sixty-six years, Plataw Ave., Elsmere, was shot and killed almost instantly, when he was struck by a gun in the hands of Thomas W. Rash, Marshal, of Elsmere, Monday evening in protecting himself from a knife attack by Angel.

The bullet, hitting Angel in the left chest, ranged downward thru the body and lodging just above the heart. Rash surrendered to Edward Taylor, Deputy Kenton County Sheriff, but was released on his own recognizance for appearance before Judge John B. Read in Kenton county court.

Marshal Rash, who has held this position for over 12 years said he was eating his evening meal when came to his home to accuse him of aiding another person in taking over a lot formerly owned by his sister-in-law. Rash said Angel threatened to kill him. When Angel pulled a knife he shoved Angel from the steps and told him to go on home and behave, as he knew nothing of the matter. Rash said Angel left the yard, uttering threats. When he reached the sidewalk he refused to go further than in front of the home of Frank Ernst, next door.

Angel, using abusive and vile language, threatened to cut Rash to pieces, the latter said. The only weapon Rash had on him at that time was his gun, so he walked toward Angel.

"Consider yourself under arrest," Rash told Angel.

The latter, according to witnesses, rushed toward Rash with an open knife yelling threats that he would cut his throat. Rash, in an attempt to hit Angel over the head with his gun, struck the victim with such a blow that the pistol was discharged, inflicting a scalp wound from the barrel of the pistol and the bullet entering the body of the victim.

When Angel fell, Rash could not believe he had been shot. Rash said that he had known Angel for some time, and had always considered him as a friend. Rash said, "I regret it greatly, as I have done everything I could for him."

Dr. James P. Riffe, Kenton county Coroner, will impanel a Coroner's jury to return a verdict in the case.

Angel leaves his wife, Elva, two sons and three daughters. Mr. Angel has been a resident of Elsmere only since last June, moving there from Pendleton County, Ky.

Mr. and Mrs. John Lassing, Jr., and daughter, Mary Lina, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Porter and son, Marvin Rouse, and Jack Rouse spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Dave Gaines, of North Bend.

ADDRESSES STUDENT BODY

SERVICE AND SCIENCE, TWO IDEALS OF KAPPA DELTA PI, HAROLD KELLY CLORE TELLS EASTERN STUDENTS AND FACULTY.

Richmond, Ky., April 22—Kelly Clore, Burlington, junior at Eastern Ky. State Teachers College, spoke to the student body and faculty of the college this morning on "Service and Science, Two Ideals of Kappa Delta Pi." Eastern's chapter of the national honorary educational fraternity conducted the college assembly program.

Daily Turner, Morris Fork, presided and introduced the speakers, who were, in addition to Mr. Clore, Dr. W. J. Moore, professor of economics at Eastern, and Miss Evelyn Newell, Covington. Dr. Moore discussed "The Organization and Activities of Kappa Delta Pi," and Miss Newell spoke on "Fidelity and Toil, Two Ideals of the Fraternity."

Mr. Clore defined service, an ideal of Kappa Delta Pi, as assistance, labor, and kindness to others. "The individual must be subordinated to the other members of society," he said. "Service is the first major ideal of Kappa Delta Pi. The second ideal, science, does not mean merely experimentation and observation in biology, physics, chemistry and the like, but a fundamental attitude of learning, method, and viewpoint."

Miss Newell's theme was faith in humanity and toil for the benefit of humanity. "Faith in humanity without the willingness to work for it would mean little," she said. "It is our job as teachers to work with humanity and do it diligently. If in spite of poverty and squaor we see about us we can know that ultimately humanity is good, then we can say that we know fidelity to humanity."

The history of the fraternity's organization and activities was reviewed by Dr. Moore. The fraternity is active in building up loan funds for students, offering prizes and awards, and conducting business and professional meetings, he stated. "Above all," he said, "Kappa Delta Pi emphasizes scholarship."

KENTUCKY WELL CARED FOR

Senator M. M. Logan speaking recntly before the Kentucky Emergency Council that the benefits received by Kentucky have amounted to approximately $300,000,000.

Dealing New-Deal benefits to the state, Senator Logan said state farmers had received $4,454,483 in loans and credit from the national administration; that home owners have been loaned a total of $4,586,871; that the Civil Works Administration provided $9,953,210 for the unemployed; that the Civilian Conservation Corps had spent $23,321,964; that the Public Works Administration had supplied $15,082,$15 for non-federal projects and $14,967,519 for federal projects in Kentucky; that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation had lent a total of $37,770,790 to Kentucky business; that the Federal Emergency Relief Administration had advanced $36,385,956 in the state, and that benefit payments under the Agricultural Adjustment Act to state farmers aggregated $20,670,971.

Senator Logan has been a veritable "watch dog" for Kentucky and looked to her getting her full share of the grat amount of monies that are being expended by the Federal Government in the various States. He is untiring in his interest and efforts in behalf of the State and never overlooks an opportunity to represent the State as it should be in the National Capital.

N. B.—Editorial from Kentucky Advocate, Danville.

Apparently many thousand people who visit Washington think that the president will feel hurt if they do not call on him and ask about the folks.

JEST A-WHITTLIN' AN' A-THINKIN'

By Pete Gettys

A State Farmer Section Feature

"Full measure, heaped up and running over" is the golden rule thing to do—but did you know the dry measure in the U. S. is based on the old English Winchester bushel, containing 2.150x42 cubic inches or 1.24 cubic feet, 18.5 inches in diameter and 8 incnes deep; the heap to be in the form of a cone, as high as the commodity will admit without special effort of design.

The U. S. Court of Customs Appeals decided in 1912 a "bushel" means a heaped bushel, far as apples is concerned, and thata heaped bushel should contain 2,747,715 bubic inches, and under this decision a heaped bushel is 27.8% larger than a struck bushel. Heaped measure is used with bulky commodities, such as apples, pears, potatoes, onions and the like.

In some states, they have laws that all dry commodities be sold by weight, others require that those for which a legal weight nas been established be sold that way. In Alabama, Indiana, Massachusetts, New Jersey, Oregon, Tennessee, Utah, Virginia and the District of Columbia, the use of dry measures in the sale of commodities ain't allowed. In Alabama and Massachusetts it applies to retail sales. In Alabama and Tennessee, by mutual consent of the parties, commodities can be sold at the weights per bushel fixed by law determined by weight. Did you know that?

Lesson for May 3

JESUS TEACHES FORGIVENESS, HUMILITY AND GRATITUDE

LESSON TEXT—Luke 17:1-19.

GOLDEN TEXT—Be ye kind one to another, tenderhearted, forgiving one another, even as God for Christ's sake hath forgiven you.—Ephesians 4:32.

PRIMARY TOPIC—The Man Who Said Thank You.

JUNIOR TOPIC — The Man Who Thanked Jesus.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC — Three Marks of Christian Strength.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC. — Three Marks of Christian Strength.

I. Forgiveness, a Christian Obligation (vv. 1-4).

Owing to the fundamental fact of human individuality, the perversion by sin, and the power and wickedness of the devil, offenses, or occasions of stumbling, are bound to come. Because mankind is fallen and sin reigns in individual hearts, the results are bound to reveal themselves, but Jesus pronounces "woe" upon those whose evil deeds become a stumbling stone in the way of others, especially "one of these little ones."

The follower of Christ is to take heed that his life be not injurious, but that it be exemplary. The believer is to cultivate the forgiving spirit toward the wrongdoer, while rebuking the wrong. Great skill and grace are required to rebuke one for wrongdoing, revealing at the same time the forgiving spirit, so as to win him instead of exasperating him.

II. Humility, a Christian Quality (vv. 5-10).

Humility is at the heart of this trio of Christian graces. Much faith is required to establish and maintain humility. Human nature impels one to push others aside, to struggle for supremacy, to reach the exalted positions in life. Humility moves one to seek the lowly place, while giving places of honor to others, and being sincerely happy when others are granted the preferred positions. Surely, for this one must have faith in God.

III. Gratitude, an Uncommon Grace (vv. 11-19).

The account of the ten lepers is perhaps the most used Bible portion in enforcing the lesson of gratitude as against ingratitude. There are a number of things to be considered, if we are fully to understand the call for gratitude.

1. Their awful affliction (v. 12).

They were lepers. In that day no greater tragedy could befall one than to be thus afflicted. It was regarded as contagious and incurable. The afflicted person became a social outcast, and was avoided and neglected. The Mosaic law provided for segregation (Lev. 13:46).

Leprosy has always been regarded as typical of sin, and at times as visited upon individuals because of sin. Examples: the leprosy of Naaman (II Kings 5); Gehazi (II Kings 5); Miriam (Num. 12); Uzziah (II Kings 15:5).

Leprosy may lay long dormant, and then make a sudden appearance; so with sin. Leprosy waxes worse and worse; so with sin. And the end of sin is death.

2. Their cry for mercy (v. 13). The ten recognized their great need, and that no human help was available. Testimonies that had floated to their hearing told of a great Healer, and when He came their way they were not slow to make their prayer to him.

The faith of the lepers immediately revealed itself in acting upon the instructions of Jesus that they go and show themselves to the priest. While they went they were cleansed. They were to obey the Old Testament requirement for the recording of their cleansing, that they need no longer be outcasts. The sinner may find salvation along the path of daily duty, if he will but believe.

3. Their differing attitudes following healing (vv. 15-19).

a. The gratitude of the one (vv. 15, 16) is beautiful and inspiring. He is referred to as "this stranger," evidently a Gentile, but so deep was his gratitude he hastened back to Jesus to give thanks. The one who might be least expected to show gratitude was the one who sincerely expressed it.

b. The nine who neglected (vv. 17-19), who failed to give thanks, have through the centuries been charged with ingratitude. Their healing was as complete; they had as much reason to recognize Jesus as their healer as had "this stranger." Perhaps, as is true of so many believers of today, they took their benefits for granted and were indifferent rather than ungrateful. Many nowadays take all they can get from Christ and give nothing in return. The noblest blessings of civilization are ours through Christ, yet how few thank him for them.

Religion Must Come First

John Ruskin's emphatic words cannot be too often repeated: "Anything which makes religion its second object, makes religion no object. God will put up with a great many things in the human heart, but there is one thing he will not put up with in it—a second place. He who offers God a second place, offers him no place."

Loyalty

With malice towards none, with charity for all, and firmness in the right, as God gives us to see the right.

TERRACES AND SEED MIXTURES USED TO REBUILD WORN LAND

Princeton, Ky., April 27.—Following methods that rebuilt a worn field in the period of 1929 to 1935, H. C. McConnell this spring limed, phosphated and seeded another 35 acres on his 400-acre Caldwell county farm. The field was terraced last year under tne supervision of the CCC.

The first field was terraced in 1929. Nearly a fourth of it had been thrown out as waste land because of gullies and surface washing. Much of the rest of it was badly sheet washed and very low in productivity.

With tne assistance of County Agent J. F. Granam, terraces were laid out and made with the county road grader. Several of the gullies were so deep that they had to be filled in before they could be crossed with the crawler-type tractor.

The field was treated with three tons of limestone to the acre and seeded to a mixture of sweet clover, orchard grass, redtop and korean lespedeza. Due to the 1930 drouth, little of this mixture survived except lespedeza, which developed into a good stand.

The field has not been plowed since it was terraced, although little erosion has developed and all of it could be plowed and put to cultivated crops that would yeld well. McConnell declares that it has provided more pasture than any other part of his farm.

IDLEWILD

We are sorry to report the death of Geo. Pfalzgraf, who passed away at Baker Hospital at Muskateen, Iowa, Thursday April 23. Fitch Bros., undertakers, accompanied by the former's brother, Albert, went there by motor for the body. Mr. Pfalzgraf was buried at Lawrenceburg Monday after funeral services, which were conducted at the Fitch Bros., funeral home. He was, indeed, an honorable citizen and will not be missed by his bereaved loved ones only, but by the whole community where the greater part of his life was spent, having moved here from Lawrenceburg, when just a small child. He leaves his aged mother, brother, three aunts and many more relatives.

Ernest Hill, who is stationed at Ft. Thomas, spent the week-end with his brother Wm. and wife.

Mrs. Emmett Elliott was calling on Miss Matilda Vogle and Mrs. Mattie Shinkle, Saturday afternoon.

Mrs. Morris Gaines entertained her father over the week-end.

William Hill is having a sink and water system installed in his home.

Mrs. Flora Gray and Mrs. Edward Delph were calling in Idlewild, Saturday afternoon.

It is reported that Glenn Jennings, who is employed at Lawrenceburg, got his foot enjured while working.

Friends of Boone Ryle, of Hollywood, Florida, are very much grieved to know that he does not improve in health. It will be remembered that Mr. Ryle went to Florida last fall, hoping to have better health there.

Mr. and Mrs. Early Trisler are at their farm here for the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Allen Rogers were recent visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Birkle.

Wanda Lea Birkle and Georgie Lee Easton spent one night last week with Betty Williams, at Hebron.

McVILLE

Quite a few from here attended and enjoyed services at the Christian church at Belleview, Sunday afternoon.

Lee Roy Stephens passed the night Wednesday with Ivan Cason on Middle Creek.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Stephens entertained a few of the young folks around with a fish supper Wednesday night in honor of their daughter Zophie's birthday.

Mr. and Mrs. O. Y. Kelly and Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Scott and grandson ate fish Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Brown, Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Shinkle and family entertained Saturday night and Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Porter Shinkle and family from Lawrenceburg.

Mrs. James Hodges and Mrs. Hubert West visited Friday with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Smith. Mrs. Smith has been real sick.

LIBERATING MONEY

To millions of our citizens, the cost of living is a problem—and constant wrestling with a recalcitrant is essential to making both ends meet.

As a consequence, anything that cuts the cost of necssities, and especially foods, to the consumer, is in the interest of everyone and all businesses. Reasonable prices for foods result in larger purchases, and in a wider variety of purchases. When the food item is cut other home budget items may be increased. This "new" money goes to buy automobiles and labor-saving appliances, for savings, for vacations, for education for children, for reading matter and entertainment. That makes better business in the myriad industries affected, and causes them to employ more men, to increase advertising and to expand plants. A great economic circle is started, ever widening, ever touching more industries and individuals.

Considerable progress has already been made in holding down the cost of food, through the simple and effective means of eliminating and reducing "in-between" costs—those expenses which are created along the way as food products are brought from producer to consumer. Scientific distributing methods, coupled with aggressive advertising and selling have made it possible to cut the margin of profit. As a result, the public has been saved millions of dollars, and the great industrial machine which employs men and pays taxes has been eliminated through increased purchasing power.

The movement to stil further reduce the spread between producer and consumer continues. And it is in the interest of all that ..s progress should be uninterrupted.

Everyone seems to be geting in the mood for Spring House Cleaning since the arrival of the warm weather. For your Spring Cleaning needs watch the ADS in the Recorder as the merchants are using this space to help you solve your spring problems.

WORK SHEETS REQUIRED NEW FARM PROGRAM

Every farmer must file a work sheet at the County Ofice to be eligiable for the benefits under the New Farm Program according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent. Work Sheets and assistance in filling out forms are now available at the County Office.

Farmers are showing strong interest in the Farm Program. Attendance at Community meetings has been good. The benirit payments under the New S. C. D. A. program should equal approximately that paid Boone County Farmers under the old AAA Program.

Work sheets should be filled out for every farm in Boone County. Growers should file their works sheets at the earliest possible date.

The Petersburg "Good Will" 4-H Club held their fourth meeting of the year Monday afternoon, April 20th. The captain of each project group gave reports and Mrs. Carter, Assistant County Agent, made a good talk. Annual tour date, Wednesday July 1st, 1936.

BOONE COUNTY SOILS DEFICIENT IN PHOSPHATE.

Results of several soil tests made in Boone County show that most ridge land and upper bottom land is very deficient in phosphate. Many low yeilds of crops are due to the lack of this elemnt, and excellent results will be obtained by the use of 200 to 500 pounds of 20% super phosphate per acre.

To get the maximum results from the use of either lime or phosphate the two should be used togeather. For most crops an application of 2 tons of limestone and 350 pounds of 20% superphosphate is sufficient. In the case of alfalfa 4 tons of limestone and 500 pounds of phosphate should be used.

The Florence Homemakers Club will hold its monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. Ezra O. Rouse on the Burlington pike, April 30th, 1936, at one o'clock. The lesson is to be in "Floors and Floor Finishes." Everyone is invited and urged to attend.

BORDEAUX MIXTURE
By John S. Gardner, Kentucky College of Agriculture

While it is customary to think of Bordeaux Mixture as a summer spray, to check the foliage diseases of the several garden crops, it is valuable to use in the spring, too, as an insecticide, for it is a control for the fleabeetle. This is the small flea-like insect that attacks all the vegetables at any stage, riddling their leaves with many small holes, but being more particularly damaging while the plants are still small, at which time loss of leaf surface is most serious. Thus, the value of Bordeaux during seedling time should not be overlooked.

The strength of Bordeaux generally recommended to use on vegetables is 4-4-50. These figures stand for the ingredients that make up the spray, namely, four pounds of bluestone, 4 pounds of burned lime (or 6, of hydrated lime), and 50 gallons of water. A mixture of 3 ingredients sounds complicated to mak, which deters some gardeners. Besides, the quantity, 50 gallons, is greater than a gardener can customarily use and the spray cannot be kept for more than 24 hours. Also, the necessary containers are not part of the equipment of most gardeners.

In order to avoid these difficulties, many persons turn to the use of prepared formsof Bordeaux that need only to be stirred into any quantity of spray desired, but Bordeaux of this sort is expensive, and, because of its expense, it is often used too sparingly to get maximum results. This is to be said, too, that the efficacy of the various sorts of "prepared" Bordeaux varies, both with their age, and with their mode of manufacture.

With the gardener in mind, who may use Bordeaux only in small quantities, the following method for making the spray has been devised, using the sprayer tank as the mixing container, the rest of the equipment being a cream crock, and a quart fruit jar or milk bottle, both easy to borrow in any home.

The first step is to dissolve one pound of bluestone in 5 parts of water. Dissolving takes place of itself in about 2 hours, if the sack of bluestone is hung over the water in such a way that its tip is just immersed. A non-metal container should always be used.

Next, put into the tank of the sprayer (preferably one with a brass tank) 9 quarts of water, then, one quart of the dissolved bluestone, and 4 ounces of screened, hydrated lime. The sprayer is then closed and shaken endwise, 10 times, the result being 2½ gallons of 4-4-50 Bordeaux Mixture. If chewing insects, such as Colorado beetles or cabbage worms are present, calcium arsenate should be added before the sprayer is closed.

The remaining gallon of dissolved bluestone should be kept in a closed container, not of metal, to be ready for use in making 4 later batches of Bordeaux, and at a moment's use.

The simplicity of this way of making Bordeaux Mixture is patent, as well as the fact that no special equipment is needed. Best of all, this method reduces the cost of the finished product, no mean item; and, the produce fresh, will give 100 per cent results.

BEAVER LICK

There will be services at the Baptist church Sunday May 3rd, at 2:30 p. m. A cordial invitation is extended to everybody.

Mrs. Robert Sleet and daughters Bobbie Jane and Betty Jo, of Columbia, Ky., are here for a visit with Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Sleet and other relatives.

Robt. Slayback and family and Mrs. Joe Besterman, visited Mr. and Mrs. Dick Blackford near Union, Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Martin entertained Saturday and Sunday for Mrs. G. C. Martin, son Lee and daughter Katherine, Mrs. Mace and Mr. Shepherd, all of Lexington, Ind.

A large number of folks from this and surrounding communities attended the funeral of Mrs. Geo. Burris at South Fork Christian church, Sunday.

Ab Jenkins, the famous driver, used Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires on his 3000-mile run over the Salt Beds of Utah, which he covered in 23½ hours —a record of 127 miles per hour. He has driven more than a million miles on Firestone Tires, in every state in the union, on all kinds of roads, in all kinds of traffic, without tire failure or accident of any kind. What a tribute to safe, dependable, economical tire equipment..

When you drive at today's higher speeds, your life and the lives of others are largely dependent upon the degree of safety built into the tires of your car. Take no chances—equip your car with new Firestone High Speed Tires today and be sure of the safest driving equipment money can buy.

End of cord in Gum-Dipped Tire showing every fiber insulated with liquid rubber

End of cord from ordinary tire showing unprotected cotton fibers inside cord

The body of the New Firestone High Speed Tire is made from selected long-staple cotton dipped in liquid rubber, absorbing eight pounds of rubber in every hundred pounds of cotton. This patented Gum-Dipping process insulates every fiber in every cotton cord, preventing internal friction which creates the heat so destructive to tire life, and giving to the tire added strength.

This heavy, broad, traction and non-skid tread is held to the cord body of the tire with Two Extra Layers of Gum-Dipped Cords; a patented construction, making the cord body and tread an inseparable unit.

A leading university in 2350 tire tests has found that the new, scientifically designed Firestone High Speed tread stops a car up to 25% quicker. Its super-traction and non-skid efficiency have also been proved in the famous Pike's Peak Race where for eight consecutive years it has been used on the winning cars.

REHABILITATION LOANS INCREASE

THROUGHOUT STATE OF KENTUCKY A VERY RAPID RATE ACCORDING TO DISTRICT OFFICE REPORTS

Lexington, Ky., April 15—Rehabilitation-in-place loans are now flnowing through the state office at th rate of about 300 loans per week to farm families in this state deemed eligible for Rehabilitation under the Rural Rehabilitation phase of tne Resettlement Administration, according to State Director Earl Mayhew, who has charge of this phase of the program in Kentucky, with state headquarters located there.

Loans totalling approximately $700,000 already have been advanced to families in this state for the spring planting.

Each farm family granted a Rehabilitation-in-place loan voluntarily agrees to follow approved farm and home management plans worked out by the aid of the County Rural Rehibilitation Supervisors in cooperation with the County Farm Agent.

"These loans are extended to distressed farm families for such things as seed, livestock, fertilizer, equipment and other supplies needed for making a crop, with one to five years in which to repay. The longer term is allowed on items like mules and equipment. This makes it possible for the farmer to re-establish himse.. and to avoid selling his food and feed crops at the end of the first year to pay his debts, as was the case under the crop-lien, time-merchant system which in many instances has contributed to distressed conditions," Mr. Mayhew said.

The farmer gets the "Rehab" loan money and spends it with the local merchant of his own choice, or wherever he can buy to best advantage.

Responsibility for the selection of families is placed in the hands of voluntary County Advisory Committees, who have a practical knowledge of local conditions, and are better able than anyone else to make the selection. In passing upon the qualifications, not only need, but character, ability and willingness to work are considered. Usually the Rehabilitation client has no tangible asset but if it is considered that he will respond well to guidance, he is accepted on the basis that the farm and home plans that can be laid out for him, plus his physical fitness and willingness to work, will justify his selection.

If they make good, Rehabilitation-in-place clients who are now tenants may become eligible for homes of their own, as worthy tenants are among those who will be considered for farmsteads under Rural Retsettlement, another phase of the Resettlement Administration program.

FARMERS FAVOR NEW PROGRAM

COMPLETE SIGN-UP EXPECTED SOON—SIGN-UP DAY ARRANGED

The New Soil Conservation Program is meeting with the favor of Boone county farmers and a complete sign-up is expected in the next few weeks, according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent. The program is not limited to any one class and every farmer is eligible to participation.

The New Program is expected to help hold and advance the agricultural progress made the past two years. Every farmer cooperating and filling a work sheet is doing his part. A work sheet for every farm is the goal.

Community sign-up days have been arranged for those farmers who cannot come to Burlington. Every farmer who can is urged to come to these sign-up meetings and fill out a work sheet. The dates and places of the meetings are as follows:

Wednesday, May 6th, Berkshire Hall, Petersburg, 8 a. m. to 4 p. m.

Thursday, May 7th, Verona Bank, Verona, 9 a. m. to 4 p. m.

Friday, May 8th, Hebron Bank, Hebron, 8 a. m. to 4 p. m.

Saturday, May 9th, Sleet's Store, Beaver, 12:00 Noon to 4 p. m.

Tuesday, May 12th, Walton Equitable Bank, 9 a. m. to 3:30 p. m.

Wednesday, May 13th, Hamilton School house, 9 a. m. to 4 p. m.

Friday, May 15th, Union Bank, Union. 9 a. m. to 4 p. m.

Saturday, May 16th, Tanner's Feed Store, Florence, 9 to 4 (Fast Time).

The County Agent or a representative from the county office and a committeeman will be present to assist farmers. Cooperation in signing work sheet forms at the earliest possible date will greatly assist those in charge of the sign-up and will help make the program more valuable to all farmers.

REV. H. M. HAUTER CHOSEN CHAPLAIN

WAS CHOSEN FROM AMONG 26 PASTORS OF THE KENTUCKY-TENNESSEE SYNOD

The Kentucky-Tennessee Synod of the United Lutheran Church in America bestowed upon Rev. Howard M. Hauter, pastor of Hebron Lutheran Church and Hopeful Lutheran Church, Florence, a signal honor in announcing his appointment to serve as chaplain during its coming convention.

Rev. J. Earl Spaid, Louisville, president of the synodical body, announced the appointment today. Rev. Hauter was chosen from among the 26 pastors of the synod.

A graduate of Wittenberg College and Hama Divinity School at Springfield, O., Rev. Hauter was ordained into the Lutheran ministry in 1919.

The Boone County Lutheran charge which he serves is probably the oldest religious body in Kentucky which has had a continuous history. It was founded before 1800.

Rev. Hauter was named to fill a vacancy left by the death of a Louisville pastor.

MARSHALL FACES MURDER CHARGE

ELSMERE MARSHALL EXONERATED BY CORONER'S JURY—TRIAL TO BE HELD MAY 12.

Although exonerated by a coroner's jury in fatal shooting of John T. Angel, aged Elsmere man, Marshall T. W. Rash, still must face a murder charge which was filed Monday, May 4, by Angel's son. The case will be tried in Kenton County Court May 12.

The Coroner's jury, impaneled by Dr. James P. Riffe, held that Marshall Rash killed Angel in self-defense while performing his duties. Several witnesses affirmed this verdict.

"Other evidence will be produced at the trial," O. M. Rogers, attorney for the Angel family, said.

PROF. JOHN URI LLOYD

Whereas, the great architect of the universe, the giver of all good gifts and graces, has in His infinite wisdom and mercy, called from this earthly sojourn to eternal rest Father of Mr. J. T. Lloyd, Mrs. O. C. Melbourne and Mrs. J. A. Britt.

Whereas, the life he lived was a never ending argument for the higher thoughts, for nobler deeds and greater achievements. Therefore be it resolved that we members of the Sophia Webster Lloyd Memorial Society tender to the family our heartfelt sympathy and recommend him to our God and Master, and be it further resolved that a page be set aside in the minutes and a copy be sent to the family as a tribute to the memory of their beloved Father.

WOOL CLIP TO SELL JUNE 9TH.

AT WALTON—60,000 POUNDS EXPECTED FROM BOONE COUNTY AS OUTLOOK FOR HIGHER PRICES IS MUCH BETTER THAN LAST YEAR

The Boone County Wool Clip consisting of approximately 60,000 pounds in the Boone County Wool Pool will be offered for sale at Walton, Tuesday, June 9th, according to H. E. White, President, and Lillard Scott, Secretary of the county association.

Every pool producer should list his wool with the precinct committeeman immediately. The Committee consists of C. F. Blankenbeker, Florence; J. C. Bedinger, Walton; O. K. Powers, Verona; John Conley, Beaver; Ezra Blankenbeker, Union; Orville Y. Kelly, Carlton; Lillard Scott, Grant; Chas. Stevens, Petersburg; Clint Riddell, Bullittsville; L. D. McGlasson, Constance and Hubert L. White, Burlington.

Prospects are for exceptionally good prices this year with present prices substantially above those of last year. The county pool is one of the oldest and most successful in the State. Growers nearly always receive a premium price, the wool is delivered and paid for at three convenient points in the county and every grower for the same grade of wool receives the same rate of return. More than 90 per cent of the wool produced in the county is sold thru the pool. This is an important indication of its success.

JUNIOR WEEK SCHOLARSHIP

AWARDED BOONE COUNTY BOY —DEMONSTRATION TEAMS AND SEWING CLUB ALSO TO BE REPRESENTED

Mr. Harold Ogden of Burlington, 4-H Club will receive a trip to 4-H Junior Week held at the University of Kentucky, June 8th to 13th, according to an announcement receivd from the State 4-H Club Department last Monday.

Harold's scholarship trip was awarded for his championship exhibit at the Northern Kentucky 4-H Tobacco Show and Sale at the Kenton Loose Leaf Tobacco Warehouse in Covington last December. Six hundred outstanding 4-H Club boys and girls and adult leaders from all over Kentucky will attend the event. Boone county will also be represented at this event with the demonstration teams and girls sewing club style show champions to be selected at the Annual Spring Rally to be held at Burlington, Friday, May 15th.

There will be a chicken supper given by the Bullittsville Christian Church, Saturday night, May 9th at 6:00 p. m. Complete supper for only 25c. Everyone welcome.

Attorneys Walter Vest, Charles Riley and County Attorney Sidney Gaines were in Burlington Monday.

Kentucky's Senior Senator Again Democratic Keynoter

SENATOR ALBEN W. BARKLEY

President Franklin D. Roosevelt will accept the renomination, which the Democratic National Convention is expected to give him, in an outdoor demonstration the night of Saturday, June 27, on Franklin Field, University of Pennsylvania.

Announcement of this plan was made last Saturday by Postmaster James A. Farley, the National chairman, who also announced that Senator Barkley will be temporary chairman and keynoter, and Senator Joseph T. Robinson, of Arkansas, permanent chairman.

Senator Barkley was the keynoter at Chicago four years ago, and Robinson the permanent chairman of the National Convention in San Francisco in 1920 when James M. Cox was nominated for President and Roosevelt for Vice-President.

Hon. Alben W. Barkley, senior United States Senator from Kentucky, now serving in the seventy-fourth congress, has been a familiar figure in the national halls of legislation since March, 1913 when he took his seat in the sixty-third congress as representative from the first Kentucky District.

He served as chairman of the Democratic state convention at Louisville and Lexington in May, 1929, and 1924, respectively, and was delegate at large to the democratic national conventions at San Francisco in 1920, at New York in 1924, and at Houston in 1928. Four years ago he was temporary chairman and keynoter for Franklin D. Roosevelt at the national convention held in Chicago, and it is a well known fact that President Roosevelt regards Senator Barkley as one of his most able advisers. As a member of the senate, Senator Barkley is a member of the Committee on Finance, Committee on Banking and Currency, and the Committee on Interstate Commerce. He has taken an active and important part in the framing and passage of many of the most important laws which have been enacted during his membership in the senate.

Senator Barkley is a consistent member of the Methodist Episcopal Church. The record of his long, honorable and useful career in both the profressional and public life is one of which his fellow Kentuckians are justly proud.

WHISKEY TAX AGAIN

Frankfort, Ky., April 30—Whisky production tax advocates fell 11 votes short today in an attempt in the house of representatives to force first reading for a pending bill to increase the production tax from five cents to 15 cents a gallon.

They obtained 40 votes on the motion of W. T. Baker, (D), Shelbyville, to give the bill a reading despite refusal of the house revenue and taxation committee to report it. Fifty-one votes were required. Opponents polled 37 votes.

DINN—McCARTLE

Jesse Lee Dinn, Devon, and Robert Owen McCartle, Burlington, were united in marriage Friday night, May 1. The young couple will make their home in Burlington, with Mr. McCartle's sister. The Recorder unites with their many friends in wishing them a prosperous and happy married life.

TAX ON NEW CAR SALES

MINOR AMENDMENTS ADDED TO BILL; SENATOR THOMPSON AGAINST TAX

Frankfort, Ky., April 30.—The senate today passed, 20 to 16, the new automobile sales or "usage" tax bill, returning it to the house for consideration of minor amendments.

The vote followed an hour's debate, during which the senate again rejected an amendment offered by Fred A. Harrison (D), Williamstown, to reduce the rate to two per cent, and another amendment by Senator Jos. P. Tackett, (D), Prstonburg, to apply the tax to the retail prices at the factory. Senator J. H. Thompson voted against the bill.

DEATH OF DONORS

NOTE—The following clipping was taken from the Kentucky Female Orphan School Bulletin:

Recently two friends of the school have died, Mrs. Louisa Graves, of Erlanger, Kentucky, who was the wife of our friend, Joseph H. Graves. Mr. Graves established a scholarship in 1928. The other being Mr. Jonn P. Duncan, of Burlington, Kentucky, who gave us a pledge of $2,000.00 for the establishing of the John P. Duncan Fund.

TWO TIE FOR GREATEST NUMBER OF BOOKS READ

In a contest for the child reading the greatest number of books during the school year, sponsored by Mrs. E. E. Kirkwood, primary teacher in the local school, Polly and Jean Rouse had 39 each to their credit. Other first grade students who made creditable showings in outside rading activeities were Emil King, 19; Laura Frances Clore, 16; Don Loomis, 9; Wayne Jones, Homer Brown, David Tanner and Michael Poole, 7 each, and Tom Doyle, 6. These young pupils are to b commended for their early school interest.

TWO YOUTHS CAPTURED HERE

BY BOONE COUNTY AUTHORITIES—ALL CHARGES DISMISSED AS THIS WAS FIRST OFFENSE

Two youths, giving their ages as thirteen years, were arrested here Sunday morning by Sheriff Cotton and Deputy Sheriff Walton. The two boys confessed that they had escaped from a Catholic institution in Ohio and also of the robbery charges that was placed against them. Station X was immediately notified and the boys were placed in their care.

Last Saturday, two boys escaped from the Catholic Home across from Taylorsport, Ky., and made their way to Taylorsport where they entered the home of Mr. Jack Sprague. They took one dollar and forty-five cents in money, a cake and some other food. After making this raid they also succeeded in getting Mr. Sprague's boat and making their get-away.

The boat was found later at Dam 37 and the youths were arrested shortly after by Sheriff Cotton and Walton.

Cincinnati officials were notified and the boys were turned over to Station X Sunday morning.

The boys confessed to Mr. Sprague that they had stolen his property and Mr. Sprague made it known that he did not wish the boys prosecuted as this was their first offense and that the youths were only thirteen years old.

All the goods that had been stolen was returned to Mr. Sprague immediately after the confession of the boys.

THOS. LOGAN WILL SPEAK

TO YOUNG MEN'S DEMOCRATIC CLUB OF BOONE COUNTY AT REGULAR MEETING MONDAY NIGHT AT COURT HOUSE

TWO MILLION DOLLARS NEEDED

TO BALANCE KENTUCKY'S BUDGET—TAX ON FOUNTAIN AND BOTTLED DRINKS AND TOBACCO WAREHOUSE STORAGE EXPECTED TO LARGELY COVER AMOUNT NEEDED.

Six revenue bills estimated to yield $5,660,000 annually have been passed to date by the General Assembly of Kentucky during the special revenue session now entering its fifth week at Frankfort. These estimates, and all others given herein, have been made by Dr. James W. Martin, chairman of the State Tax Commission. In some cases the estimates are less than those originally announced. All estimates refer to anticipated revenue over and above that produced by laws now in effect:

TAX SOURCE	ESTIMATED ANNUAL YIELD
Alcoholic Beverages	$2,200,000
Inheritances	400,000
Incomes	2,000,000
Race Track Licenses	160,000
Cigarettes	900,000
Auctioneers' Licenses (no estimate)	000
TOTAL	$5,660,000

Five other measures are well on the way toward passage, estimated to yeild $3,350,000 annually:

TAX SOURCE	ESTIMATED ANNUAL YIELD
Lubricating Oil, 2c per qt.	$400,000
Motor Vehicles—3% on new cars	850,000
Utility Service—3% on users' bills	900,000
Driver's License—$1 yearly	450,000
Admissions—10%	750,000
TOTAL	$3,359,000

These totals add up to $9,010,000 in new revenue. Present state revenues amount to approximately $11,000,000. The budget recently fixed by the State Budget Board for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1936 is $22,469,526.11, exclusive of $865,000 for fee-supported agencies which are self-sustaining (such as the Game and Fish Commission).

This leaves approximately $2,460,000 to be raised in addition to the tax levies enumerated above, in order to balance the budget. It is expected to be derived from the following sources:

TAX SOURCE	ESTIMATED ANNUAL YIELD
Fountain and Bottled Soft Drinks	$1,200,000
Tobacco Warehouse Storage	600,000
Natural Gas Production	200,000
Pin Ball & Slot Machines (no est.)
TOTAL	$2,000,000

Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Cropper, Mr. and Mrs. Garnett Tolin, Mrs. John Lassing, Jr., Mrs. Herbert Snyder, Mrs. A. B. Renaker and daughter all attended the Derby Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. John Lassing, Jr., and daughter Mary Lina, and Robert Lassing, spent Tuesday in Louisville.

MOTHER'S DAY

Next Sunday is Mother's Day and millions of children will express affection for their mothers in some tangible way.

This is a splendid idea and all of us should appreciate the opportunity it offers. Affection and love for one's own mother is the natural order of living and in some individuals has grown into a veneration for motherhood in general and is marked by increasing concern for the physical well-being of all mothers.

Mother's Day will not have achieved its purpose in our lives until we, as a people, reach the last stage. Unhappily, the number of deaths that accompany motherhood in the United States every year indicates a tragic failure on our part to do all that should be done for our Mothers. Encouraging, however, is the sentimnt that has demanded that steps be taken to assure proper safeguards for all mothers and to save the lives of many women needlessly sacrificed each year.

The individual reader of this article may think that his, or her influence is small, but nevertheless we urge everyone to take some interest in the problem. Certainly civilization has not reached a very high level when such a condition continues to exist without effective protest from children who have grown into maturity and understand the factors involved.

Let us pledge it as our duty to the one who has made us what we are and whose love for us stands far above anything else in life, that on Sunday, May 10th, (Mother's Day) that we will do something to make our own mother happy.

Lesson for May 10

EFFECTUAL PRAYER

LESSON TEXT—Luke 18:1-14.

GOLDEN TEXT—God be merciful to me a sinner.—Luke 18:13.

PRIMARY TOPIC — How Two Men Prayed.

JUNIOR TOPIC — When Prayer Changes Things.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How Should I Pray?

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—How Shall We Pray Effectively?

From first to last the books of the Bible teem with the language and spirit of prayer. Prayers of every type are found in the Old Testament—personal confession and petition, intercession, and especially praise to Jehovah voiced in private and public prayers.

The present lesson offers definite instruction by a great Teacher.

I. "Men Ought Always to Pray" (v. 1).

Prayer is necessary to spiritual life. What breathing is to the physical body prayer is to the spiritual existence. Men ought to pray under every variety of circumstance; in time of sorrow and burden, for strength to endure; in time of joy and success, for grace to behave aright.

Prayer ought to be persistent even when the answer is not immediately recognized. "All men pray at times," we are told. To the Christian alone belongs the faith-filled and persistent prayer. God hears and answers prayer, even when we do not understand the mysteries of delay.

II. The Urgent Prayer of a Widow (vv. 2-8).

The picture here is of a helpless widow who was being cheated out of her property rights, coming to a godless judge for redress. Her only means of getting help was persistently to declare the justice of her claim. He complied with her urgent request, not because he feared God or man, but to get rid of her. The point here is not that God is like this unjust judge, that he can be teased into compliance, but rather the teaching is by contrast. If through persistence the judge yields, how much surer is the help of a merciful God for the elect who cry unto him day and night. The believer's prayer is to a covenant keeping God. This is why the truth concerning the coming of Christ is of such meaning. The church should pray for the fulfillment of God's promise, and not be disheartened and discouraged, as are some (II Pet. 3:4). Though many may despair, we should be assured that genuine faith will abide and that the divine promise concerning the coming of Christ will be fulfilled.

III. The Prayer of the Proud Pharisee (vv. 9-12).

1. He took a striking attitude (v. 11). The Jewish custom was to stand while praying, but the word "stood" implies the assumption of ostentation. He was self-righteous and trusted in himself.

2. He prayed with himself (vv. 11, 12). He was merely soliloquizing, pretending to thank God, while really complimenting himself. He congratulated himself upon his morality (v. 11). He claimed to thank God that he was not as other men: extortioners, adulterers, unjust, or even as the publican standing afar off. One who has been kept from the grosser sins ought to thank God, but should not set himself above his fellow men, as though the virtue were his own. He congratulated himself for his religious merit (v. 12). He fasted twice a week and gave tithes of all he possessed. He thus informed God that he did even more than was required.

IV. The Prayer of the Humble Publican (v. 13).

How great the contrast in the prayer and spirit of the publican! He did not stand with ostentation, but for very shame could not so much as lift up his face to heaven, but smote upon his breast, a sign of anguish and despair, and cried "God be merciful to me a sinner." That this heart-cry is indeed the heart of the lesson is indicated from the fact that it is cited as the golden text.

V. Christ's Testimony (v. 14).

Christ makes it unmistakably evident that the attitude and petition of the publican meets with his favor. Pharisees of every age, for their pride and self-righteousness are rejected of God. The spirit of the publican expressing itself in the prayer of a penitent, will today meet with the commendation, "This man went down to his house justified."

The believer who weighs thoughtfully the meaning of this lesson will find much encouragement to prayer. He must be justified, knowing his sins forgiven in answer to penitential prayer. He must pray in spite of a natural impulse to faint, to neglect the practice of prayer; he ought always to pray, and not faint.

A Harsh Word

To be silent, to suffer, to pray when we cannot act, is acceptable to God. A disappointment, a contradiction, a harsh word received and endured in his presence, is worth more than a long prayer.—Fenelon.

Ennobling Our Work

Our daily life should be sanctified by doing common things in a religious way. There is no action so slight or so humble but it might be done to a great purpose or ennobled thereby.—G. MacDonald

Jake Cook has gone to Uniontown to work on Dam 39.

HEBRON

Dr. Larmier, of Wittenberg College preached an excellent sermon at the Hopeful church Sunday.

The residence of Mrs. Mary Cloud burned down last Tuesday afternoon. The fire first started in a woodshed, burning the cellar house and residence. Some of the contents of the residence were saved.

HOPEFUL

C. S. Acra arrived home Friday from Lexington where he has been teaching school.

Misses Laura and Etta Beemon had as their guests Sunday Mrs. W. L. Kirkpatrick and children, Albert and Georgie, Mrs. Oro Ross and Stanley Easton.

UNION

The shower given at the home of Miss Eugenia Riley on Tuesday of last week in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Weaver, was well attended and many useful and beautiful gifts were received.

Mrs. Jane Head, who has been ill the past week, is recovering.

GUNPOWDER

Albert Robbins has accepted the position as lineman of the Farmer's Mutual Telephone Co.

Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Tanner went to Covington last Sunday to visit his sister, Mrs. P. O. Griffin, of Erlanger, who was taken to St. Elizabeth hospital on Friday of last week.

ASHBY FORK

We regretted very much to lose one of our old friends and neighbors, Aunt Martha Delph, whose death occurred last Tuesday.

Mrs. Fritz Shinkle was called to Cleves, Ohio, last Tuesday where the infant son of her sister, Mrs. Everett Barnes, of Wabash, Ind., was brought for burial.

LOCALS

W. A. Gaines and son Bernard returned home from St. Petersburg, Fla., one day last week where they spent the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. Timothy Westbay and Mr. and Mrs. Wyatt Westbay of Covington, were visiting friends and relatives here Sunday afternoon.

W. M. Baisley, of Bullittsville, was a business visitor in Burlington last Monday. Mr. Baisley has been confined to his home by sickness most of the winter and we are glad to see him out again.

Judge J. M. Lassing returned home from Florida, Friday.

Walter Brown is recovering from the effects of an operation performed at a Cincinnati hospital last Saturday. A large carbuncle was removed from the back of his neck, which had caused him much intense suffering.

BELLEVIEW

Mrs. Richard Marshall

Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Linney and daughter, of Norwood, O., spent Thursday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Richard Marshall.

Mrs. David Caudill, Mrs. Sleet and Miss Helen Grant closed a successful term of school here Friday, and the town will seem deserted without tne coming and going of the school children.

Dr. Clayton Rogers and family of Louisville, visited relatives here over the week-end. Miss Espey Hensley, who is a patient in the Pope hospital there, accompanied them and spent the time with her parents and brother.

Mr. and Mrs. O. P. Phipps, of Lawrenceburg, Ind., spent Sunday with relatives in Belleview.

A large crowd attended the all-day meeting at the Baptist church Sunday and enjoyed the entire program for the day.

Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Bradford have sold their farm and are now residents of Belleview.

Mrs. Richard Marshall, who has been very ill, is slowly improving.

Mrs. Lizzie Smith has had a Frigidaire installed in her home.

Several from here attended Commencement exercises at Burlington Tuesday night. Kenneth Rogers was the only one from here to graduate from High school this year.

The church is having the parsonage repaired, painted and papered.

Mrs. Hugh McArtnur's father and sister were visitors at her home during the week and attended prayer meeting service at the Baptist church Wednesday night.

Mrs. Ephriam Clore returned home Thursday after spending a few days with her sister in Rising Sun, Indiana.

GET A CAR WITH STYLE . . .

THE FORD V-8 is truly a modern 1936 production. Its body is smartly streamlined from bumper to bumper.
Inside you will find new room . . . ss, new custom type upholstery, newly designed instrument panel and handles. Generous luggage space is provided in a trunk at the rear.
In performance and riding comfort, this new Ford gives features found only in cars costing hundreds of dollars more. Yet economy and dependability have not been sacrificed in the slightest. This is the most economical Ford car on upkeep costs ever built.
No matter how much you can afford to pay for a new car, be sure to see the Ford V-8 for 1936. A close inspection will convince you it has everything you want—and is a modern car in every sense of the word.

"I CALL IT A BARGAIN!"

Safe Cold now costs no more than Ordinary Refrigeration

Visible Cold

The controls of the 1936 Kelvinator keep food compartment temperatures ideal, regardless how hot it is in the kitchen. And you can see what the temperature is, because of a Built-in Thermometer which tells you that food is being kept surely, safely, dependably cold.

● And there's a lot of difference between safe cold — as provided by Kelvinator — and ordinary automatic refrigeration.

In Kelvinator you know it's safe because in Kelvinator you have Visible Cold at all times. No guessing about food compartment temperature — you can see it on Kelvinator's unique Built-in Thermometer.

In Kelvinator you know it's economical. Because Kelvinator gives you a certified statement of low operating cost.

In Kelvinator you know you're protected—with Visible Protection. The manufacturer backs each Kelvinator with a Five Year Protection Plan.

In addition, Kelvinator gives you rubber grids in all ice trays, interior light, automatic defroster, vegetable crisper and all of the other conveniences you have a right to expect. See the new Kelvinators, and you'll agree: "My next refrigerator will be a Kelvinator".

SWOLLEN RIVERS

Thousands of dairymen and farmers in flood swept sections of this country were hard hit when torrential spring rains stirred the swollen rivers to the extent that they spewed their turbulent and death-dealing wrath on countryside and town. But the milk producers carried on. Babies, hospitals, the sick and the weak—not to mention regular milk routes must be served.

Above, the family cow in this farm home parlor gives an idea of what one farmer faced in the Wheeling, West Virginia area. It's probably the first time Bossie has been milked from an upholstered milking stool. The stanchions for this cow and one in the dining room are formed from a wrecked wooden bed. Straw covers a carpet that once was this farm woman's pride. Below, farmers are forced to use boats to rescue their cows from danger while city milkmen turned sailors to deliver milk to stricken customers.

The local Red Cross chapter is making every effort to aid unfortunate farmers such as these. Won't you do your part?

The 17-year locust punctures a young tree limb in which to lay its eggs.

That Hum You'll Be Hearing Signals Arrival of Locusts

THAT famous insect, the 17-year locust, one of the few pests of Biblical days that has come on down to modern times, is due in Kentucky and Tennessee this year. Its droning, humming noise, not unlike that made by a bombing squadron of airplanes, may awaken you some morning in late May or early June.

Brood No. 22, as this particular race of locust is known to entomologists, is expected to arrive along about the last week in May, and to depart by June 20. States they are expected to visit this year include Kentucky, Tennessee, West Virinia, North Carolina, Georgia, Indiana, Ohio, Illinois, Virginia, New York, Michigan, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland and the District of Columbia.

Empty pupal shells of the periodical cicada cling to leaves.

"Their arrival will be known by the noise they make," said Professor W. A. Price, Kentucky state entomologist. "There can be no mistake about their droning and humming."

When they come they will be here by the millions, filling trees, especially the shade trees, mate, lay eggs and die. In four or five weeks the eggs will hatch, the young nymphs crawl into the ground to feed on the roots, trees and emerge again in 17 years.

They may do some damage, especially to young trees. They puncture young limbs for a place in which to lay their eggs. On very young trees this puncture may cause limbs to break, in some instances leaving only the trunk of the tree standing.

Damage to more mature trees will amount to little more than a severe pruning. Nothing can be done about the pest; it is just one of those things that pesters definite parts of the country every 13 or 17 years.

27 Distinct Broods

There are 27 distinct broods of locusts, according to the Kentucky entomologist. Seventeen of them appear at 17-year intervals and 10 of them at 13-year periods. One or more broods appear some time or other in every state east of the Rocky Mountains except Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont. Every year there is a brood emerging in some part of the country.

The life cycle of the pest has been carefully studied and chartered by entomologists. The adults appear in swarms in late May or early June. The males begin to sign in about four or five days after this first appearance and fill the air with their shrill calls, which are produced by vibrating a pair of parchment-like membrances located beneath the base of the rear wing. This noise is sufficiently loud and continuous to attract immediate attention.

Twigs Will Wither

About two weeks after emergence from the ground the females begin to deposit eggs. Each female deposits from 300 to 500 eggs in numerous punctures made by her powerful ovipositor in the twigs and limbs of trees. The twigs wither, giving the trees the appearance of being struck by blight. These punctures are often so deep that the twigs die sooner or later and drop to the ground.

The eggs deposited in the fallen branches incubate in six to eight weeks and the young nymphs immediately enter the ground. There they feed upon the roots of trees and other substances. They change their position from time to time, sometimes going into the soil to a depth of 10 feet. Usually, however, they can be found within two feet of the surface.

Live Underground

For 13 to 17 years, depending upon the race, they live and develop under the ground. In April of their last year of nymphal development, preparations are made for emergence from the ground, Open galleries are made to the surface, soil being carried from below to construct the so-called cicada chimneys which extend four or five inches above the surface of the ground. From the ends of the chimneys come the nymphs in the evening.

They proceed to the nearest upright object, which may be a tree, side of building, fence post or weed stem; anything, in fact, upon which they can climb to expose their bodies to the air. Within a short time, often less than an hour, the skin along the back splits open and the adult winged insect works its way out. The wings, short and soft at first, developed rapidly and the legs and body harden. By the following day the insect is ready to fly and enter upon its short aerial life of about 30 days.

During this short stay little if any food is taken. The males devote their time largely to voiciferous calling of females and the latter occupy themselves depositing eggs.

Dodder-free red clover seed is an important specialty cash crop.

Walker Tanner of Obion County, Tennessee Demonstrates Successful Farming

By GEORGE H. DACY

WHENEVER I hear of a farmer who has served as president of his County Farm Bureau for several years, it is just sheer instinct to docket him among the outstanding producers of his state. For when it comes to selecting a chief for the Farm Bureau, farmers are prone to forget political, religious, fraternal, and social affiliations and pick the individual among them who has made a success of his home business.

When I learned from "ag" experts, Walker Tanner, Obion County, Tennessee farmer, had officiated as president of the Obion County Farm Bureau for two years and that he had produced more wilt-resistant red clover seed than any other grower in his state, I vowed I would contact him as soon as possible. This practical yarn about one of the most successful establishments which you will see in a dog's age is the direct result of a visit to the Tanner farm.

It would not be true to say that Walker Tanner began farming where his father left off, as the former was only a lad of 12 years when the demise of the latter occurred. This much, however, is certain: The father would be inordinately proud if he, in person, could review what his boy has accomplished as a seed producer, stockman, and farmer in the last 21 years. And the gleam and glitter of prosperity, as evidenced by as attractive a farm home as you will see in a week's journey, practical farm buildings, well-maintained fences, and well-tilled fields, would surely impress that father that herein dwells a master-farmer.

Care of Fields First

Mr. Tanner, senior, died nine years before his son was graduated from the University of Tennessee; during that period the Tanner farm of 210 acres, located in Houser Valley, three miles southwest of Union City, was operated by tenants. That occupancy was hard on the physical equipment of the farm—the buildings, fences, fencerows, and woodland. Fortunately, however, the tenants did not abuse the soil. However, there was a-plenty of "must" jobs demanding attention when young Tanner, fresh from the university campus arrived at the old home farm to take charge of its rehabilitation.

In the general rejuvenation campaign, care of the field crops and livestock took precedent over all other activities. However, neighbors, who occasionally passed that way, began to comment that the Tanner place again looked as though a Tanner were living there. And that desirable condition of Tanner occupancy has persisted even until this writing.

Walker Tanner buys his stockers in Texas, grazes and feeds them for eleven months and markets at an average weight of 1,000 pounds.

This comfortable, modernly equipped family home is the crowning glory of the Tanner farm—and its maintenance is the goal of all of the sound farming practices followed on this progressive establishment.

Here are a few of the indicators of good farming which I observed at the Walker Tanner farm. Mr. Tanner raises wilt-resistant red clover seed as a speciality cash crop. The price for this seed is invariably high enough to make production profitable. The customary red clover crop aggregates from 30 to 40 acres, with the seed yield ranging between two and four bushels per acre. He has been growing red clover and threshing seed from the September cutting since 1923. He has sold seed for as high as $40 a bushel, with the current retail price approximately $15. By going over the red clover field every second week during the growing season in order to snuff out objectionable weeds Mr. Tanner has supplied Federally inspected dodder-free seed.

Walker Tanner grows corn, wheat, red clover, and soy beans, marketing only the wheat and clover seed as regular cash crops, and feeding everything else to beef cattle and hogs. That system effectualizes conversion of the home-grown feed into concentrated and marketable livestock products—meat on the hoof. It provides for plenty of home-produced fertilizer. An effective crop rotation, regular growing of red clover and soy beans, the conservation and efficient use of manure in replenishing fertility, have teamed together so well that Mr. Tanner uses 'nary a pound of commercial fertilizer on his interesting establishment from one calendar end to the next.

Systematic Rotation Followed

The usual rotation procedure is to plant a given field to corn and soy beans for two years; the second season, after the corn and beans are either harvested mechanically or consumed directly by cattle and hogs, the tract is prepared for winter wheat, which is seeded about the last of October. The following February, clover and grass seed are sown in the wheat, unless a red clover seed crop is the goal, in which case, no grass is sown on that field. After the wheat is cut the next June, the clover and grass, or clover alone are large enough to graze and cut for hay. However, any cattle or hogs that range on the new sod are removed in December, and subsequently are debarred from grazing that field until the following April. Not long after April Fool's Day, cattle on a stocking basis of 1 1-2 steers per acre, and hogs, at a rate of four head per acre of grass, are turned into the pastures. The livestock are removed in season so that a hay crop of from two to three tons to the acre can be saved. Hay harvest occurs the latter part of May or the first few days in June.

The grade Hereford stockers which are grazed and fed on the Tanner farm are purchased in Texas each Winter, the average weight being 500 pounds.

Despite the grass of good quality and adequate abundance, Mr. Tanner is a practitioner of that modern system of feeding grain on grass in beef production. During the grazing season from April to December, he provides a light feed of crushed corn (cob, shuck, and grain) and approximately two pounds of cottonseed meal daily per animal.) At market time, the big-barreled, broad-backed Herefords average around 1,100 pounds on the hoof.

Swine Follow Cattle

The swine, which follow the cattle, are home-raised, a rapidly maturing breed of hogs which produces good graziers and also efficacious harvesters of that portion of the corn and soy bean crop which are "hogged down." After grazing with the cattle throughout the Spring and Summer, the hogs are liberated about the second week in September in a combination field of corn and soy beans. By late October they are ready for the butcher's block.

Six mules, a saddle horse, and a tractor furnish the power on this well-tilled and efficiently operated farm. Four milch cows are maintained to supply milk for the owner's family and his farm helpers. Eggs and meat for the table are provided by a flock of 100 layers. A two-acre strawberry patch — another practical source of cash turnover—provides as much fruit as the helper's family is able to pick.

Home Measures Success

To this writer's way of thinking, the social measure of the farmer's success in farming is afforded by the home in which he dwells. Rightfully, the Tanner farm rates a modern and comfortable owner's home. And that is exactly the type of residence in which Walker Tanner, his wife, and two sons, respectively, 15 and 17 years of age, reside. The spick-spanness of the farmhouse makes it look new; actually, it is ten years old.

Obion County is fortunate in having progressive, resident farmers like Walker Tanner; it is equaly blessed in having an efficient, energetic county agent like Franklin Yates. These two gentlemen have worked hand in hand for the improvement of agriculture, stock-farming, and cooperative marketing, particularly during the several years when Mr. Tanner was president of the local Farm Bureau.

MOTOR CAMPING REAL FUN

A comfortable tent camp on North Chickamauga Creek, Tenn.

By DICK WOOD

NOW is the time to plan that mid-summer vacation trip for the youngsters, to be taken when the corn's laid by. Young folks delight in camping. Mothers enjoy the novelty of letting the men folks try their hand at cooking. Every man who has camped thinks he is an expert at cooking pancakes or broiling steak.

Nowadays when most farmers own one or more automobiles, motor camping is a popular sport. Motor camping permits extended trips at moderate cost. I know a Kentucky farmer who winters in Florida at no extra cost over living at home, excepting gas and oil for the trip. He and his wife live in a comfortable trailer coach. Most of the winter's food supply is taken along from the farm.

Can Be Built

The farmer who has a fast light truck can readily convert it into a camping car, either by building in bunks and lockers, or by using it to haul a tent outfit. Many second-hand tent outfits are on the market now at a fraction of their original cost, due to the popularity of coach camping. A compact tent outfit may be hauled in a sedan or touring car, equipped with trunk and luggage racks.

Probably the best tent for motor camping is an umbrella model, about 9x9 feet for four persons. Folding cots may be used, or air mattresses may be spread on the floor cloth. The tent should be vermin and mosquito tight. Small gasoline camp stoves are inexpensive, although an outdoor wood fire will suffice for cooking. Some sort of food cabinet or refrigerator should be bought or made. A nesting cook kit designed for camping is a convenience. A good outfit can be assembled in any dime-to-dollar store, including enamelware cups, plates and soup bowls.

Camping DeLuxe

While tent camping is more of a change from homelife, and will be enjoyed for its novelty by the youngsters, elderly folks on an extended tour will appreciate the greater comforts of the camp trailer. Now that cars are fitted with four brakes, and good roads extend in all directions, the properly designed camp trailer is no burden. It is a relief to passengers to have the entire camping outfit in a single unit back of the car instead of piled up in the tonneau and on running-boards.

The fold-down camp trailers with their canvas tops, are lighter and comfortable for ordinary camping trips. Camp coaches are more bulky and heavy, but represent the last word is deluxe camping facilities. They are fitted with Pullman type beds, breakfast room, kitchenette, refrigerator, water tank, cabinets, drawers and clothes lockers. Some have a heating stove and bathroom. The cost of factory jobs range from $300 up.

While camp life is interesting, there should be some objective to a camping trip. Usually it is sight-seeing, or it may be a fishing trip, or a tour of national parks.

It's a good idea to try new equipment out near home, before leaving on an extended trip. Rely on a check-list to avoid forgetting such essentials as matches, salt and the money bag.

JEST A-WHITTLIN' AN' A-THINKIN'

BY PETE GETTYS

First thing to learn in drivin' a car is to think. An' that advice's good for the feller on the farm, too.

D'jever realize what blamed hard work it is to just plain think? But the less you work your brain the more you have to work your legs.

About the first big mistake a would-be farmer makes is buyin' up a lot of hogs, cattle an' chickens—with no pasture, hay nor corn—jest didn't "think" he had to feed 'em out of his pocket 'stead of off the land.

An Oklahoma feller—used to be county health superintendent — recommends roast crow as a dainty dish. An' why not? On our place we've been feedin' crows seed corn, bird eggs, young guineas an' chickens all our lives. It'd settle the crow problem if it turns out they're a delicacy.

But like makin' rabbit pie—you've first got to ketch the rabbit and ketchin' him ain't no where to gettin' Old Jim Crow in the pot. Uncle Remus said Old Brer Rabbit had more sense than all the rest of the creatures — but Old Sis Crow's got 'em all beat. .

Recollect when you were a little old dirty-faced boy an' you'd be playin' an' stub your toe an' it'd hurt so bad—you wouldn't cry in front of the other boys but jest as soon as you got home you'd jest go a-flyin' to mother an' stick your head down in her old calico apron lap and cry like your heart'd burst—an' she'd pat you and love you an' say you're her little man, tie up your toe an' kiss away the dirty little tears, you'd feel so good an' know nothing could get you. Then she'd butter you a great big piece of her salt raisin' bread—put lots of jam on it an' you'd go out an' sit on the kitchen steps an' eat it — old shaggy Shep'd set an' watch, beggin' for every bite you'd take, an' the old rooster'd come stalkin' up an' every now an' then pick a crumb outta your hand—the old cat with her tail straight up in the air'd rub up against your bare legs and' purr just as contented-like.

BETWEEN THE ROWS

By Roy H. Park

Down in Enterprise, Alabama, a few years ago they erected a monument to the boll weevil because the keen appetite of this pesky insect was the only thing that was ever able to convince farmers they must diversify their crops.

The monument is in the main part of town and bears this inscription: "In profound appreciation of the boll weevil and what it has done as the herald of prosperity."

The boll weevil may also be credited with another isdirect accomplishment—organization of the 4-H Clubs.

I read how in 1903 when the boll weevil became a serious menace the Department of Agriculture assigned Dr. Seaman A. Knapp to the task of finding out what could be done to produce cotton under boll weevil conditions.

He worked out a plan calling for rotation of crops, better tillage, and production of home-grown crops and feeds. The problem was to get farmers to adopt his plan. He decided the best way to impress them with its advantages would be through actual demonstrations on farms.

Dr. Knapp was particularly anxious to get farmers to grow more corn. To carry out this aim Boys' Corn Clubs were organized over the South.

The Knapp idea of crop rotation was never able to stop the pesky boll weevil, but Dr. Knapp did something that has placed his name among the immortals—he organized what has since become the 4-H Clubs which now dot rural sections of the nation with approximately a million members.

Remember Columbus never found the short route to India he was seeking—but discovered a New World of much greater importance.

You may have read about a school teacher in a city school up North having a cow brought to the school for the nature class because none of the boys and girls in her class had ever seen a real live cow.

It may have been one of those girls making her first visit to the country, staying with her uncle in West Virginia, and was much interested in everything she saw.

"Oh, what a funny looking cow!" she exclaimed. "Why hasn't it any horns?"

"There are several reasons," answered the uncle, "why a cow don't have horns. Some are born without horns and don't have any 'till the late years of their life. Others have their horns taken off. Some breeds are not supposed to have any horns. So there are many reasons why a cow sometimes does not have horns, but the chief reason why this cow doesn't have horns is that it isn't a cow at all. It's a horse."

Judge Ed Thompson of Missouri, stopped at a negro farm house in South Carolina to ask for highway information. While the housewife was directing the judge, her small son interrupted her. In admonishing him, she called the boy "Pizlum Civ." The judge, puzzled, asked where she got the name signified.

"Ah got it right from the Bible, mistah," she replied, and revealed a well-worn copy of the Scriptures. "It's right here," she said, pointing to Psalm CIV.

"Now I'm not going to talk very long," said a candidate for a political office in starting his speech, "but if you get what I'm going to say in your heads, you'll have the whole thing in a nutshell."

And he looked surprised when a roar of laughter followed his unintentional slam!

White Burley

from 1864 - 1936

By S. E. WRATHER,

Kentucky College of Agriculture

Tobacco fields, such as this one in Central Kentucky, now produce the major portion of the nation's White Burley. Culture of this particular variety has grown from about 1,000 pounds in 1865 to 346,500,000 pounds in Kentucky for 1931. Considered a freak of nature at first, it would be difficult now to find a person in this large tobacco region planting any other variety.

THE rapid rise and development of the Burley tobacco industry in Kentucky forms one of the most interesting chapters in the agricultural progress of the United States. Beginning, on a commercial basis, in 1867, the culture of this particular variety of tobacco has spread until in 1931 the production of White Burley tobacco in Kentucky was 346,500,000 pounds. Total production of Burley tobacco in the United States, in 1931, was 464,955,000 pounds. The other states producing Burley are, in order of their importance, Tennessee, Ohio, Indiana, Virginia, Missouri, North Carolina and West Virginia.

The following account of the origin of White Burley tobacco was related by A. F. Ellis, a tobacco dealer of Cincinnati, and published in The Western Tobacco Journal in 1875:

White Burley tobacco first made its appearance in the year 1864, near the village of Higginsport, Brown County, Ohio. In the Spring of that year, one George Webb procured from G. W. Barkley, of Bracken County, Kentucky, a small portion of tobacco seed of the kind then known as Little Burley. He sowed a part of this seed and grew a bed of fine looking plants, but when ready to transplant found among them, a few of a peculiar white or yellow color. Supposing them to be diseased or dwarfed plants, he pulled them up and threw them away.

1,000 Plants Raised

The next year, being short of seed, he sowed the remainder of this old seed and again found a portion of the same kind of plants that he had thrown away the year previous.

This excited the curiosity of Mr. Webb and others, whose attention had been called to these strange looking plants. As a result they were induced to transplant them. In all about 1,000 plants were raised, which proved to be healthy and thrifty. When fully ripe they were almost a cream color, making a great contrast with other tobacco.

The result of this experience created quite a sensation throughout the neighborhood. Many growers came from all directions of the surrounding country to see what they considered a freak of nature. The tobacco cured a bright yellow or cream color, but was adjudged bitter to the taste. Some growers concluded that although the tobacco colored well and produced the pounds, that on account of its bitter taste it would not be safe to plant any large portion of the next crop of this kind of tobacco, although a considerable amount of seed had been saved.

The plant beds that were sown of this seed in the year 1866 were found to contain a much larger portion of white plants than green ones. A sufficient quantity were transplanted to produce some 20,000 pounds of cured tobacco. Two hogsheads of this production were shipped to the Cincinnati market and were sold at a high price. The purchaser shipped the same variety of tobacco to the St. Louis Fair of 1867, and after being awarded the first and second premiums for Cutting Leaf, sold it for $58 per hundred.

Culture Gradually Increases

The record thus made at the several tobacco fairs of 1867 induced many of the enterprising planters of Brown County, Ohio, and Bracken County, Kentucky, to plant largely of this kind of tobacco. Its culture has since been gradually increasing throughout the entire district used for producing cutting tobacco until the present time. In the present day it would be a difficult task to find any person in this large tobacco region so ignorant of his pecuniary interest as to plant any other kind of tobacco.

It is interesting to note that Central Kentucky, the most important Burley tobacco producing area in the United States, was at one time the center of hemp production in America. Due to the substitution of other fibers, lack of markets and the profitableness of Burley tobacco the production of hemp, for fiber, in Central Kentucky has practically been abandoned.

Kentucky still contributes to the hemp industry by producing practically all of the hemp seed used in the United States for the production of hemp for fiber. This, however, requires only a small area and is confined to the deep narrow bottoms along the Kentucky River and its contributaries in the vicinity of High Bridge, Kentucky. With this exception the area has practically changed from hemp production to the production of Burley tobacco.

At one time the harvesting of hemp was a familiar scene in Central Kentucky, once the center of hemp production in America. This region, the most important Burley tobacco producing area in the United States, still produces practically all hemp seed used in America for the production of hemp for fiber.

Step Saving Methods Lighten Kitchen Labor

Small Changes Often Show Striking Results

STEP-SAVING methods for the farm kitchen are being stressed this year in home planning activities throughout the South. The objective sought is to cut in half, the number of steps taken by the average women in preparing the three daily meals for the family.

Thoughtful farm home-makers, home demonstration agents and university specialists in home management have jointly tackled this problem. Already they have discovered that there are plenty of kitchens where the mere rearrangement of equipment will work wonders in saving steps and eliminating lost motion.

The first step is to place equipment so that work progresses from right to left. Movements are to the left. This is logical since the left hand usually deposits utensils while the right hand does the work. Studies show that when the cabinet, or in some cases a cupboard with a table beneath, is directly to the left of the sink, much less effort is required and work is expedited.

"Assembly Line" Established

The chief step-saving systems hinge upon using refrigerator and sink as the base. It is from this point that preparation of food starts. The kitchen cabinet is the next point most frequently visited and the stove is the fourth point of contact.

The kitchen table should be located as nearly central as possible from refrigerator, sink, cabinet and stove. The table should never be placed in sequence from refrigerator to stove.

In many farm kitchens where running water is not available, it has been found a great convenience to use a reservoir such as an old oil or gas drum, or a large size keg with a tap attached. In this way, a day's supply of water can be stored at one time.

Kentucky University girls are trained in kitchen-craft.

Small Changes, Big Results

Home Demonstration Agents have constantly found that very little changes often accomplish surprising results. In one Maryland home, a sink and hand-pump were moved from the back porch into the kitchen and a capacious cabinet was built across one side of the room to just the right height for the comfort of the housewife while doing her kitchen work. These small changes cut work in this farm kitchen almost in half.

Miss Maude E. Wallace, Virginia Home Demonstration Agent in reporting on the work completed in 1935, tells specifically of 4,023 kitchens made more convenient; 409 sinks installed; 323 kitchens with running water installed. In all, there were 15,750 women enrolled in home improvement demonstration clubs in Virginia at the beginning of this year.

At the University of Kentucky, 150 girls enrolled in the college of agriculture are required to spend six weeks during their senior year in the University Home Management house where they are given intensive practice in keeping a home, particularly in problems of the home kitchen. Experimental cookery not only deals with problems of diet and nutrition, but also with modern step-saving kitchen practices.

In Tennessee, home management specialists of the extension service this year hope to reach 50,000 farm homes in their improvement projects—last year the total reached was 34,801.

Running Water Essential

In all kitchen improvement projects, the installation of running water is given consideration. In one demonstration system a simple force pump lifts the water over 20 feet from a spring 180 feet distant and then forces it into a tank 10 feet above in the attic. The complete cost for the installation of this system was less than $100.

Miss Lillian L. Keller, University of Tennessee Extension Specialist, explains that many kitchens can be made more comfortable by putting in an extra window and obtaining better ventilation. Two windows provided by putting the lower sash of a long narrow window on a level with the upper sash will give much better light and ventilation.

Smart Styles For Warm Days

SYLVIA SIDNEY'S CHOICE
Pattern No. H-3140.

This beguiling, yet simple garden frock worn by one of your screen favorites, Sylvia Sidney, features those touches you've been looking for in a frock which you can put together quickly and get into in a hurry without looking as if you have hurried. Ragian sleeves, and a Peter Pan collar with a shirtwaist closing give a youthfulness to the design. Skirt is perfectly plain with a kick pleat in the back.

Pattern designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Corresponding bust measurements 30, 32, 34, 36 and 38. Size 14 (32) requires 4⅛ yards of 35-inch fabric plus 1-3 yard of ribbon for the bow.

SPORTS FROCK
Pattern No. H-3145

Newest thing for summer sports wear is this smart white sharkskin frock sponsored by lovely Jane Wyatt. The waist and wing sleeves are cut in one, for simplicity in construction.

Pattern designed for sizes, 12, 14, 16, 18, 20 and 40. Corresponding bust measurements 30, 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40. Size 14 (32) requires 3½ yards of 35 or 39-inch fabric.

JUMPER FROCK
Pattern No. H-3150

Should further evidence be needed that Spring is here, please turn your gaze in the general direction of this youthful and summery jumper sport frock featured by Universal's charming Betty Lawford. For more or less immediate wear as a jumper and blouse combination, the blouse can later be discarded for active sports thus extending the utility of the frock and making it do double duty. It is made of uncrushable linen, so fashioned that it can be worn with a variety of blouses in various colors. Huge pearl buttons trim the skirt. And you can make it yourself, in a jiffy.

Pattern is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Size 14 requires 3⅛ yards of 39 inch fabric for the frock and 1¼ yards for the blouse.

Growing tomatoes in cloth-covered beds.

Low Voltage Electricity Heats Vegetable Hotbeds

TESTS begun this Spring in Gibson county, using electrically heated cables to grow vegetable plants in hotbeds, may have a vital effect upon future production of early plants in all West Tennessee.

Equipment used is considered inexpensive by those conducting the tests. And should a final checkup on costs and results support claims for the use of this method, it is believed that sweet potato, tomato, cabbage and other plants can be grown in larger volume.

It was in midwinter that manufacturers of the hotbed heating equipment, Tennessee Valley Authority workers and U. T. Extension Service representatives decided upon the tests. Thomas C. Wingo, Gibson county agent, first arranged with Travis James, farmer, living near Humboldt, to install the test equipment in hotbeds upon his place.

Exact Temperature Set

Electricity, at low voltage, is furnished through an electrical cable. A thermostat is supplied which maintains heat at any desired temperature. Thus, the exact temperature needed to bring to mato plants, cabbage, sweet potato or other slips, to early but healthy growth, can be obtained. Once the electricity is turned on, it is claimed that no further care or attention is needed. The only concern thereafter is watering and ventilating the bed.

Tests have shown another advantage. That is, if plants are not growing as rapidly as desired, the hotbed operator merely has to change the thermostat reading, On the other hand, should plants show a tendency to develop too quickly, heat can be reduced. At the end of the season, the cable switch can be thrown and, when plants are removed, the bed can be closed until the next season.

Low Consumption

The hollow cable used, permits of a low electricity consumption rate. During each 24 hours of operation, the rate varies, according to temperatures, from three fourths to two kilowatt hours for each sash, three by six feet.

Installation is easy and it is believed that tests will show a new method to employ cheap current.

Hogs fed on Kentucky distillery slop.

Distillery Slop For Hogs Aided By Adding Corn

A FEEDING test recently completed at the Kentucky Agricultural Experimental Station found thin distillery slop, the form in which it comes from the presses and is usually delivered to farmers, unsatisfactory for fattening hogs. It was necessary to settle the slop so as to increase its solid content and then to add limited quantities of corn and tankage for best results.

Slop feeding, once a great industry in Kentucky, is undergoing a revival with the restoration of whiskey distilling in Kentucky. Vast quantities of the stuff were once put through cattle and hogs, Large feed lots filled with stock are appearing in the vicinity of distilleries.

The Kentucky station fed three lots of 10 hogs each for a period of 15 weeks. Lot 1 was started on thin slop alone, just as it comes from the distilleries. The hogs at first turned up their noses, so to speak, but finally took to the stuff and at the end of the first five-week period was swilling nearly four gallons daily each.

Ration Changed

The hogs in this lot lost weight three weeks out of the first five weeks, their loss for the 35 days being nearly a fifth of a pound each daily. Professor E. J. Wilford notes that the slop in its thin form contains only four pounds of solids per 100 pounds of liquid. The necessity of drinking large quantities overworked the kidneys, he reported.

Because of the poor showing made by this lot it was deemed wise to change the ration. The slop was settled 24 to 36 hours and a third of the liquid skimmed off, thereby materially increasing the amount of solids. Shelled corn was added at the rate of 50 pounds and tankage at the rate of five pounds per barrel of the thin slop.

Average Gain Less

The first week after the hogs were changed from thin to settled slop, corn and tankage, the 10 animals gained a total of 160 pounds. At the end of the second five-week period they had gained 490 pounds or an average of 1.9 pounds per animal daily. In the third five-week period they added another 425 pounds.

The Lot 2 hogs used in the experiment were fed all the settled slop they would eat througout the 15 weeks. The 10 animals made a net loss of 13 pounds in the first five week period, a total gain of 145 pounds in the second five-week period, and 170 pounds during the last five weeks. Their average daily gain for 15 weeks was .29 of a pound per head, which was less than made by Lot 1.

Lot 3 received all of the settled slop they would eat in addition to shelled corn at the rate of 50 pounds per barrel of the thin slop, before the slop was settled. In the first five-week period they gained 150 pounds; the second period 216 pounds, or an average of .52 of a pound daily for 10 weeks.

Results Summarized

Toward the end of the second five-week period hogs in Lot 3 went off feed. The experimenters added tankage at the rate of a tenth of the weight of corn.

The first week after this change was made the 10 hogs in Lot 3 regained appetites and made a gain of 94 pounds, 73 pounds better than the previous week and 20 pounds better than for any one week. Their total gain for this five-week period was 507 pounds or an average daily gain per hog of 1.45 pounds.

Settling slop and feeding only the thicker portion was beneficial. The addition of corn to settled slop produced larger and more economical gains than the settled slop alone. The addition of tankage to corn and settled slop increased the gains over that of feeding only settled slop and corn.

Vegetables

With 13 states cooperating, the U. S. Department of Agriculture has established a vegetable breeding laboratory near Charleston, S. C. Dr. E. C. Auchter, principal horticulturist and assistant chief of the Bureau of Plant Industry states: "The purpose of the laboratory is to breed high quality disease-resistant vegetables adapted especially to the southern states."

Dr. B. L. Wade, of the U. S. D. A., is in charge of the laboratory. Materials produced there will be tested in all cooperating states.

Vegetable varieties from this and other countries will be used in breeding work. To select plants, expeditions are now en route to India, to Persia, to Turkey.

States cooperating are Virginia, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Tennessee, Louisiana, Kentucky, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Texas and the Carolinas.

Weather

During March and April, weather in the United States provided spectacular contrasts on the eastern seaboard. Precipitation was far above normal while in the Southwest and West there was far too little moisture.

Floods took their toll of lives and property in the East and choking dust storms occurred in the West. Some dust from the West was blown as far East as Boston.

Forest products are tenth in the Big Ten of farm crops. They are ranked in value by cotton, wheat, truck crops, tobacco, fruits and nuts, cotton, corn and hay. They outrank 35 other major farm crops. Figures released by the Department of Agriculture, show that farm woodlands pay their owners $63,000,000 a year. In Southern states, forest products rank from third to seventh among importance of farm crops.

It is estimated that farm woodlands provide an average of 2.500,000 farmers with both supplemental cash incomes, fuel wood, and building materials.

In April, the National Conservation Commission approved the purchase of more than a quarter-million acres of land for national forests. The aggregate cost of these lands was $893,476. Most of the new acquisitions were in the East. The bulk of the Appalachian purchases were in Virginia. Purchases were made in South Carolina, North Carolina, Florida and West Virginia.

Rainstormer

A rainstorm machine known as a "rainstormer," is being used by the Forest Service, U. S. D. A., in studies of the relationship of plant cover to runoff and erosion on mountain watersheds as a result of heavy rains. The rainstormer permits studies to be made without having to wait for rainstorms.

Test plots of ground are marked out on slopes and provided with the necessary equipment to measure rainfall, the erosion and the surface run-off of water. Then a portable gasoline-fire pump is set in a nearby creek and water conducted to a specially built sprinkler system employing hundreds of small spray nozzles. The artificial rainstorm thus produced provides a perfect imitation of the genuine cloudburst of any desired duration or intensity.

Studies to date, provide that fruit damages can be reduced by adequate vegetative cover protecting watersheds. The kind and density of the vegetation is more important in influencing the run-off and erosion than its steepness of slope or intensity of rainfall.

Cotton Roads

To promote the use of cotton in road building, the AAA has announced the detailed specifications and conditions of purchase for cotton mats and cotton fabric for road use. The program authorizes the purchase of roughly 80,000 cotton mats and sufficient fabric for a total of 1,000 miles of road. This would require in excess of 10,000,000 square yards of fabric.

Amounts actually purchased will depend upon requests made by the states. All requests are expected to be on file early in May.

China

Raw cotton stocks in China are unusually small for this time of year, according to the Department of Agriculture Representative, in Shanghai. It is anticipated that mills in China will substantially increase their imports. However, the reduced purchasing power of consumers may force a reduction in consumption to off-set shortage and stocks.

Recent studies in China indicate that 75 per cent of the yarn manufactured and sold in China is sold to consumers in the interior of the country who weave their own cloth on hand-looms.

The establishment of a tobacco monopoly in China was inaugurated late in March, when the government in Kwantung, assumed complete control of leaf tobacco. The monopoly is confined to the handling of leaf for the manufacture of cut tobacco. All farmers in the province are required to sell their leaf to the monopoly at a fixed price and all stocks of leaf in the hands of dealers was taken over.

Brazil

An increase of 48 per cent over last year's crop is contained in the first official estimate of the 1935-36 cotton crop in Southern Brazil. The prediction now is 904,000 bales of 478 pounds each, as compared with 610,000 bales last year.

Forest Fires

Airplanes and radio are becoming important instruments in fighting forest fires according to Roy Hedley, Chief of the Division of Fire Control, of the Forest Service.

"Perhaps the most important effort," according to Mr. Hedley, "is toward aerial fire control, which is opening up an entirely new field of forest fire combat, and will require many inquiries and experiments to develop a workable system. We plan to find out how far we can go in using planes in direct combat of fires. Several Forest Service officers have already done pioneer work in this field, We expect to try dropping water or chemicals direct on small fires to retard their progress until ground crews can reach the scene."

"But," Mr. Hedley said, "merely dropping chemical solutions on fires cannot solve the problem. The subject as a whole is complex. We are testing the relative values of various chemicals as fire retardants. Some of the so-called 'frothy mixtures' are promising and are better than water. If it ever becomes practical to carry water and drop it on fires from the air, it would probably be still better to drop an equal quantity of the best 'frothy mixture.' As yet, the conventional type of airplane is not adaptable for this work."

The fire forces also plan to experiment with dropping bombs on small fires to retard progress of the flames until ground forces can reach them. Bombs would retard small fires by throwing dirt over them.

"So far, however," Mr. Hedley continued, "we have found aircraft most valuable for transporting supplies and equipment quickly. In one region we had remarkable success in the dropping of supplies to ground crews, in packages designed to prevent damage. Such work is a great help in fighting forest fires deep in the 'back country'."

Striking progress is evident in the development of radio. A new type of ultra-short wave radio set is extremely light in weight and can be used on airplanes of almost any size or type.

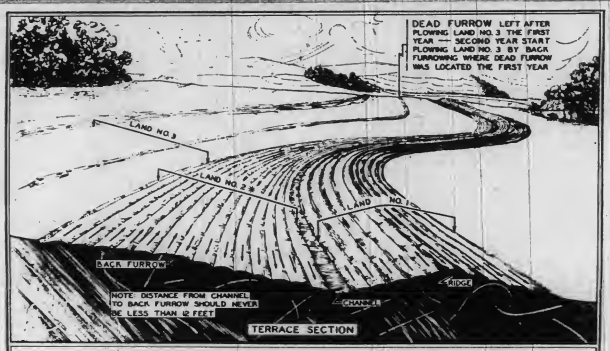
Cattle

More accurate figures for estimating the weight of dairy cows and calves from heart-girth measurements are announced by the Bureau of Dairy Industry of the U. S. D. A. This method has long been used in Denmark. But the measurements used on Danish cattle frequently over-estimate the weight of American dairy cattle. A difference in conformation has been discovered as the cause.



New measurements begin with calves with a heart-girth of only 26 inches. which will weigh about 80 pounds, and progress by half inches to cows with a girth of 92 inches and weight of 1,975 pounds.

Estimating weight of livestock by heart-girth was common in colonial days. Livestock buyers carried a girth chain instead of a tape measure estimating weight on the basis of links rather than inches.

Argentina

The first official estimate of the 1935-36 Argentine corn crop is 380,000,000 bushels compared with the record crop of 451,943,000 bushels last year, according to the U. S. D. A. Representative at Buenos Aires. A much larger crop originally was expected because of increased acreage. However, drought, high temperatures, and strong winds during January and February ruined the corn crop in some regions and greatly reduced yields in others.

Row application of fertilizer, rather than broadcasting is favored by the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station.

Row Fertilizer Application Favored In Tobacco Growing

By C. A. LEWIS

UNLESS large amounts of fertilizer are used, the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station prefers row application to broadcasting in tobacco growing. Four to 600 pounds per acre, and even more, can be used safely in the rows if properly applied. To avoid injury, the fertilizer should be mixed thoroughly with the soil or so applied that it will not be directly in contact with plant roots.

A fairly safe job can be done with an ordinary one-horse fertilizer drill. A narrow shovel should be used on the drill to leave a small furrow. A piece of heavy log chain should be fastened to the rear of the drill frame to form a half loop as it drags on the ground behind the drill. This covers the fertilizer and levels the ground.

After sowing fertilizer, the field should be marked out again with the sled marker. When setting the plants by hand, they should be set on the edge of the mark. In using the machine transplanted, the shoe should run on the edge of the mark rather than in the center.

Hand Distributing

The fertilizer may be distributed by hand in the furrows made by the marker and covered by running a hand garden plow or a single shovel plow with a narrow shovel along the edge of the furrow. A corn planter with fertilizer distributor may be used.

To sow the desired amount of fertilizer, it may be necessary to run twice in each row. The corn planter serves as a marker and fertilizer distributor.

The rate at which any distributor delivers fertilizer varies, depending upon the amount of moisture in the fertilizer, its mechanical condition, and what materials are used in its manufacture.

It is necessary to test the drill to determine how much fertilizer is being sown. This can be done by weighing out a definite amount of fertilizer—say 20 pounds—and noting how many feet of row it sows. At the rate of 100 pounds per acre, 20 pounds should sow 2,500 feet of row; 200-pound rate, 1,250 feet; 300-pound rate, 835 feet, and 500-pound rate, 500 feet.

Nitrogen Important

Tests made at the Experiment Station farm at Lexington indicate that nitrogen is the most important element for tobacco in the central bluegrass region of Kentucky, since it produces a larger increase in yield than the other elements. Outside the bluegrass region, phosphorus gives the largest increase.

A fertilizer analyzing four to five per cent of nitrogen, eight to ten per cent of phosphoric acid and four to five per cent of potash is probably as satisfactory as any. For those who prefer to mix their own fertilizer, four parts of nitrate of soda or three parts of sulfate of ammonia, five parts of superphosphate and one part of sulphate of potash are satisfactory.

The amount to use depends upon the productivity of the soil. For soils that will make 40 to 50 bushels of corn per acre in a good season, 500 to 600 pounds per acre is recommended; soils making 50 to 60 bushels, 400 to 500 pounds of fertilizer. Fresh soils in a very productive condition do not require fertilizers usually. A side dressing of 100 to 200 pounds of nitrate of soda per acre or equivalent amounts of other soluble nitrogen fertilizer may be used to stimulate a slow-growing crop.

Extreme Care Necessary

In using highly concentrated fertilizers for tobacco, one should be selected that has the percentages of plant food in about the same ratio as in the fertilizers previously recommended; that is, a 1-2-1 ration, the first figure referring to nitrogen, the second to phosphoric acid and the third to potash. A 12-24-12 or a 15-30-15 analysis has this ratio.

Much smaller amounts of these concentrated fertilizers will be required than of those of the ordinary type. When the recommendation is for 500 pounds of 4-8-4 analysis, only about 165 pounds of 12-24-12 analysis should be used, or 135 pounds of the 15-30-15 analysis.

Extreme care should be used in applying highly concentrated fertilizers, lest injury be done to the young plants.

Lespedeza Lights The Way In Montgomery County, Tenn.

By P. A. MERRIWEATHER

EVEN before the turn of the century, as a small boy, I remember my father and neighboring farmers, shaking their heads over the failure of red clover in Montgomery County, Tennessee.

About that time, my father found a plant growing by the roadside in Alabama. He noticed nodules on the roots and marveled at the luxurious growth of a legume under adverse conditions. That Fall, he rubbed out some of the matured seed of these plants and the following Spring, scattered them broadcast on a poor farm here known as "Needmore," because it needed more of everything. This was the first known Japan clover seeded in Montgomery County.

Plants from that seed flourished. In a short while we were saving seed, and selling it as the ideal summer pasture legume.

Hay Crop Arrives

Then came a rainy Summer. The Japan clover, or lespedeza, that formerly had only carpeted the ground, grew knee-deep—and behold!—a hay crop. But, a rainy season to produce sufficient growth for hay was a haphazard way of making a hay crop. Our farmers could be happy with their lespedeza only in the assurance it would grow on poor land for excellent summer pasture; that volunteer plants in succeeding years were vigorous and plentiful; and that corn, wheat, oats and tobacco showed increased yields following lespedeza rotations.

For the next 20 years Japan clover spread rapidly over the county. Then the late Hunter Merriweather, Kansas City, Mo., came to look over his farming interests. He noted the generally improved condition of his farm, and heard the lespedeza story. He wrote to the U. S. Department of Agriculture and University of Tennessee, to see if any improved varieties of lespedeza had been found, or if selective seeds had developed a taller growing variety better suited to hay.

At this identical time, Dr. A. J. Pieters, chief agronomist in charge of forage crops, U. S. D. A., was testing a small packet of seed sent to his department from Korea. He recognized the new plants as a variety of Japan cover, and noted that they grew upright, indicating hay possibilities.

Agricultural History

While Dr. Pieters was saving every seed and sowing them in trial fields at Arlington Farms, the late Professor S. H. Essary, at Tennessee University, was selecting seeds of the tallest Japan plants in an effort to find a taller growing plant for hay.

Agricultural history for Montgomery County blazed a new trail the day Dr. Pieters and Professor Essary came to our farms to see what we had accomplished with the old Japan clover. Dr. Pieters agreed to send us in the Spring of 1925, Korean and Kobe seed, a later maturing mammoth variety sent him from Kobe, Japan. Professor Essary agreed to send us "Tennessee No. 76," named because the 76th selection was the tallest growing of the Japan plants.

Those first field days brought together the governor of the state, the commissioner of agriculture, county agents and farmers from adjacent counties and states, all eager to learn about these new mammoth growing varieties of Japan clover. For the greater part, they were convinced of the superiority of the new varieties over the common Jap.

Cheap Seed Helps

The first few years the scarcity of seed and high prices, stimulated the saving of seed to the point where the primary value of these legumes was overlooked. Later, with cheap seed, the farmer awakened to the fact that the value of Korean and Kobe especially, to Montgomery County was fourfold: a reliable summer pasture even in drought years; a hay crop that compared favorably with alfalfa in food nutrient; a soil-building legume with increased crop yields from nitrogen and humus furnished the soil by the lespedeza, and therefore, lower cost of production per acre; a check on soil erosion.

MAY POULTRY POINTERS

IT IS hardly worth while to set eggs in May. Chicks coming off the first week or purchased early in the month may be developed early enough to do some winter laying. It is difficult to get them well along before hot weather comes.

Since the hatching season is over, the rooster's job is done. He might as well be sold. If too valuable to sell, confine him. Fertile eggs spoil too rapidly in hot weather.

Sanitation becomes important with warmer weather. Lice, mites and disease germs multiply rapidly. Keep houses and equipment clean and spray them with disinfectant solutions. Spraying solutions are on the market, or one may be made of stock dip diluted with water or kerosene.

After spraying house and equipment, paint roosting poles with full-strength stock dip, creosote or used engine oil. Drainings from the crank case of the automobile serve well. They may be thinned with kerosene. Thinned engine oil may be used as a spray.

For lice, use sodium fluoride as a powder or dip. To use as a dip, dissolve a pound of the powder in 10 gallons of slightly warmed water. Dip in the morning on a warm, sunny day, after the chicks weigh two to three pounds.

To control lice, dust the hen with the fluoride powder, being careful not to use enough to suffocate the chicks. Forty per cent nicotine sulfate put on the roosts about half an hour before roosting time will usually kill lice. It is necessary to repeat the painting in seven to ten days to kill lice that hatch in the meantime.

Warm and damp Spring days may see the appearance of coccidiosis, a disease for which there is no remedy.

Prevention is the only hope. This means the use of clean ground, land which has not been used by chickens for several years. It is well to keep hoppers and other equipment scrupulously clean.

Right Number of Chicks Important

Brooding the right number of chicks at the right time is the first and one of the most important steps in profitable poultry production, states A. J. Chadwell, University of Tennessee extension poultry specialist.

Records kept by farmers in cooperation with the Extension Service on their poultry flocks in 1935, indicate that Tennessee farmers should either keep a flock of 50 hens or less, largely for home use, or, a flock of around 200 hens for commercial egg production. This divides poultry production into two general divisions, those who use hens for hatching and brooding, and those who use brooder houses and brooders.

Records show that 200 hen flocks are much more profitable, judging from the influence they have on profits from the entire farm operations, but that the 50 hen flocks are more profitable on the average than flocks ranging from 50 to 150 hens, Mr. Chadwell states.

The majority of producers with a flock of around 200 hens use a brooder house and brooder. This equipment simplifies the brooding program and enables them to brood chicks at the time of the year when the most profit can be realized from them. Early chicks, February and March, will reach broiler weight in April and May when broiler prices are at the peak and pullets will mature in time for Fall egg production. One brood of 250 to 350 chicks is all that is required to replace one-half or more of the 200 hen flock with pullets each year.

Farmers who hatch and brood chicks with hens should be satisfied with a flock of 50 hens or less.

ESTABLISHED 1875

VOLUME 61 — BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY THURSDAY, MAY 14TH, 1936 — NUMBER 3

206 FARMERS SIGN SHEETS

INDICATIONS POINT TO A 100% SIGN UP WITHIN NEXT FOUR WEEKS—PROGRAM PROVING MORE POPULAR THAN AAA.

Two hundred and six Boone County farmers has signed Agricultural Conservation Program work sheets since May 1, according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent.

The New Program reached farmers late in the season and they were inclined to wait until the series of meetings were completed before beginning to sign up. The sign up at the present time is progressing rapidly with from thirty to forty-five new work sheets filed daily at the County Office and in the Community signup Centers.

There are 1534 farms in Boone County that may be covered by approximately 1200 work sheets. The interest shown by farmers in the last few days and their desire to hold and improve the progress made under the old AAA, indicates that inside the next four weeks there will be approximately 100% sign up.

The New A. C. P. program is much wider and more beneficial over a longer period than the old AAA. It is possible for practically every farm in Boone county regardless of how large or how small to receive benefits. The early filing of work sheets will greatly assist the County Office.

Community sign up days for this week are as follows:

Walton—May 12 Building Loan Association.
Hamilton—May 13, School House.
Grant—May 14. Bank.
Union—May 15th, Bank.
Florence—May 16th, Feed Store and Bank.
Burlington—Every day for next two weeks.

The County Agent or a representative of the County Office will be present at each of the meetings to assist farmers. [illegible] begin at 8:00 A. M., and last until around 4:00 P. M.

INJURIES TO TOBACCO PLANTS IS REPORTED

Tobacco plant beds are being severely injured by Flea Beetles and dry weather according to many reports at the County Office.

Poison sprays and dusts are being successfully used by many growers against insect injury. Fertilizer applications according to directions are also being used to stimulate plant growth.

Extension circulars on plant bed management gives recommendatios on the above practices is available at the County Agent's office.

POULTRY RAISING ON THE INCREASE IN BOONE COUNTY

Poultry raising in Boone County is on the increase according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent. Improved clean chick practices and ideal poultry brooding weather is helping most growers to have better than usual success.

Practically all large producers are now using chicks, from Bacillary White Diarrnea teted free flock, using clean ground or sun porches and following a clean management program. The recent dry weather is more ideal for successful brooding.

The largest producer in Boone County this year is J. F. Cleek, of near Heaver, with more than 3,000 head. He is followed closely with Grant Maddox of near Florence, with slightly less than that number.

ROBERTA ELMORE

Roberta Elmore, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Elmore, of Independence Station, Ky., passed away Friday at Children's Hospital, Cincinnati. The remains were removed to the Taliaferro Funeral Home in Erlanger, for preparation.

In addition to her parents, she is survived by six brothers and sisters.

The remains were taken to Gilpin, Ky., the old home of her parents, and after appropriate services, interment took place Sunday afternoon.

Funeral Director Philip Taliaferro had charge of the funeral arrangements.

There will be a soft ball game at the local ball grounds Saturday afternoon between the Cincinnati Union Stock Yard team and the local aggregation.

AND IT GOES ON AND ON

An old, old, historic question was revived in Burlington early Monday morning when Circuit Court Clerk, A. D. Yelton, found an issue of the Recorder of July 17, 1789, in his office, that had been filed by a former circuit clerk. J. W. Duncan, which carried that ever-unanswerable question at the top of the local news column, WHO HIT BILLY PATTERSON?

Shortly after finding this long discussed question, we summonmoney our old friends Charles Fowler, former jailer, who has been instrumental in renewing this interogative, but much to our dismay Mr. Fowler could not enlighten us on the question. He said that it was (?) no. I when he was a young man.

COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES

Commencement exercises for the graduating class of the local colored common school will be held at the colored Baptist church Saturday night, May 16, at 8:00 p. m., according to an announcement by Elabeth Smith, teacher of the school.

Those graduating are Ida Mae Baker, Thomas Baker, Jos. Earl OOICollier, Anna Eliza Earley, Jno. Earl Fisher, Owen L. Riddle, Lucy Mae Utz, Blanch E. Robinson.

JAILER-SHERIFF CONSOLIDATION

ACT PRAISED BY KENTUCKY TAX REDUCTION ASSOCIATION—SURVEY IN SEVERAL COUNTIES SHOW THAT JAILERS ARE RECEIVING EXCESSIVE FEES.

Studies of expenditures in five typical counties in Kentucky were made in the winter of 1933-34 by research accountants of the Kentucky Tax Reduction Association as a basis for the enactment of the Jailer-Sheriff Consolidation Law by the 1934 General Assembly, effective December 31, 1937.

These studies show that the fees of the jailer averaged $33 a day, or $12,045 for the year covered by the inquiry. The average cost of dieting, deputy hire, and other maintenance expense, was found to be $6,415, leaving a net income to the jailer of $5,630 year. This income includes fees for housing Federal prisoners, for which no accounting appears to be required to the state, under the $5,000 Constitutional limitation. In many other counties, it is evident that the earnings of this office are sufficiently attractive to bring out a good crop of candidates at each election. In some counties, the earnings are not sufficient to justify the existence of a separate office.

The studies referred to above are available in mimeograph reports to any member of the General Assembly who wishes to see them. The largest county seat in the group examined has a population of 12,000 and the smallest has a population of 2,000.

A suit was recently filed against the jailer of Pike county by the fiscal court of that county for over $40,000 in excess fees for the last three years. Many similar suits seeking the return of excess fees have been filed in recent years.

Pike county is in the senatorial district represented by the Senator who offered the resolution during the special budget session, requesting the Governor to include the jailer-repealer bill in his call for a future special session.

The Constitution of Kentucky provides that the General Assembly may consolidate the offices of jailer and sheriff, provided the office of sheriff is retained and the sheriff required to perform the duties of jailer (Section 105). Less than half a dozen states now retain the office of jailer as a separate elective office.

This consolidation act will shorten the ballot. It will save the taxpayers of Kentucky $500,000 a year by removing 120 elected officials, who are paid as high as $5,000 a year, replacing them by an official (the sheriff) already on the payroll, who is subject to the Constitutional limitation of $5,000, and whose records are now audited annually by the state Inspector and Examiner. If a deputy sheriff is appointed to take the place of an elected jailer, he will serve on a salary basis, fixed by the fiscal court, as provided in the new Coun-

NEW ROAD TO LOCAL "Y" CAMP

PROPOSED CONSTRUCTION UNDER JOINT AUSPICES OF COUNTY, WPA AND CCC EMERGENCY COUNCIL APPROVES

Preparation is now being made for a new road leading from the Burlington pike to Camp Ernst, Covington's Y. M. C. A. camp, under the joint auspices of Kenton County, WPA workers, and the Civilian Conservation Corps. Consideration was given this project last week by Judge Lorenzo K. Wood, Louisville, Director of the President's National Emergency Council.

Judge Wood, in Covington to attend the twenty-fifth anniversary celebration of the Covington Chamber of Commerce, discussed the possibility of such joint action with Judge John B. Reed, Kenton County Court, after it had been suggested to him by F. J. Alvin, Secretary of the Chamber of Commerce.

If the plans are completed as proposed, work on the road will be accomplished by members of the CCC Camp at Walton, Ky. Supervision will be provided by WPA workers, and the right of way and part of the necessary material will be supplied by Kenton County.

"I don't know that three such agencies ever have joined in a project similar to this one, but I see no reason why they should not," Judge Wood said. "I am of the opinion that I will recommend such action."

A delegation from Kenton County are to confer with Judge Wood this week for further discussion of the project.

TO ATTEND CONVENTION

Five Boone County Homemakers' members are planning to attend the Convention of Associated Country Women of the World in Washington the first week in June. This is the first time the convention has been held in the United States. An intresting program has been arranged consisting of tours conferences and general sessions. Among the speakers are Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, Secretary of Agriculture Wallace and Lady Aberdeen of Scotland.

Three of the Boone women are planning on driving through, while the others are going on the train.

JERSEY BREEDERS BACK 4-H SHOW

CLUB PLANS TO SPEND $50 ON EXHIBIT — ROBERT YOUELL APPOINTED CHAIRMAN

The Boone County Jersey Cattle Club will sponsor a special 4-H dairy calf exhibit at the County 4-H and Utopia Club Fair this year according to W. G. Kite, President of the County Association. Attractive premiums will be awarded calf club members making exhibits. Robert Youell, prominent Boone County Jersey breeder has been appointed chairman of the Calf Club Exhibit.

The Calf Club premiums will be open to all 4-H and Utopia members of the Calf Club. All members competing must own their heifers and be enrolled in the approved dairy project. The animals do not have to be registered, but must be sired by a purebred bull.

The Club plans to spend more than $50.00 on the Calf Club exhibit. This special award will help stimulate Calf Club membership at a time when dairy interest is on the increase.

The next meeting of the Jersey Cattle Club will be held during the State Jersey Meeting at Senator P. B. Gaines farm near Carrollton in June.

NEWS FROM OLD FILES OF THE RECORDER REPRINTED

On another page of the Recorder will be found a column of local news reprinted from a Recorder carrying the date line of July 17, 1879. We have been fortunate in obtaining a number of the early copies and we appreciate the cooperation of our subscribers who have assisted us in locating these copies. A cash reward will be given to the person, who will deliver or send to our office, the first issue of the Recorder, published by the late W. L. Riddell in 1875.

J. W. RUSK FARM SOLD

TO CINCINNATI MAN—APPROXIMATELY 1,000 ATTEND NORTHERN KENTUCKY'S LARGEST AUCTION SALES.

The 224 acre farm of J. W. Rusk, located 4 miles east of Walton, Ky., on Green Road, was purchased last Thursday, May 7th, by Mr. Earl Sandiers of Cincinnati, Ohio, for the sum of 12,800.

One of the largest crowds ever known to attend a sale of this nature turned out last Thursday to see one of the finest farms in this section sold at public auction. The crowd was estimated to be somewhere between 1,000 and 1,200 present.

The Ladies of the Indepndence Baptist church served the lunch on the grounds and several cash prizes were given away.

This sale was in the hands of the R. G. Kinman Auction Co., one of Northern Kentucky's best, and the entire sale was reported a big success.

TO GRADUATE WITH HIGH HONORS

Edwin Hughes, formerly of Burlington, who is a senior at Calhoun High School, Calhoun, Ky., will graduate from that institution soon with high honors. Young Mr. Hughes is salutatorian of his class, was a star basket ball player and took leading parts in many extra-curricular activities. He attended the local school until the past two years.

HOMEMAKERS TRAINING CLASS

Eighteen Homemakers attended the Leaders' Training Class in Burlington last week. Miss Ida C. Hagman, specialist in Home Improvement, College of Agriculture, U. of K. gave a very interesting and instructive talk on "Curtains and Drapes." She demonstrated how old white curtains could be dyed to blend in with the furnishings of the whole room.

Leaders will give the "Curtain" lesson at the local club meetings durig May.

The regular May meeting of the Burlington Homemakers Club will be held Friday May 22nd, 1:30 P. M., at the Burlington Court House. The Leaders will give a lesson on "Curtains."

LUTHERANS TO GO TO CONVENTION

REV. H. M. HAUTER, PASTOR OF LOCAL CHURCHES, CHAPLAIN OF SYND

Nearly three hundred Boone County Lutherans, members of Mopeful and Hebron churches, will be represented at a convention of the Kentucky-Tennessee Synod in Nashville, Tenn., May 19th and 20th. Rev. Howard M. Hauter, pastor of the local parish is chaplain of the Synod, which was formed in Newport two years ago.

Only five present-day Kentucky-Tennessee Synod Lutheran churches are more than 100 years old. They are: Hopeful, Florence, Ky.; Christ, Jeffersontown, Ky.; Crowell, Jenkins and Sofner, Shelbyville, Tenn.

A landmark of Lutherans in the Synod is the Louisville Lutheran Home, near Jeffersontown, once a Lutheran academy at which rumor says Jefferson Davis, studied.

D. H. I. A. AND BULL ASSOCIATION PLAN TOUR

The Boone County Dairy Herd Improvement Association of Boone County Bull Association have tentatively set Wednesday. August 12th for a combined tour and field meeting.

The problems of Animal and Poultry diseases is rapidly becoming an ever important problem. Dr. Polk is expected to give a brief outline on the development of disease problems, in recent years and how the disease losses are being controlled. The Club extends an invitation to all who are interested to attend.

JOHN Y. BROWN GETS SUPPORT

OF CONSUMERS ANTI-SALES TAX ASSOCIATION OF KENTUCKY AT MEETING OF EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE FOR UNITED STATES SENATOR

Lexington, Kentucky—The Executive Committee of The Consumers' Anti-Sales Tax Association of Kentucky, meeting here at the offices of the President, 203 East Main Street, Lexington, Ky., April 22nd, adopted a vigorously-worded endorement of the candidacy of John Young Brown Lexington, who has announced for the Democratic nomination for the United States Senate.

Citing his public record, with particular reference to his opposition to the Sales Tax, the committee declared: "With all the earnestness at our command, we commend him to the voters of Kentucky, secure in the conviction that his election represents the best interests of all Kentucky."

The full text of the Committee statement follows:

"The candidacy of John Young Brown offers to Kentuckians an opportunity to express their gratitude to a man whose entire record in public life is one of unswerving allegiance to the people.

"Never has he betrayed them, never has he sold them out, never has he let personal considerations obscure his view or temper his policy. Faced time and again with decisions that would have prompted lesser men to sit timidly on the fence, confronted with questions that imperiled his political future, he has proceeded with courage and candor to state his views and to fight for them, regardless of consequences.

"One never need be uncertain about John Young Brown's position. To ask him a question is to get a definite answer. And one never need fear that, having taken his stand, he will abandon it. He is forthright and he is resolute.

"Representing the Consumers' Anti-Sales Tax Association, which numbers more than 60,000 members, we are indebted to him primarily for his valorous and unyielding opposition to the Sales Tax. Pressed by powerful political and financial interests, threatened with political extermination, promised promotion if he would but yield, beleagured, sadgered and begged, he hewed to the strict line of his convictions with an aggressive honesty that won him the respectful hatred of his enemies and the mounting admiration of his friends.

"But he would have insufficient cause for endorsement were his Anti-Sales-Tax record the only point in his favor. We cite also his shining record in Congress during the darkest days of the depression, his fair and able administration as Speaker of the Kentucky House of Representatives, his services to his constituents as State Legislator, and his constant advocacy as a citizen of Lexington and Kentucky of policies advantageous to the citizenry and his opposition to those that were not.

"In the ordinary sense of the word, John Young Brown is not a politician. He is a man who has risen high in public life and who will rise higher because the basis of his philosophy and the determining factor in his course always are the public weal. No man can possess a better recommendation than that.

"The Anti-Sales Tax Association is not a political organization. In its large membership are men and women of both parties, young and old, whose interest in Government is not in the success or failure of either party but in the enactment of just laws and in their conscientious administration. Like the Retail Merchants' Association of Kentucky, whose action in indorsing Mr. Brown we heartily approve, we are an economic and in addition a civic society, rather a partisan organization. We base our cause upon the principles of equity in Government and ability and public-spirited intention in office-holders.

"And on those ground, with all the earnestness at our command, we commend John Young Brown to the voters of the State secure in the conviction that his election represents the best interests of all Kentucky."

The President was authorized and directed to send copies of this statement to the public press and to Honorable John Young Brown.

FIRE DESTROYS AUTO CONCERN

BUILDING OWNED BY SEILER-WEIL MOTOR COMPANY—OPERATED BY SILAS CORBIN

The business location of Silas Corbin, noted used car dealer of Covington, was badly damaged by flames Monday night and at the present time the amount of loss cannot be determined although several thousand dollars is the expected loss.

Fed by oil soaked floors and a wood structure on the inside the fire swept rapidly through the brick walls and lighted the sky for several miles around. The crowd that gathered to the scene was so large that firemen were hampered. Automobiles were parkd for many squares in all directions, thus stopping all traffic on Madison. The street cars were forced to travel over Greenup street instead of their usual route to avoid traffic congestion.

The fire was discovered by a salesman standing on the used car lot of Seiler-Weil Company. Only a small blaze on the second floor was seen by the salesman, but before he could report to the fire department the blaze had spread over the entire building. The blaze gained such headway that it broke through the roof in a very short time.

Men and boys joined the salesman in removing the used cars from the lot, and most of the cars were removed without damage.

This is the second time in the past several months that Mr. Corbin has been the victim of fire. His home located on the Burlington-Florence pike was completely destroyed by fire several months ago, and at the present time has not been rebuilt.

The building occupied by Madison Avenue Auto Parts and operated by Silas Corbin is owned by Seiler-Weil Company. This is the second fire in this building in the past two weeks, as firemen were called several days ago to extinguish a small fire on the second floor.

No theory has been given as yet for the origin of the fire, and Mr. Corbin who lives just two miles from Florence, Ky., could not be reached to notify him of the fire.

MEMBER KENTUCKY PRESS ASSOCIATION ORGANIZED JANUARY, 1849

DO YOU READ EDITORIALS?

It is my belief that the editorial page of any newspaper is read by fewer people than any other part of the entire paper. Of course, there are a certain class of people who know the purpose of the editorial page and read it from an educational standpoint.

This is supposed to be the only page in the Boone County Recorder that comes first from the Editor or writer himself. All other news items are collected from many sources and published from the standpoint of news alone. Much time, thought and reading is necessary before the editorial columns are completed each week. We aim to select topics that we feel are of general interest to our readers and present them in an in an interesting and educational manner.

In short, editorials are merely the rambling thoughts that travel through the mind of the editor from week to week. We hope you will like them.

ABOUT CONTRIBUTED NEWS

The RECORDER is always glad to receive proper news items from those who read it. However, if your news item is not published, don't blow up.

For one thing, you might have forgotten to sign your name. For another, you may have waited too long to send in the news, which may have been printed in an earlier issue which you did not see.

"Yes, we hear a lady exclaim, "but my article was omitted last week when I sent it in on time, and another account of the wedding printed that was not as good as mine." It seems that the ladies get the blame for always presenting problems. Anyway, here's the answer:

Very often the RECORDER gets two accounts of such important things as weddings. We have received, on occasion, an account of a wedding from the bride, the groom's mother, bridesmaid and one friend. We couldn't print 'em all. And, when the best account came in, we had already put another into type.

Do not get the idea that we do not want news, because we do. Send it in and if it is at all possible we will print it.

Editorial of the Week

A CHRISTIAN GENTLEMAN

It is rather unique to find a gentleman in political life, who taking his politics serious enough, takes his religion much more serious.

This may be said of Senator M. M. Logan, of Kentucky, who is truly a Christian first and a politician next, or rather should we say a statesman next, for he measures up to the highest standard of excellence the Senate affords.

The Senator taught Sunday School a number of years in Kentucky before going to the Nation's Capital, and after reaching there he was asked to continue his teaching and accepted the Stevenson Bible Class at the Bethany Baptist Church in Washington City.

Senator Logan has a record of continual attendance at Sunday School for the past thirty-four years, a record that stands out like "a column of smoke by day and a pillow of fire by night."

The Senator is also a man men and is looked up to by his colleagues as an indisputable authority on the much-mooted Constitution.

WHEN DOLLARS COME HARD

"Young men's dollars" are relatively easy to earn. In the twenties and thirties and forties, when human energy is at its zenith, and mind and body are highly-keyed and aggressive, most of us manage to get along without grave difficulties.

"Old men's dollars," to the contrary, come hard. The human being, like a machine, runs down. It cannot keep up the pace. Enthusiasm dulls, fatigue sets in. There is no more pitiful object in the world than an old man without savings.

Thus, one of man's greatest problems is to accumulate enough "young men's dollars," and invest them securely, to provide for the old man he will some day become. No better advice can be given the young man than to tell him to adopt his own old-age security program, through life insurance or a similar agency, at the earliest possible time.

JEST A-WHITTLIN' AN' A-THINKIN'

By Pete Gettys

(A State Farmer Section Feaure)

As the poets'd say: "Strike with hand of fire O' weird musician, thy harp string with Apollo's golden hair; fill the vast cathedral aisles with symphonies sweet and dim, deft touches of the organ keys; blow, bugler, blow! until the silver notes do touch and kiss the moonlit waves, and charm the lovers wandering midst the vineclad hills!

But, your sweetest strains are all sour notes compared with a little banty hen's song as she busys 'round the kitchen door."

T'other Sunday morning the little boy was helpin' his father transplant some pansies (pansies always tickled him—said they looked like monkey faces), and turnin' to his father, he says: "I bet these little old fellers know it's Sunday, don't they pappy?"

Who knows? The flowers grow and bloom and raise their babies their way. Maybe they ain't got the seventh day of the week all marked off on the calendar and et down as Sunday, like us. But who's in tune with their universe? An' couldn't they have flower thoughts and posie souls, observin' and keepin' jest as faithfully and religiously their creeds as us?

Anyhow, it's good to think of their havin' little flower souls, and what a purty place Flower Heaven'd be. The butterflies and bees would be there, maybe the birds too, and if St. Peters wouldn't mind, I'd like to have a little corner in Flower Heaven. Please, St. Peter.

Recently some one stole the Sunday school lesson from a weekly church magazine on file in the public library at South Bend, Ind. The subject of the lesson was "Jesus Insists on Righteousness."

Arnold Shore thought the police in Boston had forgotten all about the fine for speeding he was to have paid six years ago, but the police inspector happened to clean out his desk drawer and found the warrant.

Lesson for May 17

JESUS INSPIRES HONESTY

LESSON TEXT—Luke 19:1-10; 45-48.
GOLDEN TEXT—Thou shalt not steal. —Exodus 20:15.
PRIMARY TOPIC — A Visit From Jesus.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Why Jesus Visited Zacchaeus.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What It Means to Be Honest.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Taking Religion Into My Business.

"Jesus entered and was passing through Jericho" (v. 1), one of the most noted cities of Bible history. It had been the stronghold of the Canaanites, standing squarely across the Jordan, taken by the marching pitcher-bearers of Joshua (Josh. 6), the city where Rahab experienced salvation through her faith (Heb. 11:11-31). It was fitting that Jesus should pass through the Jericho of his own day, for a new victory was to be experienced through faith—the conversion of Zacchaeus.

1. Zacchaeus Seeking Jesus (vv. 2-4).

This man, a tax-collector for the Roman power, had heard that Jesus was kind to publicans; for had he not had mercy on Matthew? Curiosity seized him; he must see what manner of man Jesus was. Who can know how many have been led to find Christ through the exercise of curiosity. The citizens of a city are drawn to a church or a tabernacle through the growing interest of a revival campaign. Curiosity widens, becoming the initial motive in many who later have faith in Christ to the saving of their souls.

1. His difficulties (vv. 2, 3). His infamous business was a handicap, at least in the eyes of the populace. The very fact that a Jew should hold office under the hated Roman power would make him extremely unpopular. His riches condemned him. The fact that he had acquired much wealth in this calling pointed to extortion in the collection of taxes. He was unpopular; he was pushed aside.

The shortness of his stature (v. 3) was a handicap, but not so great a one as his spiritual state. He doubtless had been pushed about much of his life and had built up an attitude of mind that now manifested itself.

2. His persistence (v. 4) stood him in good stead. If, too short to see, he was not too timid to climb. He had been obliged to climb all his life. Always obstacles placed before him he had brushed aside, or had climbed over them, if a desired goal lay beyond. Now, the goal was a sight of Jesus, and he climbed. Though the rich man of town, he would not let pride keep him from the undignified act of getting up among the branches of yonder tree, for Jesus was to pass by.

II. Jesus Finding Zacchaeus (vv. 5, 6).

While Zacchaeus was trying to see Jesus, Jesus was looking for him, as always he is looking for the seeking soul. With no word that would embarrass or humiliate him, Jesus bade him come down from the tree, and declared his intention to go with him to his home. How wonderful is grace, that regardless of one's past life Jesus will receive the seeker as a friend and enter into fellowship with him. Zacchaeus did not hesitate, but made haste to come down, and with joy opened his door to the new-found Friend.

III. Zacchaeus' Conversion (vv. 7-10).

His conversion was sudden and thorough. He was converted before he reached the ground.

1. What the crowd said (v. 7) was characteristic; they murmured and said that Jesus had gone to be guest of a man who is a sinner. They could not think of his sin in the past tense, but said is instead of was. Jesus forgives and forgets. He "came to seek and save that which was lost," and he "remembers our sins against us no more forever."

2. The proof of conversion (v. 8) was immediate and satisfying. His new life was begun with resolution and restitution. He dedicated half his goods to the poor. If he before had been a grafter, he was now a generous giver. He was ready to untangle the skein of tax irregularities. While God forgets the past, he nevertheless expects the forgiven sinner to make restitution where possible.

IV. Honesty in God's House (vv. 45-48).

If honesty must be exacted from publicans and sinners, much more should it be required of those who have to do with the worship of God. It is easy to condemn those who made capital out of the requirements of temple worship in Jesus' day; it is not so easy to condemn those who use the Church of Christ as a stepping stone to personal profit and political preferment. "Judgment must begin at the house of God" (I Pet. 4:17).

A Firm Faith

A firm faith is the best divinity, a good life the best philosophy; a clear conscience the best law; honesty, the best policy; and temperance the best physic—living for both worlds is the wisest and best life.

God's Promises

I believe the promises of God enough to venture an eternity on them.—Watts.

SIMPLE MIXTURE USED AS SURE-KILL FOR MOLES

Right now when lots of people are having trouble with moles in their lawns and gardens, along comes Mr. Wm. Deatherage with what he declares is a sure-kill. He says just mix equal parts of ordinary meal and salt with water, making doughballs about the size of the end of your thumb, and insert the doughballs in the mole run. Mr. Deatheage says he used this simple mixture with great success in his fight against moles last year, and recommends it as certain death for the pesky creatures.

GRANT 4-H CLUB HOLDS APRIL MEETING

The "Take Pride" 4-H Club of Grant, Ky., held their 4th meeting of the year, April 2nd. The Captains of the various project groups gave a report of the progress of their groups. Most of the members have their projects started except the canning group which will begin later in the year.

Mr. H. R. Forkner, County Agent, discussed the Club Tour to be held July 9th. The President appointed a transportation committee of Juanita Ryle, Lucinda Burcham and Kenneth Rogers, and a lunch committee of Florence Newman, Alvin Clore and Jane Brady.

Mr. Carter, Assistant County Agent, gave a talk on Rally Day to be held at Burlington, May 29th. The Club will send both a boys and girls demonstration team to compete.

The meeting adjourned by repeating the club pledge.

THE GARDEN

* * * * * * * * *

By John S. Gardner, Ky., College of Agriculure

Cabbage, onions and lettuce should be side-dressed with either nitrate of soda, 1 pound to 100 feet of row, oh chicken-manure, one bushel to 300 feet, no matter how "rich" the garden.

From those parts of Kentucky where Irish potttoes are up come complaints of severe damage by flea-beetles. The control is to spray with Bordeaux mixture, to wnich calcium arsenate should be added, to take care of the Colorado beetles, sure to come. That spraying should be the first of three, two weeks apart, to forestall the blight whiih may laose potato plants to die before their time, curtailing the yield.

Ordinary spinach sown after May 10 is rarely profitable. In order not to be without greens, after the spinach season is over, New Zealand or Swiss chard should be started without delay.

With the coming of sustained warm weather, spring-started lettuce will bolt to seed, or at least, become tough and milky. To ssume a continued supply of salads sow new cos lettuce, familiarly known as "deer-tongue." Seedsmen list it under the varietal name of "Trianon."

The time for planting Lima or "butter" beans is here. Although it may sound bothersome to do, especially the large-seeded sorts should be planted eye down to prevent their "breaking their necks" as they come up. Reliable bush vadieties are Topp, Henderson and Fordhook; the best pole sort is King of the Garden. Lima beans and the others, too, set pods shyly when the garden is over-manured, going rather to excessive vine growth. Superphosphate, sown where the rows are to be, 1 pound to 35 feet, and chopped in, will improve fruiting enormously.

To guard against cut-worms, almost always to be expected, transplant still to be set have their stems wrapped with three to four thicknesses of newspaper cut in strips wide enough to extend an inch above, and an inch below the ground line. Planted crops should be protected by sowing poison bait wherever and whenever any signs of this insect are seen. Chickens should be kept away from poison bait.

The time for another planting of green beans is at hand. Although stringless Greenpod will rule as a favorite, Bountiful Bush has points a home gardener should not overlook. It has flavor of real character and is not surpassed in yield by any other variety. Its fault of becoming "shucky" when too much filled out, home gardeners can guard against.

NATION'S OLDEST MASON DEAD AT AGE OF 105

Mr. Cyrus E. Hull, 105 years of age, eighty-three years a Mason, and believed to have been the oldest member of the Craft in the world, died at his home in Los Angeles, Calif., April 11, 1936, as a result of injuries received in a fall, March 25.

Born in New Lebanon. N. Y., October 28, 1830. Mr. Hull was raised to the Sublime Degree of a Master Mason in Hampton Lodge, Springfield, Mass., March 23, 1853.

A charter member of East St. Louis, (Ill). Lodge No. 504, Mr. Hull retained his membership there.

His Masonic longevity is eighty-three years and nineteen dys. This would pper to be the record for the United States. Mr. James Bellows McGregor, who was made a Master Mason in Samaritan Lodge of Salisbury, N. H., May 7, 1827, and who died at the age of 109 on March 23, 1910, was a Mason for eighty-two years, ten months and sixteen days. Friends of the late Dr. James S. Halstead claim that he was a Mason for several months over eighty-three years. He died September 13, 1925, in Kentucky. He is said to have been made a Mason early in 1842, but the data are obscure.

W. B. COTTON,
Sheriff Boone County.

A pain in his side sent Antal Kasco, 59, to a hospital in Budapest, Hungary, for an X-ray. It was discovered that he had a bullet in his heart, which had been there since 1915.

Harlin Agee of Etterville, Mo., after searching several hours in the woods for a timber wolf that had been prowling around his farm, returned home and found it in his front yard playing with his dog.

William Powell, Frank Morgan, Myrna Loy in "The Great Ziegfeld"

The total number of people used in "The Great Ziegfield, the exciting entertainment suggested by incidents in the life of America's great showman, which is opening a two-day road show engagement at the Capitol Theatre, Cincinnati, Thursday evening, May 14th exceeds 5,000. This includes show girls, chorus men, World's Fair crowds, threatre audiences and principals.

Two spectacular musical numbers, "You" and "A Pretty Girl Is Like a Melody," surpassed in cost any complete musical show staged by Ziegfield.

For another number, featuring a huge revolving stage, on which seven tablaus are presented simultaneously, there was no building on the entire M-G-M lot sufficiently large to stage the reharsals. As a result, a tremendous three-ring circus tent was pitched in the rear of the studio property to serve as a rehearsal hall.

In one of the important dance numbers, "The American Girl Circus," Harriet Hoctor demonstrates her terpsichorean genius amidst a group of full-grown lions, not to mention a group of trained Russian wolfhounds, a number of "high school" ponies (the kind with four legs) and a huge chorus of the glorified beauties.

The costumes for the Fashion Parade, which was designed by Adrian, are acclaimed as the peak of imaginative design. They depict the designer's conception of "The Snow Queen," "The Pheasant Girl" "The Waterfall Girl" "The Wing Girl" "The Bird of Paradise Girl" and an exotic, living picture described as the "Pearl of Java."

The central figure of this spectacular number, staged by Seymour Felix, is Miss Bruce in a costume of white ostrich plumes, a 15-yard train 10 yards wide, comprising a veritable sea of smaller white plumes.

Reputed to be the most costly creations ever made for either a stage or screen attraction, the material alone required such items as 55 dozen silver pheasant tails, 50 pounds of silver sequins of various sizes, 25 dozen pure white ostrich plumes of an extra large size, 300 crystal drops that had to be ground to a uniform size, and more than 75 pounds of costume jewels, including pearls.

All of the jeweling on the costumes was done by hand, requiring a staff of 50 women, all of them hand-beaders, and they were employd steadily for more than five months.

The colorful life of Ziegfield is a panorama of theatrical life and is best told against a varied theatrical background. The sittings, following the actual life of the great showman, begin with the blatant din of circus carnivals and fair midwayh and progress through casinos, exclusive hotels, small theatres, middle-sized theatres and great theatres.

Twelve theatres, many in their entirety, were reproduced. including some of the earlier theatres of New York and another of San Francisco; the Palace Music Hill in London; the Herald Square Theatre, New Amsterdam Theatre, the Ziegfield Roof, the Dewey Theatre, the new Ziegfield Theatre, the Lyric Theatre and the Majestic Thatre, all of New York.

William Powell has the title role in "The Great Ziegfield" and is co-starred with Myna Loy and Luise Rainer. Robert Z. Leonard is director of the picture, Hunt Stramberg producer.

Cowboy Rides to Convention

Here is A. L. ('Yelp an') Yowell, old-time 4 Sixes Ranch cowboy, as he left Dallas to ride to the Democratic National Convention June 23. Outfitted by the Texas Centennial Exposition, which opens in Dallas June 6, "Yelp an'" expects to reach Philadelphia, riding the burro "General Democracy," the entire 1555 miles in time for the June 23 opening of the convention.

Term "Abolish The New Deal" Difficult to Define; "Everything Is a Part Of It

"You will perhaps remember that an eminent spokesman of the Old Order prophesied in 1932 that if the policies of his administration were interrupted by the election of the Governor of New York to the Presidency, grass would grow in the streets of our great cities and that ruin would rule over the whole country," Chairman James A. Farley of the Democratic National Committee said in a speech at Pittsfield, Mass., Thursday.

"Now we are being told by the same high authority and by the duPont Liberty League and their subsidiaries, that if the policies that have brought business back to a prosperous state are not bandoned, again our industrial sections will become cow pastures.

"We read every day and hear over the radio these political Jeremiahs explaining that business recovery is here despite the New Deal; that the President of this country is bent on changing our democracy to a distatorship, a Soviet system; that he will abolish the Supreme Court, defy the Constitution, regiment every form of industry and agriculture. In short that Franklin Roosevelt will do everything in his power to destroy the prosperity he has brought about.

"These campaign 'arguments' are of no mpre consequence than when George Washington was accused of trying to set up a Kingdom with himself as monarch, when Jefferson was blackguarded as a communist, when Lincoln was charged with criminal usurpation of executive power and when Theodore Roosevelt was pilloried as an advocate of socialistic philosophy.

"You can hardly pick up a newspaper without being startled by the violent conflict between its opinion columns and its business columns who assail the Roosevelt administration. I noted for example in the New York Times the other day the story of the annual report of Alfred P. Sloan, head of General Motors Corporation, directed to his stockholders. The headline read: "Sloan Finds Trade Hurt by New Deal." Just below it, on the same page, was printed the financial statement of General Motors Corporation, which Mr. Sloan himself had submitted to his stockholders.

"That financial statement recited that in 1935 its net sales amounted to $1,155,000,000, as against $872,675,000 in 1934; its accumulation of new assets in 1935, was $150,000,000; its net earnings in 1935 were $197,000,000, compared to $110,000,000 in 1934. Now if you want a more dramatic exposition of what the New Deal has meant to General Motors Corporation, compare its 197 million dollar net income for 1935, with its net income of 165 thousand dollars reported for 1933. A lapse of only two years, 24 months of Roosevelt and ruin.

"I do not pick out this particular business incident because Mr. Sloan is a large contributor to the Liberty League or because General Motors is to a very large extent a duPont corporation, but simply as a shining exampleof how little relationship exists between the political expressions of those who are striving to abolish the New Deal and the plain facts as they are told on the financial pages of the newspapers. Possibly no better comment could be made as to this than that voiced by one of your home newspapers. The Berkshire Eagle (Rep.) put it in this language:

"To be perfectly frank, it is not easy to see what the term "abolishing the New Deal" means. Everything that is going on now is a part of it—the whole vast system under which we are living—the camps, the banks, the loans, the municipal expenditures, the new modes of law enforcement, everything. To attack the New Deal may be justified on p o l i t i c a l grounds, of course, but what is there to be done about it? What particular part of the system ought to be abolished? Has someone something better to offer? Disraeli gave excellent advice when he said: "Let us define our terms."

ty Budget Law. The fiscal court must also agree to the appointment, thus regulating the number of deputies. The voters are thus in a position in each county to fix responsibility for expenditures of tax money, including maintenance of the jail.

The act consolidating the office of jailer and sheriff was prepared and sponsored two years ago by the Kentucky Tax Reduction Association, composed of all classes of taxpayers, large and small, in seventy-nine different counties of the state. These taxpayers feel that there are too many unnecessary public offices in every county, and that this law to abolish the office of jailer is the first step in breaking up an oligarchy of office-holders. Its retention as a law will encourage taxpayers in the belief that the General Assembly will further simplify local government by abolishing other useless offices, merging overlapping functions, and abolishing the fee system, as advocated by the Kentucky Tax Reduction Association.

Now comes the Kentucky Jailers Association, two years before the scheduled effective date of the Jailer-Sheriff Consolidation Act, and asks the General Assembly to repeal it. Their cry is that the consolidation will not save any money. Since they are asking for repeal of the law, it is their responsibility to show that the repeal will save money, this General Assembly having been elected on a platform of economy.

There is no other issue involved in this matter except the question of whether our government was created for the job-holders, or for the citizens and taxpayers who pay for its upkeep.

The taxpayers urge the General Assembly to oppose the bringing up of this repealer, leaving all the time possible to the serious business of enacting laws which are important enough to justify an extraordinary assemblage of the law-making body of the Commonwealth.

Yours sincerely,
GEO. T. HOLMES,
Secretary

PLAN 1936 PROGRAMS NOW

An increasing number of farm women's clubs are planning their programs well ahead of time. In fact, many clubs are already shaping up tentative plans for the whole year 1936. In this connection it will be interesting to consider the special weeks and days to be observed generally during the rest of the year as follows:—

National Garden Week—April 12-18.

Child's Health Day—Always May 1.

National Poetry Week—May 24-30 (always the fourth week in May).

American Education Week—Nov. 8-14 (always during Armistice week).

National Book Week—November 15-21 (always third week in November).

Art Week—November 1-7.

AB JENKINS—Famous driver who holds more records than any man in automotive history.

A MILLION miles on Firestone Tires without an accident. That is the record of Ab Jenkins, famous driver, who has driven on all kinds of roads and in all kinds of traffic in every state in the union. What a tribute to safe, dependable, tire equipment! Make this proof of performance your guide in choosing new tires to protect yourself and your family.

There are three important facts you should know about the tires you buy—

1. THE FACTS on TRACTION and NON-SKID SAFETY

A leading university in 2,350 tests has found that the new, scientifically designed tread on the Firestone High Speed Tire stops a car up to 25% quicker.

2. THE FACTS on BLOWOUT PROTECTION

Ab Jenkins used Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires when he drove his 5,000-pound car over the hot salt beds at Bonneville, Utah, in the record-breaking time of 127 miles per hour, covering 3,000 miles in 23½ hours without a blowout or tire trouble of any kind.

3. THE FACTS on ECONOMY and NON-SKID MILEAGE

The largest transportation companies in the country, such as Greyhound, to whom safety and tire economy mean business efficiency, use Firestone Tires from Coast to Coast and from Canada to the Gulf. And our own test fleet records prove that the new Firestone High Speed Tire for 1936 gives you up to 25% longer non-skid mileage.

The Firestone High Speed Tire for 1936 proves by performance its superiority in all of these three qualifications. Make this proof of performance your yardstick of safety and value. Decide today to equip your car with new Firestone High Speed Tires for 1936—the safest driving equipment money can buy.

End of cord from ordinary tire magnified 11 times, showing unprotected cotton fibers inside cord

Gum-Dipping not only strengthens the cords but prevents heat inside the cords, where it insulates the tiny fibers against friction and protects Firestone High Speed Tires from blowouts.

This heavy, broad, traction and non-skid tread is held to the cord body of the tire with Two Extra Layers of Gum-Dipped Cords, a patented construction, making the cord body and tread an inseparable unit.

The angles in the scientifically designed Firestone High Speed tread are so placed as to stop a car quicker and without sideswerve. Its super-traction and non-skid efficiency have also been proved in the famous Pike's Peak Race where for eight consecutive years it has been used on the winning cars.

SPELLING BEE TO BE HEARD

OVER COLUMBIA BAOADCASTING SYSTEM FROM 12 TO 1 O'CLOCK TUESDAY, MAY 26, DIRECT FROM WASHINGTON, D. C.

The Columbia Broadcasting System has completed arrangements to radiocast the final hour of the twelfth annual National Spelling Bee, sponsored by The Boone Co., Recorder, The Courier-Journal and other leading newspapers, from 1 to 2 p. m., Eastern Daylight Saving Time Tuesday, May 26, from the auditorium of the National Museum, Washington, D. C.

This arrangement gives boys and girls from coast to coast an opportunity to hear the best elementary school spellers of the nation mastering tongue-twisters for the heavy end of a $1,750 prize distribution. The boy or girl who earns the championship will receive $500, but his final opponent will have the consolation of taking home $300. The youngster ranking third is entitled to $100. The next six spellers will receive $75 each, and eight others will draw $50 apiece whether or not they spell one word correctly.

Dean George B. Woods, of American University, who will serve as chairman, will present two plagues symbolical of the national spelling championship to the winner, one for the champion and one for his school. Alternating as pronouncers will be Dr. H. E. Warner and Professor H. F. Harding. The judges are the Rev. James S. Montgomery, Belmont Farley and T. D. Martin.

Many children and adults equip themselves with paper during the broadcast and try to spell all the words given by the enunciators. This not only gives the prospective contestants for the 1937 National Spelling Bee a good preliminary test, but it provides them with an interesting list of words to master.

LOCAL ITEMS FROM THE ISSUE OF JULY 17, 1879

It is not warm—it is hot.

The corn crop is booming.

We have $000,000,000 to bet on the result of the Ohio election this fall.

There has been an unusual amount of petty thieviig in this county during the past two months.

We are inclined to think that that red-hot hereafter we hear talked of is trying to get possession of this country.

Miss Mary A. Thompson, of this place, has an amethyst ring, the set being an amethyst which her father found in the rough on one of his lots here in town.

Dr. Smith is giving his house a thorough renovation which will add greatly to its appearance. W. J. Rice and Frank Kirkpatrick are supervising the work which has been underway for several days.

Next Sunday afternoon there will be a picnic on Green Ridge, near Jonas Delph's. A grand time is anticipated.

One day last week, the horse attached to a spring wagon in which John Furlong and two or three other young men were riding became frightened and ran off, starting near Wm. Conner's and running down the hill to the bridge near Florence X-Roads. The boys escaped without any broken bones, but were considerably bruised by the careless manner in which they struck the ground when jumping out of the wagon.

Miss Nellie Blythe returned, Monday, from her visit to friends in Ohio.

Miss Dora Rich, of Beech Grove, is visiting her sister, Mrs. Florence McKim.

Frank Hall shouldered his paint brush and "lit out" for Hebron, Monday morning.

COUNTY COURT

N. E. Hawes presented his commission from the Governor appointing him Police Judge for the town of Burlington, whereupon he took the oath, &c.

T. W. Finch allowed $6 for provision furnished the Poor-house.

C. J. Huston refused license to keep tavern at Beaver.

Eugene Clements released from paying poll tax for 1878.

RELIGIOUS ITEMS

Sunday was an "off day" with all the churches in Burlington. John Smith, a Second Adventist, preached at Florence X-Roads Sunday afternoon.

Next Sunday the Sabbath-school votes on the proposition to adopt the "International Sunday-school Lesson." How are you going to vote?

FACTS AND FANCIES

These are the kinds of nights that a person sleeps all over the house, and occasionally wishes for an ice berg to embrace.

A man will ride a horse to town in the morning, and leave it tied to a rack all day long without water or food such weather as this, will never get to heaven.

4-H CLUB MEMBERS TO NATIONAL CAMP

The selection of four 4-H club members to represent Kentucky at the National 4-H camp in Washington in June is announced from the University of Kentucky ollege of Agriculture.

Sarah Jean Potter of Warren county has won many county, state and national prizes, including a first prize at the 4-H Club Congress in Chicago last year.

Gifford Varney, Pike county, is president of the Kentucky Association of Junior 4-H Clubs. His club work has helped him through high school, dairying alone returning a profit of more than $1,000 in a year.

Minnie Ruth Pyle, Christian county, is state canning champion. She represented Kentucky twice at the National 4-H Club Congress, and has completed practically all 4-H club work in canning, foods, clothing and room improvement.

Ford Hervey, Garrard county, has an enviable record raising beef calves, including the reserve grand championship at the annual state fat cattle show. In addition, he is an expert tobacco grower, winning the county championship last year.

RECEIVED $5,000 AS DECOY IN DILLINGER SLAYING

New York, April 30—Mrs. Anna Sage, the "woman in red" who decoyed John Dillinger to his death at the hands of Federal agents in Chicago, sailed on the President Harding at noon Wednesday, a deportee to her native Rumania.

Locked in a first-class cabin while the ship was at its pier, Mrs. Sage, 44-year-old brunette, talked with questioners through a ventilator.

She readily told how she had Sh readily told how she had pointed Dillinger out to the Government men and said that she had receivd 5,000 for informing.

"It was my duty," she said, "and I'll do it again."

"Do you feel you were doublecrossed by the Government in the deportation proceedings?" she was asked.

"I have never felt that way," she replied.

"When you informed did you know that Dillinger would be shot on sight?"

"I did not know that, but I would have had to do my duty anyway."

Mrs. Sage said she hopes to return to Americe some day "because I love this country."

She sailed under the name Anna Ciolak. On board the ship also were thirty-four persons who were being sent from the country at the request of Detroit welfare authorities.

HAMILTON HOMEMAKERS CLUB

On Wednesday, April 29, the Hamilton Homemakers Club held its monthly meeting—due to high water it was impossible for our Club to meet earlier in the month, which was our schelduled time.

It was also impossible for our Club to be represented at the county meeting. Our meeting was called to order by the president. Mrs. Blufe Kirtley. After a short business session, Miss Gillaspie gave a very interesting demonstration on "Floor Finish," then for a few minutes we discussed "Exterior Beautifications." We urge all of those who are interested in making a home more worth while to make an effort to attend our next meeting. This meeting will be held Tuesday May 26th, at 1:30 P. M., at the school building.

MANAGER CINCINNATI NEWSPAPER BUYS HOME IN CARROLL

The Louisville Times of May 1 had the following to say regarding Ralph H. Quinn, Cincinnati newspaper man who recently purchased the Ramey farm on U. S. 42, just above Carrollton:

"On behalf of Kntucky newspaperdom, The Times welcomes Ralph H. Quinn, general manager of The Cincinnati Enquirer, as a resident of one of the most favored section of this State.

"Mr. Quinn had the good judgment to select as the scene of his Kentucky home the riverside two miles east of Carrollton.

"A New York book publisher says Clark B. Firestone, of The Times-Star, author of Sycamore Shores, after adventures in journalism in New York and Europe, accepted an offer in Cincinnati because the Queen City was just across the Ohio from Kentucky.

"Kentucky all the way down to Cumberland Gap, is pleasing, but Cincinnati newspaper men need not go beyond the northern tier of counties to find all they, or any one, could want in the way of good domiciliary architecture in pleasing surroundings.

"Eight or ten miles of unsurpassed loveliness in the form of a fertile valley between a gleaming river and the green hills is found between Cincinnati and Ghent."

Mr. Clay Blackburn, real estate agent of Covington, was a business visitor at this office Tuesday morning.

Several young folks of Burlington were the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Easton, Monday night.

Mr. Herbert Snyder and Mr. Frank Kelly, those buyers and traders, paid this office a short call Tuesday morning.

Ruth Cress has been visiting relatives at Burlington the past two weeks.

BUYERS PREFER LIGHTER CALVES

ACCORDING TO STATEMENT ISSUED BY PRODUCERS CO-OPERATIVE COMMISSION ASSOCIATION

Some worth-whue suggestions relative to the marketing of veal calves and early lambs, has just been issued by the Producers Co-Operative Association, Stock Cincinnati, Ohio. They advise watching veal calves carefully to be sure they do not get too heavy. In warm weather, killers prefer calves weighing not over 175 lbs. These big, rough calves weighing from 200 to 250 pounds, that have been allowed to run with the cow in pasture, will generally be discounted in price. They are poor killers both in quality and shrink. Grass and sun cause a reddish color to the meat and gives it a texture more like beef than veal, while freedom of pasture permits them to run off most of their fat. Keeping calves in the barn and allowing them all the milk they want will give more rapid gains, improved quality, and usually higher net returns.

In the case of early lambs, it is suggested that they be pushed by feeding grain, so they will be fat for the early summer trade. The market about the middle of May should be keenly competitive for good to choice new-crop lambs.

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

A statement from the Kentucky College of Agriculture says that fruit and vegetable growers may qualify for payments under the agricultural conservation program.

Orchards, vineyards and areas in small fruits and nut trees are considered crop land. If such land is clean cultivated, it is classified as neutral. If it was used in 1935 to produce an interplanted soil-depleting crop, the actual acreage so used is classified as soil-depleting. If it was interplanted with a soil-conserving crop, the actual acreage so used is classified as soil-conserving.

The provisions governing rates of payment and requirements for qualification for payment are the same on the interplanted part of the land devoted to orchards, vineyards, small fruits, and nut trees as on any other cropland.

Truck farmers and other vegetable growers who use winter cover and green manure crops will be able to increase their soil-building allowance, which determines the maximum of the Class II payment for which they can qualify under the Agricultural Conservation program.

Land that has been in vegetable crps will be cunted in the acreage used in determining the soil-building allowance if planted to winter cover crops and green manure crops, provided that such crops are turned under as green manure between Jan. 1, 1936, and Oct. 1, 1936. The winter cover crops and green manure crops, however, must have been growing at least two months, before being turned under.

Such classification of acreage will be used only for the purpose of determining the soil-building allowances. The number of dollars for soil-building payments cannot exceed the number of acres in soil-conserving crops, including the winter cover and green manure crops, on the farm in 1936. That is the top limit on the total Class II payment for the farm. However, the rate of payment for specified soil-building practices may be greater than $1 per acre for the acreage on which they are carried out.

THE FAVORITE CAR of Thrifty Families

FORD V-8 TUDOR SEDAN

Economy from the day you buy it. Low in first cost. Low in cost of operation.

Ford V-8 economy has been proved by the experience of millions of owners. The V-8 engine uses no more gas than a "four" of equal power, and you seldom have to add oil between 2000-mile changes. As for up-keep, the 1936 Ford V-8 will run for longer periods without attention than any Ford car ever built.

Although low in first cost and low in up-keep, it is a fine automobile —a car you will be proud to own. We have one ready for you to try out. Phone us!

OLD-AGE SECURITY

Every ambitious young man on the threshold of his career, determines to be a financial success. He looks ahead to an old age of leisure and independence—not to an old age of dependence or poverty.

The bitter figures show how thoroughly the hopes of the great bulk of men are blased.

Out of every 100 men 65 years old or older, five have independent incomes of sufficient size to enable them to retire and live comfortably.

Twenty-eight out of the hundred must go on working to exist, well knowing that in a few years their period of earning power will have been passed.

Sixty-seven out of the hundred are dependents. Their relatives, friends or charity must support them.

Many of the men who fail are no less able, no less honest, no less aggressive than the men who succeed. Many may have accumulated fortunes, only to lose them. They may have seen investments reduced to nothing overnight.

Today thousands of men are resolving that they will be among the small percentage of men who succeed in winning old-age independence. They are adopting savings programs, such as those offered by life insurance, that put safety and security above all. They look forward with hope and optimism to their declining years. The harsh experience of others has taught them an invaluable lesson.

A sneeze which overcame C. Baker, an Arkansas barber, caused him to break three ribs.

The seven-year-old daughter of Daniel Bouchocha, a Turkish barber, fell from a fourth floor balcony, struck a group of telephone wires and bounced over onto the third floor balcony, uninjured.

SCRIBBLER'S ITCH

BY EDDIE LOGSDON

Now, at last, we may dwell on the thoughts of Spring. Spring has been around the corner for the past two months. Signs and more signs have appeared yet we have clung to our overcoats and heavy flannels. Never have we wished more fervently for the flowers, the leaves the clear skies and the fish as we have this year. Our severely cold Winter has been thoroughly absorbed by our very blood and bones and it is difficult to rid ourselves of the chill. It is no wonder, then that we cry for Spring and proclaim its birth when in reality it is just now making its appearance around the corner. Now Easter is over; the snow flurries are past—unless it snows on the 12th day of May, as some prophet has emphasized—and the old settlers in our community are whittling new sticks from popular and pawpaw bushes, Redbud, dogwood, lilac and apple blossoms are bursting forth, bringing on a panorama of poetic beauty and the young things have flower-be-decked hair and new sweethearts. Beauty, splendor, joy and happiness reigns throughout the land and we all shout: "Hail to Spring!"

As Spring moves in the 'march of events" moves on. While we carry tulips and roses in America Ethiopia and Italy carry swords, poisonous gas and hard feelings. The emperor Salassie's son moves up to his father's title and position. Peace! The cry of thousands of those war-worn soldiers is not heard. Spring flowers mean nothing to them but more beautiful graves. For someone drops a lilac on the grave of an unknown soldier and little dandelions spring up to border his final resting place. Not satisfied with Ethiopia's war some countries would agitate another war.

******

Springtime brings its heroes and heroines as well as its flowers and happiness—and tragedy. We will not soon forget Nellie Granger's hysterical telephone call for help when the airliner "Sun Racer" crashed in Pennsylvania. Nor will we forget the struggling, daring rescue workers of Nova Scotia in their eight day feat of heroism endeavoring to reach Dr. Robertson and his associates who were trapped one hundred forty-one feet below the earth's surface. It is dependable men of that type that the world relies upon for safety.

******

up Spring moves in and business moves up. More new buildings are under construction and commerce is at a high peak. Local, state and national improvements are in progress with new trimmings on everything for the welcoming of Spring. Age old traditions spring to life as plans progress for May Festivals and the whole nation is going "a-Maying."

James Lockett of Duluth, on his way to church for the first time in seven years, slipped on the sidewalk and broke his leg.

Albert Pickering of Doncaster, Eng., a banker, was acquitted of the charge that he kissed the wife of his bank's janitor.

Ranger Trophy

This Apache war dance loin cloth, displayed by Rangerette Mabel Rooks, will be part of the historical collection in the Texas Rangers' Headquarters at the Texas Centennial Exposition, $25,000,000 World's Fair opening in Dallas June 6. The cloth was taken from an Apache war party by Rangers in 1860.

Texas Beauty

This is Georgia Carroll, 17-year-old Dallas high school girl, who won second place in the contest to select the Texas Centennial Exposition's "Bluebonnet Girl." She will have an important part in the June 6 ceremonies, when President Roosevelt visits Dallas to open the big World's Fair.

Mrs. Blanche Ketcham, of La Harpe, Ill., is making her own tombstone from rocks collected in every state in the Union, as well as Canada, Africa, and France.

George Kirkland of Hollywood, Calif., earns his livelihood by blowing up balloons for night-club scenes on one of the movie lots.

ALL MASONS' DAY AT CONEY ISLAND

The twenty-eighth Annual Masonic outing Basket Picnic, and Reunion of the comoined lodges of Hamilton, Kenton and Campbell Counties will be held at Coney Island, Saturday, June 6, 1936.

A Grand Parade in honor of the Grand Masters of Ohio and Kentucky will form at the Cincinnati Masonic Temple at 1:00 o'clock, and March thru the downtown district, and then to the Island Queen. The members of each Blue Lodge will march as a distinct body with colors and lodge banner, and be preceded by the Worshipful Master, Officers and Past Master.

The Ladies and children are urged to make a full day of the Outing and take the early morning boats.

Members of affiliated bodies can secure tickets from James N. Ramsey, 314-315 Hulbert Block, 534 Vine Street.

MOTOR BLOODSHED

Spring is here! And to millions of us, the lure of the open road will soon become irresistible. Then off we'll go, for fishing trips, picnics, sight-seeing drives.

Last year, 36,000 bloody corpses dotted the streets and highways of the United States. This year, if the ten per cent of drivers who cause 90 per cent of the accidents aren't curbed, the record will be worse.

Do you belong to that 10 per cent? You'll undoubtedly say you don't—it's a rare driver who will admit to carelessness or recklessness or incompetence. And here's hoping you really don't. But it won't do you any harm to think over your driving practices.

Do you ever pass on curves or hills? If so, you have been guilty of an act that has caused thousands of fatilities and millions of injuries.

Do you ever drive on the wrong side of the road, or weave in and out of traffic, impatient to save a few minutes to be spent later telling your friends what a hot-shot driver you are? If so, you are a potential killer.

Do you regard speed restrictions as something for the other fellow —who, naturally, isn't in your class as a driver—to obey, and for you to break at will? Excessive speed is the principal single cause of motor bloodshed.

Do you drink and drive? Alcohol and gasoline mix into a fuel that has taken a legion of people on the longest journey of all—to the Great Beyond.

Do you put off repairs to your car until a tomorrow that may never come? Bad brakes, defective lights, uncertain steering are friends of the casket maker.

Spring is here—make sure that it isn't the last Spring you'll enjoy on this earth.

Don't fail to see the Union Stock Yard Soft ball team at the Local ball park Saturday afternoon when the tangle with Burlington.

C. N. YORK PASSES AWAY

AT THE HOME OF W. A. PETTIT, BURLINGTON, AFTER SHORT ILLNESS OF PNEUMONIA

Mr. C. N. York, age 69, years, 7 months and fifteen days passed away at the home of his nephew in Burlington Friday, May 15th, after a short illness of pneumonia.

He was born Nov. 1, 1866 on a farm in Grant County where he made his home until he moved to the Gunpowder neighborhood, Boone County in 1903. He has been a resident of this county for over forty years and has followed farming as his means of livelihood.

In 1904 he was united with the Gunpowder Baptist church and remained a member in good standing until he moved to Burlington in 1920 to make his home with his nephew, Mr. W. A. Pettit. His church membership was then moved to the Burlington Baptist church where he has remained a member until his death.

He is survived by three sisters and four brothers:—namely, Mrs. Bell Baker, Covington, Mrs. Ida Pettit, Burlington and Mrs. Cora McMullen of Union. His brothers, George York, Paint Lick, Ky., Kelly York, Detroit, James York, Addyston, Ohio, and Walter York of Union, Ky. In the years that he has spent in Boone county he has also made many friends that will miss his presence. Although he has not been so active in the past two or three years, croquet was his hobby and if there was anyone who enjoyed the game it was Mr. York. His quiet but kind disposition, and his every-ready willingness to help others in need, has won him friends that will remember him as a good man in years to come.

Funeral services were conducted at the home of Mr. Pettit in Burlington Sunday morning at 11:00 A. M., by Rev. R. Lee James, pastor of the local Baptist church, after which his remains were removed to the I. O. O. F. cemetery for burial. Chambers & Grubbs had charge of the arrangements.

The pall bearers were Newton Sullivan. Lloyd Weaver, J. R. Eddins, Stanley Easton, Harold Conner and Stanley Eddins.

Rev. H. M. Hauter, pastor of Hebron and Hopeful Lutheran churches, Boone County, and Virgil Kelly are attending a convention of the Kentucky-Tennessee Synod of the United Lutheran Church in Nashville, Tenn.

Rev. Hauter, as chaplain of Synod, is leading all devotional services.

ATTENTION KENTUCKIANS

DO NOT FORGET THE ONWARD KENTUCKY EXPOSITION AT THE OLD STATE CAPITOL BUILDING, FRANKFORT, ON JUNE 5, 6, 7 1936

Have you some treasured piece of hand-craft, something lovely or useful that you have made? Would you like to show this and win a prize, and perhaps, sell it? Would you like to make such and sell them? Perhaps you have a friend or neighbor who have done something exceptionally well, rug, a quilt, a piece of weaving, basketry, or even some rare bit of cookery. Do you not want to go quickly and tell this friend and neighbor to enter her rare piece of work or her product where she can make a sale or win a prize?

THE ONWARD KENTUCKY EXPOSITION in the State Capitol Building in Frankfort on June 5th, 6th and 7th, 1936, will provide the opportunity for things made in Kentucky to win rich prizes and ultmately to be sold. Following this EXPOSITION the producers of these articles will be shown how to make them in larger quantities so that they can realize on them in a substantial way, which will add to their own wealth and increase the prosperity of the State.

There are many prized recipes hidden away in Kentucky homes and many interesting pieces of hand-craft going to waste. There are products are not being seen or appreciated or sold. It is the purpose of the ONWARD KENTUCKY EXPOSITION to bring these out of hiding and make them known, and,

FLAG POLE ERECTED IN COURT HOUSE YARD

A flag pole was erected in the Boone County court house yard by the Young Men's Democratic Club of Boone County, Saturday afternoon. Members of the Club and many citizens of Burlington donated their services in erecting this greatly needed work. It not only adds to the appearance of the court house square and the entire town but expresses the loyal and progressive citizen's interest for the county.

LAUREL FESTIVAL ANNUAL EVENT

TO BE HELD MAY 29 AND 30—GOV. CHANDLER AND OTHER DISTINGUISHED GUESTS WILL BE PRESENT

Pneville, Ky., May 21.—The sixth annual Kentucky Mountain Laurel Festival will be held in Pine Mountain State Park one mile from Pineville, on May 29 and 30.

Preliminary entertainments will begin Thursday, May 28, with the arrival of the college representatives who will compete for the title of queen of the festival.

The festivities will draw thousands of Kentuckians this year as in the past and a record attendance is anticipated by the committee in charge of arrangements. Pineville hotels have about exhausted their supply of accommodations and nearby cities are beginning to make reservations. The girls who were selected by the colleges and universities of Kentucky will arrive Thursday afternoon for several informal entertainments. These young women, representing the leaders in college life, will be honored guests of the festival association. Acceptances have been received from sixteen institutions and several more are expected to enter before Friday, the day of the coronation.

The real festival will get under way Friday morning when every city in the Cumberland Valley will co-operate in staging a parade of floats depicting the progress of the mountain section of Kentucky. There will be five or six bands and many floats and marching units in the parade. The queens, Governor A. B. Chandler, Senator M. M. Logan and other officials, will review the parade.

The coronation ceremonies will take place in a natural amphitheatre in the park Friday afternoon. They will be preceded by a band concert and an address of welcome by Dr. H. L. Donovan, Richmond, president of the festival association. The competing young women then will pass in review and the judges will select the winner. The processional, participated in by more than one hundred young women of the Cumberland Valley, wearing pink and green organdie, then will enter from the rear of the amphitheatre and march out on the stage where Governor Chandler will crown the winner with a wreath of blossoming mountain laurel. AGED WOOLPER CITIZEN DIES

AFTER SHORT ILLNESS OF HEMIPLEGIA—WAS LIFELONG RESIDENT OF THIS COUNTY

J. Edward Botts, lifelong resident of Boone County, passed away at his home, Woolper, at the age of 73 years, 8 months and 17 days following a short illness from Hemiplegia, Friday, May 15, 1936. He was the only son of the late James Botts and Rebecca Willis. His three sisters preceded him to the grave several years ago.

Mr. Botts was a member of the Bullittsburg Baptist church and was loved by all who knew him.

Funeral services were conducted from his church by Rev. William Smith, of Warsaw, assisted by Rev. Raymond Smith, of Belleview and Rev. Campbell, of Bullittsburg in the presence of a concourse of relatives and friends after which his remains were laid to rest along side his loved ones in the Bullittsburg cemetery.

Pallbearers were Frank Voshell, Frank Walton, Aubrey Finn, Bernard Sebree, Franklin Huey and Moreland Nixon.

Chambers and Grubbs were in charge of funeral arrangements.

SPECIAL TERM OF COURT TO BE CALLED BY JUDGE VALLANDINGHAM FOR MAY 27.

It appears from a notice posted at the court house door that there will be a special term of Boone Circuit Court by order of Hon. J. G. Vallandingham, Judge of Boone Circuit Court on the 27th day of May, 1936.

The term will be held for the purpose of disposing of a series of cases which involved property located in Erlanger Heights Subdivision in Boone County, Kentucky.

The Dearborn County Fair, which last year won the commendation of the thousands who attended, will be held this year from July 27 to August 1 inclusive.

This year will again see the return of Hamess Racing at this Fair. The outstanding features of the three day racing program will be the two year old Trotting and Pacing Stake Raees. Horses have been nominated from five different states for these stakes and indications point to some of the best harness racing in this section of the state.

WATCH THIS PAPER FOR FUTURE ANNOUNCEMENTS REGARDING THE DEARBORN CO. FAIR.

POST SPORTS WRITER CALLS ON RECORDER EDITORS

C. Cherry of the Bowling Green city schools.

Dr. Everett Dean Martin, noted sociologist, former director of Cooper Union Forum and chairman of the National board of review of motion pictures, will give the commencement address on the evening of May 28 at 8:00 o'clock in Van Meter Auditorium.

CONSTABLES MAY LOSE POWER

GOVERNOR TO INCLUDE SUBJECT IN LEGISLATIVE CALL NEXT WEEK

Assurance that legislation governing enforcement of state motor vehicle laws by Constables will be included in the call for a special session of the Legislature to be issued next week by Gov. A. B. Chandler, has been received by Representative John M. Hunnicutt, Ludlow, ccording to an announcement by Mr. Hunnicutt yesterday.

Rep. Hunnicutt, one of the sponsors of a bill to deprive Constables of authority to enforce motor vehicle laws, received this assurance when he confered with the State Reorganization Committee in Frankfort. Monday.

The bill is being introduced by Northern Kentucky auto clubs and business houses of the district as they believe the strict enforcement is diverting traffic in Kenton-co.

SEVERE SPIKE WOUND RECEIVED

BY RAYMOND CARNAHAN IN FALL FROM DISC HARROW

Raymond Carnahan, 32, of Erlanger, who is employed as a farm hand near Burlington, was injured Tuesday when a disc harrow on which he was riding broke and throwed him from his seat. As he fell he was thrown on a large spike, which was driven four and a half inches into his lower abdomen.

After freeing himself from the spike he got into his car and drove to the home of his brother, John Carnahan, Covington, from where he was instantly rushed to the St. Elizabeth hospital.

Attendants late Tuesday say that Carnahan's condition is fair.

Atty. Harper Rucker was in Burlington, Tuesday.

MRS. EDNA M. RICH

Mrs. Edna M. Rich, aged 35 years, passed away Tuesday night at the Good Samaritan Hospital, Cincinnati, following an operation. The remains were removed to the Taliaferro Funeral Home for preparation.

She is survived by her husband, Harry Rich and seven children, one sister, Mrs. Nannie Rich, and a host of other friends and relatives.

Funeral services were conducted at the Big Bone Baptist church, Friday morning at 10 o'clock, by the Rev. Ira Paternoster, after which the remains were laid to rest in the nearby cemetery.

The pall-bearers were Mr. Zion, Wm. Dugan, Walter and Butler Moore, Herb Scudder and Nick Moore.

Funeral Director Philip Taliaferro had charge of the funeral arrangements.

FARM CREDIT ASSOCIATION

OF LOUISVILLE REPORTS 87% INCREASE IN FARM LOANS FROM NORTHERN KENTUCKY PRODUCTION CREDIT ASSOCIATION

Williamstown, Ky., May 20—An increase of 87 per cent in the number of farmer-members receiving loans from the Northern Kentucky Production Credit Association during the first four months of the year and of 222 per cent in the amount borrowed as compared with the same period last year is reported by Albert Mills, Secretary-Treasurer, who states that up to the beginning of May 140 farmers of the eight counties which the association serves borrowed $61,088 to finance their crop and livestock production. "This year more farmers are operating on a cash basis than at any time since-pre-depression days. They find that they are money ahead to borrow from their short-term credit cooperative at the present 5 per cent per year interest rate and reap the benefits of cash discounts and other buying advantages," said Mr. Mills.

The Northern Kentucky Production Credit Association was organized early in 1934, and has advanced $151,000 to the farmers of its territory to grow crops, finance livestock and dairy production and pay for fertilizer, farm supplies, work stock and other items of farm operation. The association is owned in part by the borrowers. The money comes from investors who buy debentures of the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank of Louisville, this institution in turn discounting the notes of the farmer-members after endorsement by the respective production credit associations.

Farmer-members have maintained an enviable record of repayment, according to the secretary's report, having liquidated $67,000 of the total amount loaned, leaving $84,000 outstanding as of May 1.

Carroll, Gallatin, Grant, Campbell, Owen, Boone, Kenton, Pendleton county is included in the business territory of the Northern Kentucky Production Credit Association.

Stevenson the Magacian, featuring the Floating Lady and slight of hand tricks, was in Burlington Wednesday night of this week. He gave his show on the local school grounds at 7:45. He intends to move on to Petersburg and then to Hebron with his show this week.

FARM SIGN UP CLOSES MAY 30

80 TO 95% SIGN UP EXPECTED BEFORE CLOSE OF CAMPAIGN —NUMBER OF SIGNERS INCREASING DAILY

The Agricultural Conservation Program sign-up campaign is announced to close May 30th, according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent. Four hundred and forty work sheets covering more than fifty per cent of the farm land of the county, has already been listed and from 80 to 95 percent is expected to be signed before the close of the campaign. On Monday of this week 51 farmers took advantage of the program and signed.

The sign up has been moving with increasing momentum. The number of farmers signing each day has been increasing rapidly. The County and Community Committeemen have been using every effort to see that the opportunity to sign up is made available to every farmer. The Campaign Committee is composed of B. W. Franks, H. E. White, J. H. Huey, Hubert Conner, William Hill, W. B. Rogers, August Trapp, J. F. Cleek, O. K. Powers, H. L. Coppage and L. D. Reinacker. The second series of community sign up days will be completed with the meeting at Grant and Union on Thursday and Florence and Burlington on Friday.

Final community sign up days will be held over the county on Monday and Tuesday of this coming week. May 25th and 26th, the dates and places of these meetings are as follows:

Monday May 25	Tuesday May 26
Verona	Petersburg
Walton	Grant
Beaver	Hamilton
Union	Hebron
Florence	Burlington

The County Agent or an Assistant from the county office will be with the committeemen at each of the meetings to assist farmers with their work sheets.

Farmers are urged not to delay in filling out their work sheets. No farmer is eligible for benefits unless his work sheet is filed with the County Association. Delay in this work places extra burdens on both the County Office and the Committee and slows up the entire program.

The new program offers farmers the opportunity to hold the progress gained the past two years. The 100% backing of our farmers with the new program will show strength and loyality that will go a long way toward future progress in agricultural improvements.

CONSTANCE LADY WINS DAMAGES

IN SESSION OF COUNTY COURT FRIDAY—$500.00 DAMAGE GRANTED FOR RIGHT-OF-WAY OF NEW CONSTANCE-TAYLORSPORT ROAD

In the case of Commonwealth of Kentucky vs. Minnie Herbstreit, which was held Friday at the court house, Mrs. Minnie Herbstreit, of Constance, was granted $500 damages resulting from the construction of the New Constance-Taylorsport road.

Judge Gaines was defending the Commonwealth and O. M. Rogers and son Jimmie were defending Mrs. Herbstreit. The jury, before reaching a verdict, were allowed to visit the home of Mrs. Herbstreit and thereby seeing the exact damag that would take place if the right-of-way be granted. After visiting the farm and returning to the jury room for a short while they brought in a verdict as follows: $150.00 land damage; $25.00 fencing damage and $325.00 damage to balance of farm.

The members of the jury were, namely: Bert Gaines, Frank Kelly, Wm. Carpenter, Elmer Kelly, J. B. Arvin, J. W. Kelly, J. O. Huey, J. G. Smith, C. A. Fowler, L. A. Thompson, Hubert Rouse and W. C. Walton.

Mrs. Herbstreit's loss will be that the entire front yard will be removed, thus putting her house within 15 to 18 feet of the new road. The garden spot located just to the side of the house will also be damaged, as the road will take the greater part of the garden and the remained of the farm is hardly adaptable for farming purposes.

Judge N. E. Riddell and Stanley Easton were in Warsaw Sunday.

DIFFICULT JOB COMPLETED

The difficult task of providing revenue with which to finance operation of the state government the next two years has been successfully completed by the state legislature under the astute leadership of Governor Chandler. Every tax measure the enactment of which was requested by the governor was given legislative approval.

No legislature ever faced a tougher job nor has any general assembly ever performed its task more thoroughly. Governor Chandler presented a taxation program that was both equitable and economically sound. The predominant principle which guided the governor and his advisers, as the revenue plan was formulated, was to remove taxes from the necessties of life and place tham on luxuries and non-essentials, shifting the burden from those least able to pay to the shoulders of those who are better able financially to contribute to the conduct of state government.

That is a sound principle of taxation. The revenue acts enacted represent the best possible tax program, on that will impose the minimum of hardship on those in the low income groups, yet equitably distributes the tax burden on those to whom the payment of taxes does not necessitate a severe sacrifice. It takes the tax off meat, bread and butter and puts it on whisky. It removes the tax from shirts and shoes, overalls and underwear and puts it on soft drinks and confections; Incomes of those better able to pay have been taxed reasonably. And who is there that will disagree that such is a tax plan that is just right and equitable.

For the first time in many years there is definite assurance that Kentucky's budget will be balanced, that the state will not spend more in the next two years than the income which has been provided by the revenue acts of the general assembly. Tax measures enacted will provide money with which to begin the long deferred operation of reducing the state debt, constructing a new prison and hospital for the insane in order to relieve the cruelly crowded condition that has existed in these institutions for two decades.

Tax levies imposed will provide half a million dollars for free school books for children of the state and the largest public school fund that has ever been distributed to the counties with which to supplement local school funds in financing an improved public school system. These tax measurs, enacted in the redistribution of the tax load, will provide two and a half millions of dollars for old age pensions to the worthy indigent aged of Kentucky, a state service and expense for which no previous legislature had the responsibility of providing.

Governor Chandler and the legislature found that there are no popular tax measures. Regardless of the nature of the tax proposed, [illegible] protest. No doubt there are those who protest. Delegations came to Frankfort to be for taxes. They all came to resist taxes. But the tax program, viewed in its entirety, is the least objectionable of any plan that could be devised and yet raise the money required to balance the budget. It is an achievement in financial statecraft that is without parallel in the history of Kentucky. Its effect will be to securely establish the financies of the state upon the bed-rock of sound financial practices.

ADVERTISING NOT CHARITY AND NO MAGIC WAND

There are merchants throughout all parts of the country and particularly in this district who do not believe in advertising. For reasons of their own they choose to think that when they pay the Recorder for space that they are making a generous donation to the livelihood of the editor and his cohorts. They prefer to think that the home town should have a newspaper as a matter of charity.

This newspaper does not seek advertising upon the charity basis. We have for sale advertising space—a commodity as valuable as any being sold on the American markets today, provided the man who purchases it has a use for it.

Advertising, Mr. Merchant, is not a fairy story, or a magic wand to wave over incompetent merchandising and transform it into a whopping success. Back of the advertising that a merchant pays for must be an ability to serve the public, efficiently and economically. These factors, plus wise and honest advertising, will make any business grow.

There is an expression that is used quite frequently by the man who has given advertising serious thought.

Although it is merely an expression, there is more truth than fable connected with it. It reads: "IF YOUR BUSINESS IS NOT WORTH ADVERTISING, THEN YOU HAD BETTER ADVERTISE YOUR BUSINESS FOR SALE."

Lesson for May 24

BUILDING FOR THE FUTURE

LESSON TEXT—Luke 20:45-47; 21:1-36.

GOLDEN TEXT—In your patience possess ye your souls.—Luke 21:19.

PRIMARY TOPIC—A Gift That Pleased Jesus.

JUNIOR TOPIC—What Makes a Gift Great?

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Making the Most of Today.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Living for Spiritual Ends.

While this lesson is indicated as the quarterly Temperance lesson, and the various subjects suggested vary in their objective, a more logical theme would seem to be "Jesus Teaches in the Temple." No individual, city, or nation can truly build for the future that disregards what the Bible says about the future.

I. Jesus Warns Against the Scribes (vv. 45-47).

He had just dealt with the disbelief of the Sadducees. The scribes claimed faith, for they were the teachers of the law. They were punctiliously exacting as to its literal observance. They had little understanding of the need of flexibility in applying its principles to human needs. They discovered that Jesus was teaching things contrary to their interpretations. Jesus taught that the law was made for man, and not man for the law. The scribes were publicity seekers, making parade of their wisdom. Sunday school teachers should earnestly pray that they may serve as true messengers of Christ, not as scribes, with only a head-knowledge of biblical matters.

II. Jesus Makes Estimate of Gifts (Luke 21:1-4).

1. Amount counts for little (v. 1). While the rich cast their gifts into the treasury, and observers may have noted that the clash and clatter of their coin indicated large giving, it is not likely that these gifts meant personal sacrifice or self-denial.

2. Inner conditions determine the value of a gift (vv. 2, 3). In the sight of man the poor widow's deed was not worthy of notice. In the sight of God it merited the immortality of the Bible record. The two-mite gift of the widow revealed her love for God, else how could she spare her all? It revealed her faith in God for tomorrow, for how else would she be fed? It revealed her humility, for she did not withhold her gift because it was so little. Verse 4 is indeed revealing as to Christ's interpretation of the deeper meaning of gifts, for that and the present age.

III. Jesus Prophesies His Return (vv. 5-33).

1. The temple to be destroyed (vv. 5, 6). The temple was the pride and boast of the proud Jew. Such boasting called forth the Lord's declaration that "there shall not be left one stone upon another," a fact that had its fulfillment A. D. 70, when Titus destroyed Jerusalem.

2. The disciples' inquiry (v. 7). There can be no surprise that the disciples should ask for more information about future events. A corresponding verse in Matthew (24:3) should be considered.

3. An order of events was presented to them (vv. 8-24). Perhaps one would not so much say, an order, as that he pointed out details on the great canvas of the future.

a. False Christs would appear (v. 8), some claiming to be the Messiah in his first appearing, and some in his reappearing. These make their appeal to such as are not rooted and grounded in the faith. "Go ye not after them."

b. Inevitable wars and commotions (vv. 9, 10) will embroil the nations. "Commotions" signifies tumults, in the absence of war, wrangling within national life, or between nations. The restful follower of Christ is to "be not terrified."

c. Violent persecutions were foretold (vv. 12-19). The believer of today should absorb the meaning and teaching of this marvelous passage of Scripture. "Settle it in your hearts" that Christ will be to his own even as to the tempest-tossed disciples on Galilee, when he said "Peace, be still." And in this connection he spoke the words of the golden text, "In your patience possess ye your souls."

IV. Appropriate Warnings (vv. 34-36).

The grosser sins may not ensnare the believer, but how subtle are the cares of this life. But upon the drunken, the obscene, the frivolous, and upon the follower of Christ alike shall trials and perplexities come. Watch ye therefore, always; pray, always. Only so shall the child of God be ready ("worthy") to escape, and to stand before the Son of God. Benediction is pronounced upon "those who love his appearing."

Christian Worship

All Christian worship is a witness of the resurrection of him who liveth for ever and ever. Because he lives, "now abideth faith, hope, charity."

The Greatest Gift

You propose to give up everything for God. Be sure, then, to include yourself among the things to be given up.

Talent and Character

Talent forms itself in solitude; character in the press of life.—Goethe.

JEST A-WHITTLIN' AN' A-THINKIN'

By Pete Gettys

(By Pete Gettys)

(A State Farmer Section Feature)

Recollect "Poke-Stock" shot guns when you was a boy way back yonder, muzzle loaders, and how they'd kick the very stuffin' out of your shoulder? But us boys thought they was awful fine. Now they're about to perfect a "kickless" gun-they've already got "smokeless" powder, and nearly "noisless" report-and if they get 'em "kickless" how'll a feller know when he's shooting?

Anyhow, now comes along another feller-a "dirtless" farmer and that about tops the list! And "dirtless" is about like some of 'em are-when it comes to dirt that'll grow anything. But this feller has done tried it and showed pictures of a way by which he claims 2,000 bushels of potatoes, or $50,000 worth of tomatoes. could be growed on one acre of "ground" without usin' a hoe or plow. And soil is jest as useless as the plow and the hoe in this process. He uses only water that has the things in it needed for plant life. Besides, a feller could grow as much in a green house as he could on a 1000 acre farm, and have summer time crops comin' along in the winter. But there wasn't nothin' said about where them "elements" in the water, "necessary to plant life", was comin' from. That's the trick-and most of us I reckon, had best stick along with our dirt farms-for a while now, anyway.

KENTUCKY TURKEY CROP ON ITS WAY

Another Kentucky turkey crop is on its way, since most of the poults in this state are hatched in May. Some breeders continue hatching well into June, but Dr. J. Holmes Martin of the College of Agriculture at Lexington does not favor starting the birds much after the middle of June.

Many of the big birds now are artificially brooded. R. E. Nute, Bullitt county, one of the momst successful turkey raisers in the state, says he likes the brick brooder. One brooder is used in a 10 by 12 house built of tin and corrugated metal roof to make it fireproof.

This kind of house is light in weight and easily moved. By moving the house frequently, at least once a month, the birds are kept on clean ground. This is the principal method of avoiding disease.

Turkey raisers must ever keep in mind ways of dodging blackhead. The most effective means of controlling disease, according to this breeder, are to keep the birds on clean ground, and to pick up and burn deeply all dead birds as quickly as possible.

"Our experience with remedies for turkey diseases teaches us that they just do not work," says Mr. Nute. "We consider a sick turkey the same as a dead turkey. We express our sympathy for the poor bird by cutting its life short and sparing it the agony of forcing medicine down its throat."

WAYS TO CONTROL MILK OFF-FLAVOR

Most feed and weed flavors pass into the milk within 30 minutes after the feed is consumed and remain for three or four hours. Therefore, points out the Kentucky College of Agriculture, if cows are removed from pasture to dry lot or clean pasture several hours before milking, most off-flavors will be eliminated. Usually four hours is sufficient, except where the animals have eaten onions or bitter weed.

Off-flavors in Kentucky are caused mostly by wild onions, ragweed and bitter weed. Rye, green alfalfa, cowpeas, beet tops, rape, cabbage, turnips, kale and other feeds often affect milk flavor. Full feeding of alfalfa hay colver hay and corn silage sometimes produce a strong feed flavor; musty hay gives a musty flavor, and green barley, wild oats and foxtail may damage the flavor.

GRAVES HOMEMAKERS ESTABLISH LIBRARY

When Graves county homemakers became aroused over poor library facilities, they did something about it, reports Florence C. Bennett, county home demonstration agent. After holding an egg sale, they bought book shelves and installed them in the agent's office. That was a year ago, and 'every month since then various homemakers' clubs have contributed one book a month. A fairly adequate library is now available on travel, hobbies, history, religion and art.

also, to stimulate the production and sale of all that is useful and of high quality.

The time is short. The time of the Exposition is near. Kentucky must make a good showing and a record, but the thing of primary importance is that each citizen who has anything to offer have a chance to compete and also to advertise what he wishes to make and sell.

Go to-day and tell your friend and neighbor about this opportunity. Are you a minister of the Gospel, and have you not seen some hand-made object in a home, one that you thought worthy to win a prize? Then will you not let the owner know of the place and time where this article can be shown? Are you a teacher and have you observed some piece of hand-craft in the home of some pupil that you can now help to bring out of obscurity and get it on exhibition? Are you a good neighbor who would like to see your neighbor's fine quilt or basket or other article win a prize and command ready sale? Are you a citizen, and would you like to see Kentucky's hand-made products bring in a large amount of money, adding to the wealth of the State? Are you a KENTUCKIAN, and do you have pride in your State, in its showing off its home industries to advantage? Whoever and wherever you are, you can help to bring forth what the people in their an increase in their wealth and home that, if shown, might mean happiness.

MANY HOMES WITHOUT BIBLES

Numerous fresh efforts to spread the Scriptures among the people of the United States were reported. In a city in upstate New York a veteran colporteur visited 8,062 families or individuals, finding about one-fifth without Bibles. In many centers the 400th anniversary commeration stirred pastors and ministerial associations to survey the needs of their communities. One minister canvassed every home in a large parish and finding one-tenth of them with the Scriptures supplied them.

Roscoe Akin, Russell Loomis and Mosey Scothorn were in Williamstown a short time Sunday morning.

WORKING AND GARDEN

Too many gardeners work their gardehs to death. In times past, it was the idea that unless the soil was thoroughly stirred, and deeply enough to bring up hondfuls of rootlets, the ob was incomplete. First, it was assumed that air must be provided the roots; within limits, this is true, but not to the extent that air-breathing animals need to be supplied. Also, it was considered proper to prune the root system of a plant, which, in recovering, and replacing the removed root area, developed fortitude and resistance to weather difficulties that might come.

Later knowledge has changed all this. It developed from experiments that although soil air is quite essential to a plant's well-being, any soil that is kept in good tilth supplies it. As to the root prunning, it was observed always, that, unless weather conditions were ideal actual harm followed the removal of any roots, no matter how few. Also, that even though no apparent harm was done, at least the plant was checked definitely, and that it developed no resistance to unfriendly conditions later, because of having received rigorous treatment, as root pruning is.

Rather than working a garden, it should be cultivated. The soil should be stirred enough to kill weeds, and these still small, but stirred no more deeply than to do just that. The vegetable roots should never on any account be cut, not even disturbed, because the plant strives to observe a nice balance between root and top.

The surface of the garden should be kept level. When hills or ridges are drawn to the vegetables, soil must be taken from the middles. In so doing, the surface of the garden is lowered and with it the level of soil moisture on which plants draw. If much soil is borrowed to make high ridges or high hills as some gardeners use, it is quite conceivable, and actually so, that the water table may fall below reach of the roots. With the deeper-rooted vegetables, this may not be as serious as with others whose root systems tend to lie shallow, but usable moisture is always reduced. On the whole, the roots of the vegetables seek their accustomed level, and hold it.

Again, the ridges and hills are covered with moist soil, whereas their interiors consist of dry surface soil. Moisture that the soil would have held, left where it was. is lost when hilling or ridging is done. Also, the hills and ridges present more area from which evaporation takes place than if the surface were left level. Briefly, hills and ridges cause loss of smoist ture always, the crop suffering accordingly. Thus, the second specification for good cultivating is developed; leave the garden surface always level.

If shallow, level cultivation did not have the advantages enumerated above, this formidable one remains, "cultivation" takes less labor than "working." This is a point well worth keeping in mind, for any vegetable garden becomes more valuable by reason of having its overhead, the cost of production of the vegetables, reduced.

How to do the proper kind of cultivating remains to be discussed. The best experimental results followed where just the surface quarter inch of the soil was stirred; mere "shaving" was best. For this, an excellent tool is a hand hoe, its edge kept sharp, and its handle so inclined that, with the operator standing almost upright, the hoe blade lies flat on the soil. Better, is a wheelhoe or "garden plow" fitted, not with teeth, but with scuffle hoes or "beet knives" as the professionals call them. In fact, for ease and speed, no garden-investment can return as attractive dividends as such a wheel-hoe, and every gardener should strive to include it among his tools.

NORTHERN KENTUCKY PRODUCTION CREDIT ASSOCIATION

Williamstown, Kentucky

April business of the Northern Kentucky Production Association broke all records for volume of credit extended to farmers, exceeding that of any month since the organization was formed, according to statement of A. T. Mills, Secretary-Trasurer, who reports loans for $24,507.64 closed during the month and a number of applications on hand at the close of April which will appear in the May statement of business. "During January, February, March and April of this year," states Mr. Mills, "140 loans were closed by our association for $67,514.85, as compared with 64 loans for $17,557.00 closed during the first 4 months of 1935. Loans of the 44 Production Credit Associations of the Fourth Farm Credit Administration District for March alone this year reached $1,977,000.00 as compared with $1,$57,000.00 for the entire first quarter of last year."

The report shows that from the date of the first loan made in April, 1934 to April 30 of the current year the Northern Kentucky Production Credit Association has extended credit totalling $146,411,-00 in 448 loans to farmers in the 8 counties it serves.

"Our numbers already own $5,-400.00 capital stock of the organization," stated Mr. Mills. "The flexible system of fixing maturity dates of loans to coincide with the marketing practice of the individual member and the budgeted loan plan by which a member's money requirements for the entire season are arranged for in one loan but with periodical advances of funds are two features of production credit which appeal strongly to our members."

OFFICERS NAMED TO LAW JOURNAL STAFF; OFFICIAL PUBLICATION OF STATE BAR

John I. Davis, Paris, second year law student at the University of Kentucky; Bert Combs, Manchester; Emerson Salisbury, Charleston, W. Va., and Charles Tirnor, Hindman, have been named student of editor, managing editor, business manager and circulation manager respectively, of the Kentucky Law Journal, official publication of the State Bar Association. The faculty editor is Roy Moreland. professor of Law at the University of Kentucky, with other members of the University law faculty as ex officio members of the board. Other University student members of the staff for the year 1936-'37 are: Joseph Freeland, Paducah; Sam Milner, Paris and Dorothy Salmon, Paducah.

There are twice as many widows as widowers, according to statistics compiled by a large life insurance company. This is not due so much to the longer life of women, but is accounted for by the fact that most men marry women considerably younger than themselves. Old and middle-aged men, especially, have this peculiar habit—strange as it may seem.

There were no church services at the local churches Sunday morning due to the funeral services of C. N. York, which were held at that time.

Motor Travel On Increase in Kentucky

Motor travel in this state this year is expected to reach a new high, with almost 3,000,000 motor vehicles registered in nine Southern States together with an expected influx of visiting tourists, according to William E. Smith, (inset) president of the Standard Oil Company of Kentucky. The above map shows the main highway routes which link the Southern States, together with the number of vehicles registered in each state.

AUTOMOBILE registration figures and demand for touring information indicate that there will be more motor car travel throughout the South during this touring season than ever before in history.

New car registrations in nine Southern States reached the 70,000 mark during the first three months of 1936, a record well ahead of any other recent year, according to W. E. Smith, president of the Standard Oil Company of Kentucky. In the state of Georgia alone, more than 4,000 cars were registered during the month of March.

"It has long been the policy of our company to keep closely informed on the prospects for motor travel as a basis for adjusting our merchandising plans," Mr. Smith pointed out. "Proof that travel is growing in the South is easily found in the sales records of gasoline and lubricating oils. For example," said Mr. Smith, "the demand for one widely-advertised and favorably-known line of lubricants—Mobiloil—has shown a sharp upward trend in the early months of this year, surpassing all previous records."

Tourists are becoming more aware of the scenic beauty and interest of this section and are planning to come here to spend their vacations, it was pointed out by Mr. Smith. The general improvement in business conditions, it is believed, will make it possible for motorists to afford longer and more extensive vacation trips.

100 AT SHORT COURSE FOR COUNTRY PASTORS

More than 100 rural leaders attended one or more sessions of the recent annual short course for town and country pastors at the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture, and about a fourth of this number attended throughout the six days.

Series of lectures were given by Dr. G. S. Dobbins of the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, of Louisville, and Dr. E. C. Cameron, Butler University, Indianapolis. Prof. D. C. Troxel of Transylvania College directed the music and worship services, assisted by graduate divinity students.

Subjects dealing with vital aspects of farm life and the rural community were handled by members of the faculty of the College of Agriculture and Agricultural Experiment Station.

ALERT INDEPENDENTS SUCCEED

Independent retailers in Boone County, like those lsewhere in the United States, have been, to some extent, worried by the amazing progress of the chain store system.

In many secetions of the country the fight against chain store methods has savored of the boycott, and, at times, descends to senseless antagonism. We have said before, and we repeat, that no independent, who is on his toes, progressive, alert and business-like need fear that a chain store will take his business. He has advantages that the chain cannot equal.

It is different with the stores operated by incompetents, who have lagged behind the modern tencencies of merchandising.

The chain stores are not run by superman, but you can bet that incompetents are not directing their policies or doing their thinking. They will, very probably put out of business the merchant who has failed to learn his business, who refuses to cooperate with others in his line, and the man who thinks that the public owes him business whether he is efficient or not. . .

Fortunately, there are not many incompetent business men in this county. The independents in this section are usually operated by level-headed business men, who will be able to organize themselves effectively and secure for themselves all the advantages that can be secured by the chain.

ELECTRIC RATES

It is remarkable how an insignificant matter may be magnified in our minds by ballyhoo and demagogery. A case in point is seen in the agitation concerning electric rates, which has been carried on by certain radical politicians in recent years.

In spite of the fact that electric rates have been steadily lowered ever since the inception of the power industry, due to improved methods of generation and greater consumption, the clamor against the industry has grown in intensity.

Yet the average bill for household electricity is less per day than the price of one package of cigarettes, and in most cases is less than the tax alone on a gallon of gasoline.

And speaking of taxes, the average family's tax bill is about $490 a year, while its electric bill is only $33.72. If the family tax bill could be reduced only 10 per cent the saving would pay the entire electric bill and leave about $15 for other purposes.

The politicians who agitate so wildly against electric rates are in most cases the very ones who are responsible for piing up the ever increasing tax burden.

And it must also be borne in mind that out of every dollar the consumer pays for electricity the company which serves him must pay from 12 to 15 cents in taxes of various kinds. But the radical politician never mentions that.

APPENDICITIS AND AGE

The age at which most people develop appendicitis is in their twenties, with a preponderance of cases occurring about the age of 25, according to Dr. Roland M. Harper, who has studied 367 cases treated in a hospital with which he has been in close touch.

While the ages of patients ranged from 6 to 65 years, the average was 25, for either males or females in city or country.

Dr. Harper points out that this finding closely agrees with the statistics of hospitals in various parts of the country, and may be taken as a fair average for the entire population.

Appendicitis, he says, is evidently a disease which generally attacks persons in the prime of life, like tuberculosis and typhoid fever. Except in a relatively small percentage of cases, it rarely attacks the very young or those past middle age.

Those over 50 years of age are rarely troubled with appendicitis, but, as there are exceptions, everyone should be alert to detect symptoms of the disease and obtain treatment promptly.

IT JUST DOESN'T WORK

All want higher standards of living. All want larger salaries and wages. That desire has been reflected in laws and regulations designed to achieve that happy end.

Unfortunately, oasic facts are often forgotten. On the theory that higher prices would result in higher wages, we have been given laws restricting the production of necessities. We have voted laws restricting or penalizing methods of distributing necessitities that lower prices through efficiency, faster turnover, and smaller profits, in an effort to encourage less efficient business.

But the only income that counts to an individual is "real income"—income measured in the light of purchasing power. A dollar is nothing but a measure of value. Two dollars that will buy twenty lbs., of sugar are not as valuable as one dollar which will buy twenty-five.

This is not an argument for forcing prices down to profitless levels. It is an argument against laws or practices which force prices, directly or indirectly, to artificial levels, to the detriment of the public. It is an established fact that purchasing power always lags far behind law-made boosts in price structures. I f it is made illegal to distribute and sell products in the most economic manner, the 125 million American consumers are going to suffer.

Supply and demand is still the economic law. It cannot be circumvented without courting disaster. Legislation and special class taxation to penalize one group to aid another—legislation that would promote scarcity of necessities—legislation that forgets the consummer, robs every family in the nation by increasing household bills.

Bonus Procedure Explained For Benefit Of Veterans Who Will Make Application Soon

Here is the procedure to be followed next month in the payment of the bonus:

A veteran applies for payment to the nearest office of the veterans' Administration. This office certifies the application to the Treasury Department. The Treasury makes out an order for the proper number of $50.00 bonds, plus a check to cover any odd amount. These are sent to the Federal Reserve Bank in the Veteran's district.

TO START JUNE 15

The Federal Reserve Bank makes up a bundle for each veteran, containing as many $50.00 bonus "baby bonds" as the veteran is owed, plus the check to cover the odd amount.

On June 15th these packages will start to move to veterans through the registered letter service of the Postoffice Department. Postmasters have been instructed to deliver these packages only to the veterans named on the package, even though the package may be addressed in "care of" another person, form, hotel or company.

As soon as a veteran receives his bonds, he may take them to his local postoffice and apply for cash payment. The payments will be made by 236 first-class postmasters.

KELVINATOR'S Visible Values

are your assurance of

LIFELONG KITCHEN HAPPINESS

IT isn't necessary to say much to people who come in to make an actual inspection of the new 1936 Kelvinators. It represents values they can see for themselves.

In Kelvinator, there's no doubt about food compartment temperatures. A Built-in Thermometer shows exactly how cold it is at all times.

In Kelvinator, there's no question about economy of operation. Kelvinator provides a written Certificate of Low Cost of Operation that tells in advance current consumption will be low.

In Kelvinator, dependable performance is assured. The manufacturer backs each Kelvinator with a Five Year Protection Plan.

But that's not all! Kelvinator offers interior lighting, automatic defroster, rubber grids in all ice trays, vegetable crisper and all of the other conveniences that mark the modern refrigerator.

When you see the new Kelvinator, you'll see your next refrigerator.

ILLNESS FATAL TO JOHN H. FEELEY

AT HIS HOME NEAR BURLINGTON AFTER ENDURING A SEVERE ILLNESS FOR THE PAST SEVERAL MONTHS

Mr. John H. Feeley, born June 20, 1876, departed this life May 21, 1936, age 59 years, 11 months and 29 days. He was the son of John and Mary Feeley and was born in Petersburg, Ky. He was a farmer by trade and has spent his entire life in Boone County.

In 1902 he was united in marriage to Miss Sophia Elizabeth Ackemyer, there beng no children born to this union. He was united in full fellowship with the Burlington Baptist church several years ago and has remained a member in good standing until his death. He was also a member of the Modern Woodmen of America.

He leaves his wife, Mrs. Sophia Feeley, two brothers, Joe and Jas. Feeley and two sisters Mrs. Annie Cline of Cincinnati, and Mrs. Loula Ackemyer of Indiana. We do indeed regret the parting of a citizen like this man. as he was always a honest, upright and loyal citizen. He has parted from our midst now, and we dare not dispute the decision of our supreme judge, but we extend our deepest sympathy to the entire family.

Mr. Feeley has been ill for the past several months and has been confined to his bed almost all the time. He was a victim of a cancer in the upper part of the mouth, which only required ume to bring on his death.

Funeral services were conducted at their home, Saturday at 2:00 P. M., by Rev. James, interment following at the Petersburg cemetery. The pall-bearers were John Ackemyer, Wm. Ackemyer, Louis Ackemyer, Arthur Ackemyer Jake Metzger and Clarence Cline.

Chamber & Grubbs, of Walton, had charge of the funeral arrangements.

BUILDING HOUSING WCKY STUDIOS SOLD

The sale of the four-story brick building at the southwest corner of Sixth street and Madison avenue, Covington was recordeo.

The purchase was made by the Queen City Holding Co., through the Covington office, of Robert A. Cline Inc., for $65,000.

The building was formerly owned by the Peoples Liberty Bank, Covington. The fourth floor houses the studios of WCKY.

As far as is known, the radio station will remain in its present quarters, L. B. Wilson, head of the station, said.

CONSTABLES

ARE TO CONTINUE ARRESTS WITHOUT WARRRANTS DESPITE RULING OF VINCENT, MAGISTRATE SAYS

Maysville, Ky., May 22—(AP)—Signs of rebellion among Magistrates against a ruling from the office of Attorney-General B. M. Vincent, developed with the announcement by William Marsh, a Magistrate here, that his Constables would "continue to make arrests without warrant for offenses committed in their presence."

The ruling yesterday cited that neither the state constitution nor statues provide specific authority for Constables to make such arrests and asserted warrants were necessary, even in the instance of offenses committed in the presence of the officer.

Marsh quoted sections of law which, he said, were not covered by the Frankfort opinion.

Marsh made his announcement after a conference he said, with his constabulary staff and city officials. He did not specify names of the latter.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Meyer gave a surprise party Tuesday nite for Mr. and Mrs. Robert Clore in honor of Mrs. Clore's birthday. The guest were Mr. and Mrs. Wendell Easton and Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Huey.

DEMOCRATS, don't forget the dance at Stevie's Clubhouse Friday night. You can get your tickets at Rouse's store for $1.00 per couple.

Mr. John Walton has been very ill for the past few days.

TO THE DEMOCRATIC VOTERS OF BOONE COUNTY:

Pursuant to the action of the Democratic State Central Executive Committee for the Commonwealth of Kentucky at a meeting held at Frankfort, Kentucky, on May 14, 1936, the Democrats of Boone County are hereby notified that a county convention is called to meet at the Court House in Burlington, Ky., on Saturday June 6th at 2 P. M., Central Standard time to select 18 delegates to attend the State Convention at Louisville, Ky., on June 9th, 1936.

NEWTON SULLIVAN, Chm.

MISSIONARY UNION TO MEET TUESDAY

The Associational Institute of North Bend Woman's Missionary Union will be held at Florence Baptist church Tuesday June 2nd, at 10:30 a. m., Eastern Time. Mrs. R. F. DeMoisey, Supt., will be in charge. The Book, "Taking Christ Seriously," will be studied.

Members are requested to bring a covered dish to be used for the luncheon.

LAKE VIEW FARM AT AUCTION

SALE TO BE HANDLED BY R. G. KINMAN AUCTION COMPANY

The 188½ acre farm of W. S. Norris, of the Union Stock Yards, Cincinnati, better known throughout Boone County as Lake View Farm, which is located one-half mile north of Hebron on the North Bend Road will be sold Thursday, June 4th, by the R. G. Kinman Auction Co., of Erlanger.

This is one of the most up-to-date farms in northern Boone-co., and stragetically located, being only nine miles from Covington, in sight of Hebron High School and on milk route. The land lies level and eighty per cent of the farm can be plowed with tractor.

This is one of a number of Boone county farms which have been put in the hands of the Kinman Auction Company.

WORLD'S RECORD TO KENTUCKY FOR LARGE HERDS OF JERSEYS

For the second consecutive year a Kentucky farmer has set the world's production for large Jersey herds, according to the State College of Agriculture at Lexington.

P. B. Gaines' herd at Carrollton last year finished a test with an average of 8,007 pounds of milk and 423 pounds of butter fat. This production was acclaimed throughout the country as the highest average ever attained by a Jersey herd of this size, 60 cows.

Another year's test, completed this spring, resulted in an average of 8,876 pounds of milk and 565 pounds of butter fat, thus not only surpassing its previous record but establishing another world's record for large Jersey herds.

Two cows in the herd produced over 600 pounds of fat; 18 produced 500 to 600 pounds, and 16 produced between 400 and 500 pounds. Of the entire group of cows in the herd for the full 12 months only six produced less than 400 pounds.

The best cow produced 645 pounds of butter fat in 362 days, at an age of 6 years and 9 months. Another cow, 11 years old, produced 627 pounds of fat in 324 days.

Glorious and Glamorous

"A glorious cause is that of the so-called 'Liberty League' and its allied puppets! Tender hearted munition manufacturers, so solicitious of the Constitution's integrity and the American citizen's freedom that they are spending half a million dollars a year in only one of their set-ups to break down democratic government and defeat the foremost libral statesman of our time! For makers of cannon-meat, their aim is ridiculously low. The more lavishly they spend, the higher Roosevelt rises in the country's genuine esteem. Their chief distinction is in pointing the proverb: "A fool and his money."—Atlanta Journal, (Dem.)

DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION

WILL BE HELD AT LOUISVILLE JUNE 9—SIXTH DISTRICT TO HAVE LARGEST REPRESENTATION

Frankfort, Ky., 27.—The State Democratic Convention, which is to meet in Louisville, June 9, will be composed of 2,908 delegates.

Delegates are apportioned to each county on the basis of the vote which was cast for President Roosevelt in 1932. The Democratic State Central Executive Committee has specified that the basis of represent-200 votes, or major fraction thereof, polled for the Democratic candidate four years ago.

The Sixth Congressional district, with 407 delegates, will have the largest number of votes in the convention. The Second district with 403 votes. The delegates strength of the other congressional districts are as follows:

First 322; Third 362; Fourth 329; Fifth 295; Seventh 220; Eighth 342; Ninth 228. A total of 1,455 votes constitutes a majority of delegates. Boone county will have 18 delegates.

CHARLES LOWEN

Charles Lowen, aged 83 years, passed away Tuesday morning at Lakeland, Ky., after a short illness. The remains were removed to the Taliaferro Funeral Home in Erlanger for preparation.

He was the uncle of the late Rev. Geo. C. Bealer, former pastor of St. Henry's church and made his home at the church parsonage for a number of years.

The pall bearers were Andy Schaeffer, Chas. Geiger, Wm. Bentler, G. A. Gripshover, William and Fen Herman.

Funeral was from the Taliaferro Funeral Home Friday at 8:30 A. M., with requiem high mass at St. Henry's church at 9 A. M. Interment following in New St. Joseph Cemetery, Cincinnati, Ohio.

POPULAR YOUNG MAN MARRIES COVINGTON GIRL

The marriage of Mr. Boyd Snow, popular young man of this community, to Miss Margaret Miller, Covington, was announced recently by the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alva Snow. The young couple were married in Covington Saturday, May 16, by Rev. Mrs. Traylor, of that city. At present they are stying with Mr. Snow's prents but plan to make their permanent home in Covington.

Mr. and Mrs. Carrol Cropper gave a tneatre party in honor of their daughter, Carolyn's birthday, Tuesday afternoon. The guests were Louise Rice, Elizabeth James and Jeraldine Yelton.

BELLEVIEW WINS THIRD STRAIGHT

CLIFFORD STEPHENS LETS NEW RICHMOND DOWN WITH FIVE SCATTERED HITS—HENSLEY IS BATTING STAR WITH TWO DOUBLES AND TWO SINGLES

Belleview hung up their third consecutive victory in the Lowe-Campbell baseball league Sunday afternoon when they thoroughly trounced the strong New Richmond team to the tune of 9 to 5. Paced by the superb pitching of Cliff Stephens, who allowed the Ohio team only 5 scattered hits, and Hensley, who cracked four for four, including two timely doubles, the Belleview team had little trouble leading throughout. Besides being poison to opposing pitching Hensley made three beautiful running catches of hard hit balls in left field. A. Ginn, New Richmond's right fielder, was the only man to get two hits off of Stephens delivery. He tripled and singled.

Summary:

	R	H	E
New Richmond	9	10	1
Belleview	5	5	1

Errors—H. Rogers, Tremper; Two Base Hits—Hensley 2, Davis. Three Base Hits, Hitzfield, Ginn; Struck out by Light 3; by Stephens 3; Bases on Balls—Light 2; Stephens 3; Umpires—Rogers and Barton.

VETERINARIAN RECOMMENDS STUDY

Dr. T. P. Polk recommended to Boone County Utopia Club members that they make an intelligent study of Animal and Poultry diseases to profitably combat future production problems. Twenty-five members attended the regular monthly meeting held at Burlington Court House, Thursday evening. Dr. Polk, field Veterinarian from the College, outlined the general procedure for identifying and controlling three major classes of livestock diseases. He advised members to guard against many of the superstitous remedies of the past and to first seek accurate information based on scientific or proven facts.

The next meeting of the club will be held at the nome of Wilton Stephens on June 25th.

It has been reported from several sources that Mr. Ben Berkshire of Petersburg was the victim of another paralytic stroke. These reports, however, are not true, as information from a reliable source today revealed that Mr. Berkshire has had a recent illness, but at the present time is improving and expected to be out within a few days.

Model Electric Kitchen To Be On Display Here

Home-makers of Boone county will have a chance to see the kitchen of their dreams, Monday, June 1st, when the Community Public Service Company displays its mammoth electric kitchen coach at Burlington. Built like a Colonial cottage, with green shutters and gay curtained windows, the coach contains an ultra-modern kitchen, scientifically designed to save work and at the same time provide an atmosphere of beauty and sparkling cleanliness. Not an inch of space is wasted. Built-in steel cabinets, with stainless steel work tops connect the electric range and refrigerator on one side of the kitchen. A large Monel metal sink, with roomy drainboard and built-in dishwasher, occupies the other side. Overhead cabinets provide a place for canned goods and breakfast food. Even the doorways contain built-in compartments with space for storing mops, brooms and various other kitchen articles.

Everything is arranged for convenience and speed in the preparation of food. The sink is but a step from either the range or the refrigerator. Plenty of table space is provided on both sides of the range. There are drawers for utensils in the range, as well as in the cupboards that flank it. Dirty dishes go right into the dishwater, where they are cleaned by sprays of hot water. A ventilating fan over the range carries away food odor. Walls are washable and all cabinet work is finished in enamel, making it as easy to clean as a china dish. The Monel metal drain and cabinet tops are stainless and rustproof.

The coach is equipped with a deluxe lectric range that does everything but prepare the ingredients for the various dishes. It is equipped with a control device that turns the oven on at a predetermined hour, cooks the food and then turns the oven off, all without attention on the part of the housewife. A Kelvinaor refrigerator, electric food mixer, waffle iron, toaster, coffee-maker and cooker complete the cooking equipment. All electrical appliances will be connected and in operation.

The kitchen coach is being brought to Burlington by Community Public Service Company in order to give local home-makers a chance to see a reproduction of a modern all-electric kitchen of the type that is advocated by leading home economists, architects and industrial designers. It will serve as a guide to those who are contemplating the modernizing of their present kitchens or planning to build new homes.

This mammoth house on wheels contains a modern all-electric "dream kitchen" embodying the latest ideas of outstanding designers in the home building field. It will be placed on exhibition at 9 A. M., Monday, June 1st by Community Public Service Company.

KING—EGGLESTON

Miss Mary Francis King, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gus King, of near Burlington, and Mr. Harmon Eggleston, of Sand Run, were quietly united in marriage Friday, May 22nd. The marriage took place at the home of Rev. Estep in Latonia.

After the marriage ceremony they drove to the home of friends in Indiana where they will stay for a few days. It is understood that they will make their home in Rising Sun, Indiana.

Mr. Eggleston is one of Boone County's promising young ministers, now pastor of a Baptist church in Indiana. The editors join their many friends in wishing them a happy and successful married life.

PROMINENT LADY PASSES AWAY

MRS. R. T. STEPHENS SUCCUMBS FRAM ATTACT OF CEREBRAL HEMMORHAGE — FUNERAL ARRANGEMENTS NOT KNOWN

Wednesday Morning—The news of the death of Mrs. Lizzie Stephens, wife of Richard T. Stephens long known and respected figure of Rabbit Hash. According to reports, Mrs. Stephens was taken ill about nine o'clock Monday morning and was claimed by death from a cerebral hemorhage at two o'clock in the afternoon of the same day. Mrs. Stephens' maiden name was Presser. She is survived by a host of friends and relatives throughout the entire county.

As we go to press we have not learned the particulars of the funeral arrangements.

LAST REPORT FROM THE SICK AND DISABLED

..Supt. D. N. Norris, Burlington, who until recently has been unable to attend to his duties due to general ill health, has returned to his office greatly improved.

Mrs. Edna Eddins, Burlington, who has been confined to bed for the past several weeks with heart disease, is somewhat better according to reports, Wednesday morning.

There is little change in the condition of Mr. Joe Huey, Burlington, who was taken ill last week with kidney ailment.

Mrs. Geneva Souther, of Point Pleasant, has been ill several days the past week.

Mr. Floran Holton, Petersburg, is able to be out again after a short illness.

Miss Willis Rogers was confined to her room several days last week.

Irene White, young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. White of the Gasburg neighborhood, had the misfortune of injuring her eye one day last week. Particulars not known.

Stanley Smith, Petersburg, injured his arm while working on the Aurora Ferry, Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. W. B. Rogers, Grant, who has been permanently disabled for the past several months from the effects of a fall she received which injured her ankle, is somewhat improving, however, the seriousness of injury still forces the use of crutches.

Judge J. M. Lassing, Burlington, who has been confined to bed since mid-winter, is slowly improving at his home.

SEVEN MILLION TREES PLANTED IN KENTUCKY

Approximately seven million trees have been set in Kentucky, the Soil Conservation Service announces. This number includes 3,899,611 set in the vicinity of Madisonville, 2,616,447 around Paducah and 692,082 near Falmouth. Spring planting work in Kentucky will close when the remaining 1,296,557 trees are planted at Madisonville. Approximately a third of a million seed plots have been made, a quarter of a million being at Madisonville.

Carrroll Rice is quite ill with the measles. He has been confined to his home for several days.

750 FARMERS SIGN A. C. P.

SIGN UP HAS EXCELLED ALL EXPECTATIONS — CAMPAIGN TO CLOSE SATURDAY

Seven hundred and fifty Boone county farmers to date nave signed work sheets for cooperation in the Agricultural Conservation Program according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent; three hundred and ten farmers signed work sheets the past week. The number is expected to exceed the goal of eight hundred (800) set for Saturday night.

The signing to date has exceeded all expectations. While farmers have been exceptionally busy the past three weeks they have shown a splendid spirit of cooperation and interest in improving both their own and their fellow farmers position in Agricultural improvement.

The Campaign sign-up closes Saturday, all farmers who have not signed up are urged to do so by that time. The permanent County A. C. P. Association will set up soon after this date.

The benefit payments to Boone county farmers under the A. C. P. should equal or exceed those under the old A A A Program. The benefit will be derived in general Agricultural improvement through an organized cooperative farm program.

"GREEN ACRES"

The Tri-County Realty Co., of Covington have just completed a deal between J. B. Respess and L. M. Spalding, whereby the latter purchased 200 acres of the J. B. Respess race horse farm. This is one of the finest farms in Northern Kentucky, located on the Dixie Highway just a few miles from Florence.

Mr. Spalding of Cincinnati, has given the 200 acre track of land the name of "GREEN ACRES," and expects to make this one of the show places in Northern Kentucky. Many improvements will be made in the near future as plans are now underway for a complete change in what is already known as Kentucky's outstanding farm. Upon completion, this will be another boost to Boone county, which now ranks among the richest and most progressive counties in the State of Kentucky.

While it has not been disclosed just what the purchase price was, yet it is understood that the price per acre was well above the one hundred dollar mark. Mr. T. W. Jones of the Tri-County Realty Co., Covington made the deal.

BIG DANCE

TO BE GIVEN BY YOUNG MEN'S DEMOCRATIC CLUB OF BOONE COUNTY AT STEVIE'S CLUBHOUSE FRIDAY NIGHT

Friday night, May 29th is the date for the second big dance to be given by Boone County Democrats at the same place, just opposite the end of the car line in Fort Mitchell. According to reports from members of the ticket committee they are expecting even a larger crowd at this affair than attended the one given several weeks ago.

Justin Huber's ten piece orchestra and an eight act floor show, and plenty of dancing for everyone will be the feature events of the evening.

Everyone is invited to attend this dance and you may secure tickets now from any of the members of this club for $1.00 per couple. Tickets will also be on sale at the door on Friday night, so if you do not have your ticket do not let this keep you away, but bring your friends and get tickets at the door.

PROPER FOOD CURES DISEASE

What you eat and the quantity thereof probably measures the length of your life.

The importance of diet in the well-being of individuals has been increasingly recognized in recent decades although one easily wonders why, for so many years, no one seems to have undertaken a real study of the fuel content of the human body.

There are wise people who believe that, given a proper diet, the individual would avoid disease. Of course, proper diet, spread over several generations would be necessary because of physical weaknesses that are transmitted.

Doctors have learned that lack of certain substances in food are responsible for some of our ills and now comes the word from the Mayo clinic that Addison's disease, once fatal, can be successfully treated by diet alone. The same discovery may be made about other scourges that inflict suffering and death upon human beings.

MARRIED PEOPLE LIVE LONGER

There may be readers of The Boone County Recorder who would be interested in the following statistics, taken from a report of a large life insurance company:

Among males, the standardized death rate for bachelors is 1,218.2 per 100,000 as compared with 855.9 for married men.

Among females, the standardized death rate of spinisters is 1,039.1 as against 658.6 for married women of all ages.

These figures are taken from Canada and similar statistics for the United States are not available but the findings are considered applicable to this country. The belief that physically defective individuals tend not to marry is true in part but does not explain the disrepancy shown.

Generally, it is pointed out that a married person's life is better regulated in regard to sleeping, eating, and recreation. Moreover, men with dependents, probably take more thought to their welfare and avoid some hazards. In addition, the average married person benefits from the solicitious care of his or her mate, which protects health in general.

THE LAST SUPPER

LESSON TEXT—Luke 22:7-23.

GOLDEN TEXT—This do in remembrance of me.—Luke 22:19.

PRIMARY TOPIC—The Supper Jesus Gave His Friends.

JUNIOR TOPIC—The Lord's Supper.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What the Lord's Supper Means to Me.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—What the Lord's Supper Meant to Jesus.

The last meal that Jesus ate with his disciples was the Passover, the memorial of the national deliverance which pointed to the supreme deliverance to be effected by Christ on the cross of Calvary. In connection with this Passover, the feast of the new covenant was instituted. This feast also has a double import. It looks backward to the great deliverance wrought through Christ's atoning death, and forward to the even greater deliverance which He shall accomplish at his second coming (I Cor. 11:26).

I. The Last Passover (vv. 7-18).

1. The Passover prepared (vv. 7-13).

a. As the time had arrived for the killing of the Passover, Jesus directed Peter and John to make ready for it (v. 8).

b. The disciples inquired (v. 9) where they should prepare the Passover. Doubtless, they were eager to be of service to their Master and Lord.

c. Jesus gave strange directions (vv. 10-12), that they should go into the city, where they would find a man bearing a pitcher of water. The custom was for women to carry the water. This unusual occurrence would make it the easier for them to recognize the man of whom they would ask, "Where is the guest chamber where I shall eat the Passover with my disciples?"

d. The disciples gave unquestioning obedience (v. 13), not permitting the unusual instructions to raise the question of sanity or reasonableness. Jesus, because he was omniscient, knew just how the matter would turn out, and the disciples found it even so.

2. The Passover eaten (vv. 14-18).

a. The historic group around that table (v. 14) was composed of Jesus and the Twelve, the apostles.

b. Jesus' words to the disciples (vv. 15-18).

(1) "I have desired to eat this Passover with you before I suffer" (v. 15). He desired to show them the meaning of the passion through which he was to go. He also craved their human sympathy as he passed through this terrible ordeal.

(2) "I will not any more eat thereof until it be fulfilled in the kingdom of God" (v. 16). His death was the antitypical fulfillment of the Passover meal. He declared that this would be the last time that they could share together this sacred ordinance before the completion of his mediatorial work.

(3) "Take this cup and divide it among ourselves" (vv. 17, 18). By the token of the cup the disciples were partaking of the shed blood. This cup should be distinguished from the cup of the feast of the new covenant.

II. The Feast of the New Covenant (vv. 19, 20).

This feast took place at the close of the pascal supper.

1. The bread a symbol of Christ's body (v. 19). As bread nourishes and strengthens our bodies, so Christ is food to our spiritual nature. Unless the body receives nourishment, it decays. Unless our souls feed upon Christ, we shall perish. Christ's giving the physical bread to his disciples signified the giving of himself to them.

2. The cup a symbol of Christ's blood (v. 20). He said, "This cup is the new testament in my blood which was shed for you," indicating that each one must personally accept the atonement made by the shedding of his blood.

III. The Treachery of Judas (vv. 21-23).

1. The time of its manifestation (v. 21). It was while they were eating the last Passover that Jesus made announcement of the betrayal. Perhaps Jesus was in this manner offering Judas an opportunity at this last moment to repent.

2. The betrayal was by the determinate counsel of God (v. 22, cf. Acts 2:23). Nothing takes place by chance. Even the sinful acts of wicked men come within the permissive providence of God. This does not, however, lessen the guilt of sinners, for Jesus said, "Woe unto the man by whom he is betrayed."

3. The sorrowful question (v. 23). That the disciples were not suspicious of one another is evident from the personal nature of the question they asked, "Lord, is it I?" (Matt. 26:22). Well may each believer ask if he is in any way betraying his Savior and Lord.

True Happiness

Genuine happiness is the delicate perfume of a holy life. The sanctified soul exhales happiness as the flowers emit sweet odors. Heaven is a tropical garden of conscious spirits and its atmosphere is laden with happiness as the normal product of their purity.—D. C. Knowles.

A Purpose in Life

Have a purpose in life, and having it, throw into your work such strength of mind and muscle as God has given you.

Miss Beulah Threlkeld, of Wheatley, returned to her home recently after enjoying a pleasant visit with Mrs. Mayme Stephens and family.

Mrs. Mack Carr had as week-end guests her sister and family, of Hamilton, Ohio.

Herman Francis of Hazard, who has been visiting his uncle Charles Engle, left Monday for his home accompanied by Murrell Birkle and Gene Jones, who will take a sight-seeing tour through southeastern Kentucky before returning home next week.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Campbell are entertaining relatives of Toledo, Ohio.

Rev. Noble Lucas was the Sunday guest of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Siekman and daughter.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Dinn, of Cincinnati, were the week-end guests of his mother.

Huey and Joe Sams, of Covington, spent Sunday afternoon with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Sams.

Mrs. Mayme Stephens and Mrs. Nora Souther were calling on Mrs. Stevens, of Constance, Saturday afternoon.

Anyone having news for this column please leave at Engle's grocery or Call Burlington 362.

PETERSBURG HOMEMAKERS CLUB

Miss Edna Berkshire was hostess to the club for the May meeting.

In the absence of the President Mrs. J. H. Huey, Miss Edna Berkshire called the meeting to order. The roll call showed twelve members present and four new members which makes twenty-two.

We are very glad that the Fiscal Court has made it possible for us to have the Homemakers clubs in Boone county on a permanent basis and are very glad that Miss Gillaspie will be our agent.

Due to the fact that the reports from the millinary meeting May 25 and the convention at Washington, the first week of June, the meeting will be an all day meeting at the home of Mrs. Mary G. Berkshire the the third Tuesday in June, which is June 18th.

Members are asked to bring sandwiches and salad.

Meeting will begin at 10:30. Everyone come and bring some one.

KENTUCKY DAY AT TEXAS CENTENNIAL

Dallas, Texas, May 29.—Kentuckians, who played a major role in the winning of Texas Independence 100 years ago, will take charge of the $25,000,000 Texas Centennial Exposition on June 30 which has been officially designated as Kentucky Day.

The special program for that date is being arranged by the Centennial Exposition Kentucky Club, of which Mrs. W. G. Maddox, formerly of Covington, Ky., is president. The club numbers some 500 former Kentucklans living now in Dallas. The program will center around the reception and entertainment of Gov. A. B. Chandler, and the memorial services, in which he will participate, for Kentucklans who served in the Texas armies during the revolution against Mexico in 1835-36.

YOUR COMMUNITY PROGRAM BEGINS OVER NEW WSAI

"Your Community," a new civic program devoted to the many communities making up Greater Cincinnati, was inaugurated May 15 over station WSAI by City Manager C. A. Dykstra.

Sponsored by the community newspapers for the suburban districts of Cincinnati, the program will familiarize Cincinnatians with the entire city and its many splendid suburban areas.

On Friday, May 22, Albert H. Huneke, editor of the Western Hills Press, will have charge of the program. He will interview Louis L. Meyer, president of the Westwood Civic Association. The Westwood Conservatory of Music of which Mrs. Katherine Trendler is director, will present Mary Woods, soprano, in the "Bells Song" from Lakme and James Weitzel, tenor, in "If I Should Lose You."

The St. Bernard News will sponsor the "Your Community" program on May 29.

The program is on the air over the new WSAI, operating on 1330 kilocycles, from 8:30 to 9:00 p. m., each Friday.

Red Barber A Busy Man

One of the busiest men at the new WSAI is Red Barber, ace-sports announcer, during the baseball season. Barber is heard every afternoon the Cincinnati Reds play ball, except when they play in Brooklyn and New York. In his own rapid-fire manner Barber describes every play. When the game is over he joins Bob Nolan's "Toy Band" program over WLW at 5:30 p. m., Monday through Friday, to give a short talk on sports. At 6:15 p. m., daily Barber presents his well-known "Baseball Resume." He knows no "days off" and often works in his office in the WSAI studios until late at night, working on sports data to present to the WSAI audience.

Progress that is permanent is rarely made in a big jump; let's take things slowly and make sure that we have what we think we have.

BUY ON PROOF OF PERFORMANCE

for their Safety
THE New Firestone
HIGH SPEED TIRE for 1936

AVOID accidents—take no chances—buy your tires on Proof of Performance. Make sure that you and your family will be safe! Skidding, blowouts and punctures caused more than 37,000 accidents last year. Many of these accidents could have been avoided with safer tires.

The new Firestone High Speed Tire for 1936 is the safest driving equipment you can buy. Here is your proof:

PROOF OF GREATEST NON-SKID SAFETY
A leading university made 2,350 tire tests and found that the new scientifically designed Firestone High Speed tread stops a car up to 25% quicker than other tires.

PROOF OF GREATEST BLOWOUT PROTECTION
Every year, since Firestone developed the Gum-Dipped Balloon tire, Firestone Tires have been on the winning cars in the gruelling blowout test of the Indianapolis 500-Mile Race.

PROOF OF GREATEST ECONOMY
Firestone engineers designed the new Firestone High Speed Tire for 1936 to give you up to 50% longer non-skid mileage. This is proved by our own test fleet records and the fact that the world's largest transportation companies, such as Greyhound, to whom safety and tire economy means business efficiency, use Firestone Tires. This is further proof that they are the safest, most economical tires ever built.

Why risk an accident when it costs so little to protect lives worth so much? Equip your car today with new Firestone High Speed Tires—the Masterpiece of Tire Construction.

ESTABLISHED 1875

VOLUME 61 — BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY THURSDAY, JUNE 4, 1936 — NUMBER 4

GOAL EXCEEDED IN FARM SIGN-UP

TWELVE HUNDRED FARMS ARE LISTED IN AGRICULTURAL PROGRAM. NINETY PER CENT OF FARMRS NOW COVERED.

One thousand and three work sheets covering more than 1200 farms have been signed in the Agricultural Conservation program, according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent. The sign-up progressed more rapidly than anticipated and exceeded the campaign goal by more than 200. Ninety per cent of the farm land has been signed. Work sheets are being signed daily and the sign-up is advancing toward the 100 per cent mark.

The success of the sign-up campaign may be attributed in part to the splendid work of the committees, but in major portion to the strong spirit of Boone County farmers to cooperate in those movements they believe are for the common good.

The farmers who have signed work sheets will organize a County Association to carry out and supervise the program in the county. Both landlords and tenants will have equal rights in the Association. Both Community and County Committees will be selected by those cooperating in the program. The dates of the elections will likely be announced this coming week.

While the campaign sign-up has been completed the County Agent's office will still be open for a limited time to receive late applications. Those who expect to sign-up and have not done so are urged to sign immediately. No farmer will be a member of the County Association or will receive benefits unless he signs his work sheet.

REV. W. M. SMITH CLOSES PASTORATE AT WARSAW

Rev. W. M. Smith, formerly of Boone County, who has been pastor of the Warsaw Baptist Church for almost ten years has just recently closed his work there, and with his family have moved to Burlington to make their home.

It was with much regret both on the part of Rev. Smith and family and also the whole community that they are leaving this field. They have labored faithfully there for many years as only folks of their type could. The church membership being almost doubled and the Sunday School and work in general making much progress.

Rev. Smith and his family have been outstanding citizens in Gallatin County and we are glad to have them return to Burlington and Boone County. We trust that the Lord will still use them in another field in a much greater way.

Word was received here early this week that Mr. and Mrs. Orville Ogden, Norwood, Ohio, formerly of Burlington, are the proud parents of twin girls—Joyce and June.

Everybody is in favor of reducing public jobs except the individuals who have the offices and the jobs.

PAYMENT OF BONUS BONDS

TO BE DISCUSSED BY MEMBER OF CINCINNATI VETERAN BUREAU AT WHITE VILLA CAFE

The Veterans of Foreign War will hold their first meeting at the White Villa Cafe, Boone-Kenton line on route 25, Thursday evening at 8:00 P. M., (fast time). The purpose of this meeting is to organize a post in this vicinity.

Mr. Albert Pleasant, member of the Cincinnati Veteran Bureau will be the speaker of the evening, his subject being "The Procedure in securing Bonus Bonds."

All veterans who anticipate securing Bonus Bonds are requested to be present at this meeting as the entire procedure will be outlined for securing these bonds.

PLEASE BRING YOUR DISCHARGE.

TELEPHONE COMPANY DIRECTORS HOLD MEETING

The Consolidated Telephone Co. held a directors meeting at their office at Florence Thursday of last week.

Several important matters were discussed, the one most important was the rehabilitation project, which involves rebuilding and repairing the entire telephone system in Boone County.

It is hoped that the few remaining arrangements can be completed in the near future so the work can get under way in the next few days and be completed before bad weather this fall. The work will be under supervision of the local manager, E. G. Stephenson and under the very able foremanship of L. G. Wilson.

The Company has just completed building a new line thru Constance which is a wonderful improvement in that community.

Mr. Addison (Pat) Norman, of Union, was mingling with friends in Burlington Tuesday morning. His many friends were glad to see him looking so well.

She leaves only her brother.

FORMER GIRL GRADUATES

WITH HIGH HONORS AT KENTUCKY FEMALE SCHOOL, MIDWAY, KENTUCKY.

Miss Helen C. Berkshire, daughter of Mr. R. E. Berkshire and former student of Burlington High School recently graduated with very high honors at the Kentucky Female School at Midway, Ky.

In the short time that Miss Berkshire has been attending school at Midway, she has gained campus-wide recognition as an outstanding student. During the past school term she has been a very prominent member of the "Campus Chatter" staff, one of the most outstanding school publications of its kind in the United States. She was a member of the Kappa Pi Beta, has taken part in all the closing school activities and was recognized as valedictorian of her class consisting of thirty-three graduates. Helen has also received honorary mention on every scholastic report that has ever been issued by the school. This is a record that has required much effort and her accomplishments deserve our due recognition.

Miss Berkshire has now been appointed secretary under Edgar C. Riley also former citizen of Boone County and who is now taking a very active part in the promotion of this school.

The school buildings at the present time only have a capacity to accomodate approximately 250 students, but plans are well under way for the construction of new buildings that will double this amount, or provide room for 500 girls.

17-YEAR LOCUSTS ARRIVE

True to form and to their name, seventeen-year locusts, known to science as cicades, are putting in their appearance in Harrison county. The insects have done little damage as yet and have not appeared in noticeable numbers.

Presence of the cicades is made known by the shrill rasping note of the male. Their last occurrence here was in 1919. Entomologists explain the periodical appearance is due to the seventeen-year development of the larvae underground.

BROWN IN RACE FOR SENATE

OPENING GUN IN CAMPAIGN WAS FIRED MONDAY IN CENTRAL KENTUCKY

John Young Brown, youthful candidate for the Democratic nomination for senator and former congressman from the central Kentucky district, opened his senatorial campaign Monday in Lexington.

This announcement was made in the form of a letter to all the Young Men's Democratic Clubs in the state of Kentucky.

Mr. Brown will make his first speech at the Woodland Auditorium, Lexington. In making the announcement, however, the officers and presidents of the clubs thruout the state pointed out that although clubs could not take part in the primaries it is the duty of individuals to work for the candidate he or she believes best fitted to oppose the Republican nominee at the regular election.

The announcement:—"Honorable John Young Brown is opening his campaign for the Democratis nomination for U. S. Senator, with a speech at the Woodland Auditorium Lexington, Monday night. June 1 at 7:30 o'clock.

John Young Brown is a native of Lexington and has taken a very active part in the Young Men's Democratic Clubs in Kentucky.

NOTICE OF MEETING

The Sophie Webster Lloyd Memorial Society will hold its regular all day meeting at the Lloyd home on Shelby street on Saturday, June 6th.

This is to be a motner and daughter day in the Society and all daughters are urged to bring their mothers and all mothers to bring their daughters. Visitors are also welcome. Everyone coming for dinner are requested to bring a covered dish. Interesting program is promised for the afternoon.

HEBRON WINS 4-H CONTEST

SEVEN CLUBS REPRESENTED IN CONTEST. EVENT HELD AT BURLINGTON FRIDAY OF LAST WEEK.

The Hebron Norbeh Champion 4-H club demonstration team won first honors in the Annual 4-H Spring Rally and county contests held at Burlington last Friday. Seven clubs, including Burlington, New Haven, Florence, Hebron, Hamilton, Petersburg, and Grant were represented in the event.

The Hebron team composed of Louise Elkins and Anna Mary Grant won first place with demonstration on "Judging of Canned Fruits and Vegetables.' The team was trained by Mrs. Sibbia Reimer, 4-H canning leader of the Hebron Club. The Burlington and Petersburg team also presented splendid demonstrations. The Burlington team was composed of Leora Vice and Mary Snow, and was trained by Mrs. Vernon Pope. The Petersburg team was composed of Helen Ruth Klopp and Wilma Huey and was trained by Miss Mary Rector.

Miss Ella Ruth Black, of the Hamilton Silver Leader 4-H Club received the sewing club girls style show award. She made her work under the leadership of Mrs. J. L. Jones, Jr., and Mrs. Orm Edwards.

Anna Mary Grant, Louise Elkins and Ella Ruth Black winners of the County 4-H contests and Harold Ogden, 1935 4-H tobacco champion will represent Boone County at Junior Week, University of Kentucky, June 8th to 13th.

ANOTHER ADDED TO POPULATION OF HEBRON

Mr. and Mrs. John Crigler, of near Hebron are the proud parents of a brand new baby boy. He weighs 7¾ pounds and at this writing is doing nicely but has not been named as yet.

Mr. Crigler, who is employed under H. R. Forkner, County Agent, has been accused of passing out three boxes of cigars since the arrival of his son, but we are inclined to believe this statement is exaggerated quite a bit.

However, John is a very proud father and he has a right to be.

LOGAN ENTERS SENATE RACE

INCUMBENT FILES FOR RENOMINATION IN DEMOCRATIC PRIMARY

Frankfort, Ky., May 26 (AP)—Marvel Mills Logan, Bowling Green, United States senator for the past six years, today went through the formality of filing his declaration papers with the secretary of state's office as a candidate for renomination and reelection.

The senator is a candidate for renomination in the August last Democratic primary. He has served as judge of the court of appeals, chairman of the state tax commission, attorney general, assistant attorney general and county attorney of Edmonson county, his birthplace.

Senator Logan is a member of the Odd Fellows, of which he has served as Kentucky Grand Master and International Grand Sire; an Elk, Mason and regular attendant at the Baptist church. He is married and has four children, three sons and a daughter.

PLAY PROVES TO BE VERY SUCCESSFUL

The play, "Here Comes Charlie," presented by the Y. W. A. of the Big Bone Baptist Church proved to be very successful. The characters were well placed. "Charlie," created quite a bit of laughter in the audience, especially among the little folks. The music showed talent among the young folks of this organization. The P. T. A. of the New Haven Consolidated School received six dollars from the gate receipts.

We, as a P. T. A. were glad to have these young folks show the talents which they possess.. Come again.

Ora B. Presser, Pub. Chm'n.

Mr. Henry Clore, of Grant, spent several hours in Burlington Monday morning.

GETS STATE APPOINTMENT

Thomas M. Logan, Park Hills attorney and president of the Kentucky Young Men's Democratic Clubs, has been named to a position in the Fire Prevention and Rates Department, a division of the State Insurance Department, Frankfort, it was revealed last week.

Mr. Logan took up his duties about two weeks ago, shortly after his appointment by Governor A. B. Chandler. He will make his headquarters in Frankfort and will work under W. M. Brown, head of the division.

MANY FISHERMEN ON CREEKS OF COUNTY MONDAY

Many fishermen were on the creeks of Boone county Monday trying their skill angling for the finny tribe. Most sportsmen from this section reported Monday night that they made large catches in number, but the size was not to their liking.

According to all reports creeks are very low at this time, barely running over the riffles.

ADVICE ON OLD AGE PENSIONS

INSTRUCTIONS OBTAINED AT FRANKFORT BY PHILLIPS

Having nad several hundred inquiries relative to the recently enacted old age pension law, Richard W. Phillips, Campbell Circuit Court Clerk, went to Frankfort yesterday to ascertain just what procedure should be taken by one applying for the pension.

Mr. Phillips said he conferred with officials in the Old Age Pension Department of the Public Welfare Department and learned that any one believing himself entitled to the pension should write to the Old Age Pension Department at Frankfort, giving the name, address and age of the applicant.

The department, Mr. Phillips was told, will acknowledge receipt of the communication and will then forward an application form to the applicant. This form must be filled out and filed with the State Department. Later the applicant will be submitted to an investigation to determine whether or not the pension shall be granted.

COUNTY GENERAL CLASS I PAYMENT AN ACRE

The county average rate of the Class I or soil-conserving payment for diversion of acreage from the general soil-depleting base to soil-conserving crops under the Agricultural Conservation program for Boone County is $10.00 an acre, County Agent H. R. Forkner announces.

The soil-conserving payment for diversion from the general soil-depleting base for all counties and states throughout the U. S. will average $10.00 an acre, depending upon the productivity of the land.

The county average rate of this payment is based upon the productivity of crop land in the county as indicated by the average yields of principal soil-depleting crops, other than tobacco, in relation to the United States average yields of these crops.

The rate of payment on individual farms within the county will vary from the county average rate according to the way the productivity of crop land on the farm varies from the county average productivity. That is, if the land on the farm is more productive than the average in the county, as measured by the yields of the general soil-depleting crops, the rate of payment for diversion from the general soil-depleting base for the farm will be above the county average rate. If the productivity of the farm is below the average of the county, the rate for the farm will be below the county average rate.

Attention is called particularly to the fact that this announcement does not refer to payment for diversion of acreage from the tobacco soil-depleting base. Rates for those payments on individual farms are calculated from the tobacco yields per acre for the farm, as announced when the program was inaugurated. Those rates of 5 cents per pound for burley tobacco are not affected by this announcement.

Mr. C. Simpson, manager of the White Villa Cafe in Florence, was a caller at this office Monday morning.

SUPREME COURT HITS NEW DEAL

MUNICIPAL BANKRUPTCY MEASURE IS DECLARED UNCONSTITUTIONAL BY 5 TO 4 DECISION.

Washington, May 26.—The supreme court Monday declared unconstitutional the new Deal's 1934 municipl bankruptcy act in a five to four decision.

On the ground that it violated the states' rights, the majority swept the statute, intended to help cities, counties and other political subdivisons recuce their indebtedness through federal courts, to the same fate met by NRA, AAA and the Guffey coal control act.

A discenteins opinion, written by Justice Cardozo, and subscribed to by Chief Justice Hughes and Justices Brandeis and Stone sharply challenged the conclusion of the Majority and spoke of the care with which the government power of the state and its subdivisions are maintained inviolate under the legislation.

Justice McReynolds, joined by Justices Van Devanter, Southerland, Butler and Roberts, wrote the majority opinion, reaching the conclusion that:

"If obligations of states or their political subdivisons may be subjected to the interference here attempted, they are no longer free to manage their own affairs."

RIVER BABY FARMS TO TO BE SOLD AT AUCTION

To settle the estate of J. W. Mardis, there will be a public auction of 34 acres, one mile south of Springlake, near Grant's Bend, on Saturday, June 6th, at 10:00 A. M., (slow time).

The sale will include camp sites on river baby farms on concrete road, six-room frame house, two acres, all kinds of fruit; 20 acres front on Ryland concrete road, south of Pyes Hill, overlooking scenic Licking River valley, to be sold in business lots and baby farms; and furniture and farming tools. The land is said to be very rich, and the location provides good fishing.

Bonus men are invited to attend the sale. A representative will be on the grounds until time of sale. The auction is under the direction of Rel C. Wayman, Covington real estate man, with Col. R. G. Kinman and Col. Geo. Simmins as auctioneers.

BUYS FINE HERD SIRE

Mr. Joel Gray of near Burlington secured a fine young Guernsey herd sire from Berea College the past week. Mr. Gray is one of the outstanding Guernsey breeders in Kentucky and is doing much to improve the Guernsey breed in Boone County.

The new herd sire's dam is producing more than 40 pounds of milk with her first calf with a 5.5 per cent butterfat test. The calf is sired by an animal that has been proven as a sire of high producing cows under the supervision of the American Guernsey Cattle Club.

NEW MAN ON DUTY

AT RECORDER OFFICE—FORMER EMPLOYEE AT GRANT COUNTY NEWS, WILLIAMSTOWN GOES ON DUTY THIS WEEK.

Mr. Raymond Combs, Williamstown, employee at the Grant County News for the past 14 years has returned to Burlington where he is to receive steady employment at this office as printer and linotype operator.

Although Mr. Combs has been working part time at this office for several months, it was not until this week that he came on duty as a regular employee.

Ty, as he is better known to all his friends, will make his home in the new house recently erected by Mr. and Mrs. B. E. Aylor.

We are indeed glad to have such an efficient and well-trained man on our force, and join with his many friends in extending to him and his family a very hearty welcome to Burlington.

MEMBER KENTUCKY PRESS ASSOCIATION ORGANIZED JANUARY, 1868

Editorial of the Week

DICTATORS FEAR FREE PRESS

At the recent fiftieth annual convention of the members of the American Newspaper Publishers Association, especial stress was laid by various distinguished speakers on the need for maintaining inviolate the ancient American doctrine of freedom of the press.

Colonel Frank Knox, publisher of the Chicago News, said: "A free press and a dictator cannot live in the same territory. If a free press exists, a dictator is unhorsed—and the people retain their liberties. If a free press is destroyed, a dictator thrives—and the liberties of the people disappear."

Sir Willmot Lewis, Washington correspondent of the London Times said: "The newspapers of today are not free in all lands, but where they still have liberty and defend it—against enemies without and within—where they stand for discussion and agreement, setting themselves unbreakably against the regimentation of customs and obedience by goose-step, even the cynic may find a place for hope."

Other speakers presented similar views. And it is difficult to see how any man with a knowledge of world history, ancient and modern, could disagree. The two greatest treasures any people can have are a free press and the right of free speech. They constitute the basis of all liberties. They are the very life-blood of social, economic and political freedom. They are the friends of representative government and the enemies of dictatorship.

The newspapers of America have shown courage in aggressively resisting all efforts to curb their liberties. In doing this, they perform a duty to the people of the nation—and they show that they are worthy of the great responsibility that is theirs in these discordant times.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

Lesson for June 7

JESUS IN GETHSEMANE

LESSON TEXT—Luke 22:39-53.

GOLDEN TEXT—Not my will, but thine, be done.—Luke 22:42.

PRIMARY TOPIC — When Jesus Prayed in the Garden.

JUNIOR TOPIC — Jesus in Gethsemane.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—The Loyal Christ.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Doing the Father's Will.

Jesus went from the upper room, where the last supper was eaten, to the Garden of Gethsemane. Night had now fallen.

I. Jesus at the Mount of Olives (v. 39).

The garden was a favorite resort of Jesus' and his disciples on the slope of the Mount of Olives, a short distance east of Jerusalem (Matt. 26: 30). Gethsemane means "oil press," and the garden was a place where the oil was crushed out of olives. There is a striking significance in Jesus' coming to this place. Olive oil was precious, being used both for food and lighting. The bruising and crushing of Christ in this garden has yielded the largest blessings to the world—food for the souls of men, and light for their lives.

II. His Companions (vv. 39, 40).

Peter, James, and John, who had been with him on the Mount of Transfiguration, were permitted to go with him into the deep shadows of the garden (Matt. 26:37). He took those who were best able to apprehend the meaning of the tragic hour, and, too, as a human being he craved sympathy. Knowing the peculiar trial that would be theirs when the Shepherd should be smitten, his purpose was to prepare them for it. It was well that they taste the bitter cup of which he drank, and of which they, too, would later drink.

III. Jesus in Prayer (vv. 41-44).

1. Withdrawal from the disciples (v. 41). Even the members of the inner circle could not go with him through this hour. He went apart from them, for he must be alone with his Father in this darkest hour. Thus alone he kneeled and prayed.

2. What he said (v. 42). "If thou be willing, remove this cup from me." The cup did not primarily mean the physical sufferings of the cross, though they were exceeding great. He did not now desire to escape from the cross and thus to stop short of his redemptive work, for this was the supreme purpose of his coming into the world (Heb. 2:14). Rather it was the revulsion of his holy nature from the burden of sin which he was representatively to bear when the cross was placed upon him. He, indeed, was to be made sin for us who knew no sin (II Cor. 5:21). He was so completely identified with a sinning race that the judgment of a holy God which rightfully would have fallen upon it, was about to strike him.

The cup, therefore, meant his death as the bearer of sin. He came to Gethsemane with a full knowledge of what it meant, and here he bowed in submission to the Father's will. The agony of this hour drew from his brow as it were great drops of blood, but an angel came and strengthened him, and from that place of victory he went with unfaltering steps to the cross.

IV. The Sleeping Disciples (vv. 45, 46).

Though they had boasted of their fidelity (Matt. 26:35), they could not watch with him one hour. They were so benumbed by perplexities and sorrow that they slept, and could not watch with Jesus one little hour.

V. Jesus Betrayed (vv. 47, 48).

1. The betrayer (v. 47) was Judas, who had been at the last supper with Jesus; who had journeyed up and down the land with the Lord and his disciples. The fact that he had listened to Jesus' teachings, had witnessed his miracles, had been with him in seasons of prayer (John 18:2), intensified the horror of his deed.

2. The sign of betrayal (v. 47) was a kiss, the age-long token of most tender affection and friendship. The betrayer now degraded that symbol of love by making it the instrument of disloyalty and treason.

3. The words that Jesus spoke (v. 48) to the infamous disciple reveal the infinite tenderness of his heart. But so hardened was the heart of the betrayer that he carried though his brutal contract to deliver the Redeemer of men for thirty pieces of silver. The money was in his purse; he must not weaken. The deed was done.

Shall not those who study this lesson inquire with deep earnestness if anything in their lives may be serving as a practical betrayal of Christ?

Good Deeds

"For every good deed of ours, the world will be better always. And perhaps no day does a man walk down a street cheerfully, and like a child of God, without some passengers being brightened by his face, and, unknowingly to himself, catching from its look a something of religion."

A Man's Acts

what Irvin S. Cobb thinks about:

Styles in Hair Tints.

SANTA MONICA, CALIF.—There's more news concerning the mummified remains of that lovely Egyptian princess they found the other day—that daughter of some early Pharaoh, she who died nearly 5,000 years ago and yet was still so beautifully preserved. Too bad that old recipe of the Pharaoh family was lost. They did make such good preserves.

The latest word is that the little lady's hair was dyed a henna color. Either that's news or something has stimulated a sudden change in Hollywood fashions. Just a little while ago, about every other potential movie queen you saw was going in for the platinum effect; and only too frequently, alas, the effect was that of a new tin roof on a vacant attic.

Irvin S. Cobb

Now, by the great gross, the stylish ones are going red, reddish or redder. Today, within half a mile, I counted ten redheads, and not a white horse in sight, to prove the ancient saying.

Waning Presidential Booms.

WHAT with cyclones and floods down south, the daily press somehow failed to record among our spring casualties the untimely end of the Governor Talmadge boom. Poor little thing, it passed away at its home in Atlanta, Ga., just as it was learning, in prattling accents, to lisp "pa-pa."

Still the shock did not catch some of us unawares. We had a feeling it wasn't going to live. The second summer is so frequently fatal to those incubator babies.

For instance, you take the Ham Fish boom. Or of you didn't take it, somebody certainly did, because it hasn't been seen, or even heard of for months and months.

Gridiron Club Dinners.

EXCEPT the obituary column, nothing could be sadder than the newspaper account of a gridiron club dinner. Yet gridlon club dinners aim to be satirically amusing and frequently are.

Turning them out must be a tremendously hard job, because they deal with the national political scene, and any producer of farces will tell you you can't burlesque a burlesque. In other words, you can't be very funny on a subject which already is so much funnier than anything you can think of—and that's what the fellows at Washington are up against.

This business of trying to be comic is a serious business anyway, especially since all comedy is predicated on distress. A fat man falling down makes us laugh because he suffers both in spirit and flesh. But if he is a pallbearer, say, at a funeral and falls down on his own high hat and maybe breaks up the services—well, now then, you've got something that's really funny.

A definition of comedy could be: Tragedy standing on its head with its pants torn.

Self-Chosen Landon Aids.

GOVERNOR LANDON must feel awfully fractional, not to say badly scattered, what with being levied on by so many comparative strangers all at once. Every day or two, with an altruism rare in this selfish age, some gallant volunteer elects himself by acclamation as the governor's eastern manager or his western manager, or his northwestern-by-southwestern manager or something. It makes no difference that he may never have heard of these parties before; up to six months ago, they'd never heard of him either.

He's like a previously neglected orphan child who suddenly comes into prospects and finds everybody in town trying to adopt him. Maybe a better simile would be that of a lone Thanksgiving turkey at a tableful of hungry boarders, with this one snatching the drumstick and that one grabbing the second joint—and Mr. W. R. Hearst clinging, with a grip of iron, to the wishbone.

Folly of Parole System.

THE perpetrators of the kidnaping case of a few months ago up in the state of Washington were both chronic offenders who, despite their records, had been paroled.

The fiend who recently committed the most hideous child murder that California has known in years was a convict out on parole. The degenerate who has just confessed to murdering that poor defenseless gentlewoman in New York the other day was—yes, you've guessed it—he was a convict on parole.

And all over the Union the work of turning loose criminals who have not completed their terms of punishment, indeed, in some cases hardly have begun them, goes merrily on.

HENRY FORD PREDICTS FUTURE

OF AUTOMOBILE INDUSTRY—STATES THIS WILL SEEM LIKE STAGECOACH ERA TO PEOPLE TWENTY-FIVE YEARS FROM PRESENT TIME

A quarter of a century from now, says Henry Ford in an interview with S. J. Woolf in the June Rotarian Magazine, people will look back at these times in much the same way as we do now on a tithe stagecoach era of the world's development.

However, he explans that while improvements are taking place and new things are being created, it does not follow that old things must be abandoned, if there is any good in them.

"Aviation," says Mr. Ford, "will not come into its own until the automobile has been absolutely perfected. But there is much still to be done in automobiles. Give us a few years more, and the automobile will be improved and refined Motor-car manufacturing is still a new industry. There will be changes for the better in almost every part of the car.

"All our machinery will be lighter and better. This is true not ony of automobile machinery but of machinery in general. Almost every mechanism today is unneeessarily overburdened with weight—due to a system of interlocking directorates; manufacturers have been only selling materials instead of also studying their best use.

"No one can speak of the future," he continues, "without taking into thoughtful consideration just what the last few years have seen in the increased employment of agricultural products in manufacturing. We grow much of an automobile now; it is not beyond possibility that eventually we shall grow most or all of it.

"Shorter hours and higher wages are inevitable," Mr. Ford predicts. "We cannot escape them. If we go on making things, we must have money to buy them and leisure to use them. These will result from economics, improvements, and refinements of manufacturing methods which in turn result from the incessant labor and creative experience of management.

"We shall find out that no social advance can be introduced into industry by law; it will come because it is right, and what is right will support itself. We shall have shorter hours because work will be plentiful and production ample, field and of the missionary work now being done by him and Mr. Alexander, not in order to spread work but to enable men to enjoy and use the things they make.

"As far as competition is concerned, that must continue. But we must learn what competition really is. It is a striving to attain the best. To throttle it would mean to stop all progress."

The people hurt in this week's automobile accidents are the ones who said, last week, that they never would get hurt.

TO PAY FOR USE OF LIME AND PHOSPHATE

The use of lime and phosphate is included among the approved practices which will qualify farmers for soil-biulding payments in the Agricultural Conservation Program.

For applying ground limestone in Kentucky, payment will be at the rate of $1.40 a ton, says a statement from the College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky. As much as two tons may be used.

Payment will be made for using lime between Jan. 1 and Oct. 1 of this year on land used for the production of soil-conserving crops or in connection with carrying out approved legume seeding or green-manuring practice. Payment also will be made for liming land to be seeded to small grain between Sept. 1 and Oct. 1, this year, where the manure crop in connection with the small-grain crop.

Payment for the use of superphosphate will depend upon the quantity and analysis of the superphosphate. For applying 16 per cent superphosphate between Jan. 1 and Oct. 1 of this year, on land used for the production of soil-conserving crops or in connection with approved legume seeding or green-manuring practice, the rate will be equivalent to 50 cents per 100 pounds. The limit is 500 pounds to the acre.

It is pointed out that there is a limit to the amount of soil-building payment which a farmer may receive. This is calculated by multiplying by $1 the number of acres of soil-conserving crops on a farm this year, except that if this acreage is less than 10, the farmer will receive $10.

For example, on a farm with 60 acres in soil-conserving crops this year, the soil-building allowance would be $60. The farmer would earn part or all of the $60, depending upon the amount to which he would be entitled for using lime or superphosphate, or carrying out other soil-building practices.

BABY: THE FARMER'S STEDIEST CUSTOMER

Who is the farmer's steadiest customer?

The baby.

Of course, in a sense the baby is the smallest customer as far as his size is concerned, but he is a steady one in that his needs usually come first, in any family.

At five months of age, the baby should have a whole grain cereal, says the home economics department of the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture. He also gets a hankering for eggs, and may have one a day just as well as any six-footer. At six months garden products become a matter of intimate concern to the young master, and he needs carrots, peas and spinach.

By the time the baby is ten months old, the farmer's garden is taxed to take care of his food requirements. He wants apples. But that is only a start; he also requires bacon, bread, potatoes and a little well-cooked meat. Along with this should always go a pint of milk, and preferably a quart of it. Butter is demanded at every meal, and leafy vegetables come into their own. Instead of apples, tomatoes may be served occasionally, or a citrus fruit.

Of the few "must" requirements for the baby, butter and milk probably rank first. With plenty of sunshine and fresh air, the baby is well taken care of if he gets these products which can be supplied on any farm.

There is only one time when sweets should be given: at the end of a meal, possibly as a reward for stowing away the essential foods. Between and before meals, they serve to spoil the appetite and do no real good. Sweets should always be used in moderation.

WHEN LIFE HANGS BY A THREAD—

WORLD FAMOUS DRIVERS KNOW ONLY ONE TIRE IS Safe!

Firestone

GUM-DIPPED TIRES

WIN INDIANAPOLIS 500 MILE RACE

LOUIS MEYER on the Indianapolis 500-mile race, at an average speed of 109.069 miles an hour, breaking all track records, without tire trouble of any kind.

No tires except Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires could have resisted the terrific heat generated at such high sustained speeds on the hot brick track, lap after lap, hour after hour. You can have no greater proof of blowout protection.

Not one of the thirty-three drivers would risk his life on any other tire, for each driver knows that heat is the chief cause of tire failure and blowouts. Firestone cords are soaked in liquid rubber, which saturates and coats every cotton fiber, preventing friction and heat and adding great strength. This is the Firestone patented process of Gum-Dipping, that gives you greatest blowout protection and safety.

Profit by the experience of race drivers. Equip your car today with Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires — it costs so little to protect lives worth so much.

THE New Firestone STANDARD

Designed and constructed by Firestone skilled tire engineers — a first quality tire built of all first grade materials, embodying the many exclusive Firestone patented construction features. Its exceptional quality and service at these low prices are made possible by large volume production in the world's most efficient tire factories. Made in all sizes for passenger cars, trucks and buses.

Let us show you this new Firestone tire today.

SELL LAMBS WHEN THEY ARE READY

Selling lambs at the proper weight is stressed by Richard C. Miller, sheep specialist at the Kentucky College of Agriculture. The late spring tended to cause lambs to be put on the market before they reached proper weight and condition. Light lambs go into lower grades, which means that the owner receives a lower price. He also sells fewer pounds.

Then there is the mistake of holding lambs after they have reached proper weight. Too heavy lambs, like too light lambs, suffer price reduction. The penalty is most severe in the case of heavy buck lambs.

Except for early in the season, the market calls for lambs weighing 72 to 85 pounds at the yard or that yield a carcass of 35 to 42 pounds, says Miller.

THE FARM AND HOME

(Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station)

Spring spraymg is essential to the control of raspberry diseases, according to a circular called "Raspberry Culture in Kentucky," published by the College of Agriculture at Lexington. Now that control sprays have been found for diseases, home raspberry growing may be revived.

Common lespedeza, or Japan clover, is now seldom sowed in Kentucky, but appears as a volunteer crop in many parts of the state. It probably is almost as valuable for pasture as the larger varieties. Tennessee 76 and Kobe are giant varieties of the common.

Now that the hatching season is over, the roosters may be sold, unless they can be used another year, in which event they should be confined. Fertile eggs become unfit for food much more quickly in warm weather than infertile eggs.

"Spends 20 years in bed," reads the newspaper headline. Since most people sleep a third of their time, that is, eight hours daily, they have spent 20 years in bed when they are 60 years old. Proper sleep is necessary for good health.

Water forms a part of all body tissue and is important as a regulating substance. Body tissues are three-fourths water. It also aids digestion and prevents constipation. Six to eight glasses of water are needed a day by an individual.

The cost of installing a pitcher pump in the kitchen will vary from $15 to $40, depending on the quality of sink purchased and the amount of plumping supplies needed. Persons interested in this type of water system should write for College of Agriculture circular No. 125, which has recently been revised.

Large flocks of chickens can be noticed at every farm home in the county and the farm wife is devoting much of her time to the raising of them. Most of them are bought from local hatcheries.

LEARN TO SAY "NO"

Did you ever think what gullible suckers we voters are.

We know the stork doesn't bring babies. We know the magician doesn't really pick money out of the air. We know water doesn't run up hill. But we never seem to learn that political magic is no different from stage magic, except the price of admission is more.

A good politician can make us think he picks money out of the air just like a good magacian. But while the politician holds our attention by promising to give us something for nothing but our vote, his hand is in our pocket taking out our money (taxes) to pay for his "gift."

Unless we learn to say "no" to the tempting "gifts" offered us, the political magicians will promise us a free trip to the moon with a golden chariot to ride in when we get there—but by the time we arrived, we would have long white whiskers and the pawn broker would have the chariot (and probably our return trip ticket) for the tax lien the political magacians gave him against us.

It won't be long now before some quick-thinking brother will be telling you how much he prefers cold weather.

THE MOTORIST'S PRAYER

"Grant me a steady hand and watchful eye, that no man shall be hurt when I pass by," starts The Motorist's Prayer. The prayer first appeared in the London Church Times.

The Prayer is a reminder that good driving is a Christian obligation. It follows:

Grant me a steady hand and watchful eye,
That no man shall be hurt when I pass by.
Thou gavest life, and I pray no act of mine
May take away or mar that gift of thine.
Shelter those dear Lord, who bear me company,
From the evils of fire and all calamity.
Teach me to use my car for others' need,
Nor miss through love of speed
The beauties of thy world; that thus I may,
With joy and courtesy go my way.

FLAG RAISING TO BE HELD

SERVICES TO BE CONDUCTED BY BOONE POST NO. 4 AMERICAN LEGION—FLAG TO BE RAISED ON NEW FLAG POLE.

Sunday, June 14th being flag day, there will be a Flag Raising at the court house in Burlington, conducted by Boone Post No. 4 of the American Legion. A flag will be raised and presented to the county to be used on the new flag pole recently erected by the Young Men's Democratic Club of Boone County

At the regular meeting of the Young Men's Democratic Club, the pole was presented to the Fiscal Court of Boone County, but in the absence of Judge N. E. Riddell, C. L. Cropper was appointed in his place to accept the donation when it was presented.

The American Legion will conduct a dedication service in the Courthouse yard, Sunday afternoon at 2:00 o'clock (slow time). The Firing Squad with Drum and Bugle Corps from Newport Legion will be on hand to participate in the exercises. The Sixth District Legion Commander B. C. (Ted) Lee will deliver the address, and Rev. Roy Johnson, pastor of Big Bone Baptist church will also take part on the program.

The citizens of Boone County are cordially invited to be present Sunday afternoon to witness the raising of the first flag in the Courthouse yard where it is to be flown each day thereafter.

LAKE VIEW SELLS FOR $56 PER ACRE

The 186½ acre farm of W. S. Norris, of the Union Stock Yards, Cincinnati, better known throughout Boone County as the Lake View farm, was sold to the highest bidder last Thursday by the R. G. Kinman Auction Co.

Mr. Norbert Thiemann, wholesale grocerman of Cincinnati purchased this fine farm for an average of $56 per acre, or a total of $10,444.00. This price was in line with expectations, and the entire sale was reported a huge success.

TAX ON CANDY AND ICE CREAM

IS HIT BY EXECUTIVE BOARD OF P. T. A.—PARK AVENUE NEWPORT, LEADERS TO COMPLAIN TO CHANDLER

A protest against the tax on ice cream and candy was made yesterday by members of the Executive Board of the Parent-Teacher Association of Park Avenue School, Newport.

Members of the board voted to send a telegram to Governor A. B. Chandler deploring the tax. In protesting against the tax the members said that ice cream and candy are considered foods in the diet of children.

Newly elected officers of the association will be installed at the final meeting of the year, next Thursday. Reservations for the luncheon to be held in connection with the meeting may be made with Mrs. Arch Walker, Hospitality Chairman. Final reports for the year will be made.

Judge N. E. Riddell, Mrs. Laura Blythe and Mr. and Mrs. John M. Botts were the Sunday afternoon guests of Mr. and Mrs. Dudley R. Blythe, of Latonia.

PETTIT—OGDEN

The marriage of Miss Laura Mae Pettit, attractive daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Pettit, Burlington, to James Ogden, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. JACK RYDER PASSES AWAY FRIDAY OF HEART ATTACK, HAD TRAVELED FOR THIRTY YEARS WITH REDS.

Frederick Bushnell Ryder passed away at his home, 615 Maple Ave., Cincinnati, Friday morning, after a short illness. His death was attributed to heart disease.

"Jack" as he was known in all sections and to all friends, followed the Cincinnati Reds, writing the games for the Cincinnati Enquirer for the past 30 years. He told how they won the pennant in 1919 and in adverse times he wrote of how they finished in the cellar of the National League some half dozen times.

"Jack" Ryder probably was the oldest traveling baseball reporter both in the National and American Leagues. He was well known throughout this section and had made many visits to our county seat.

He is survived by his widow, Suzanne Ryder and a stepson, William Leach; a brother Arthur W. Ryder, of Calofirnia; Dr. Charles T. Ryder of Colorado Springs, and two sisters, Miss Mary E. Ryder, of New York and Miss Winifred M. Ryder, Berkley, Calif.

Funeral services were conducted Monday at 10:30 a. m. at the Sullivan Funeral Home with Dr. Frederick N. McMillin, pastor of the Walnut Hills Presbyterian Church officiating.

ROBT. HENSLEY U. K. GRADUATE

WAS GRADUATE OF BURLINGTON IN CLASS OF '29. MORE THAN A WEEK DEVOTED TO U. OF K. EXERCISES.

Robert Hensley, of this place was among the graduating class of the University of Kentucky, in Bachelor of Laws with exercises opening Wednesday, May 27th. Mr. Hensley graduated from the Burlington high school in the class of '29.

More than a week's program of commencement activities culminated at the University of Kentucky Friday morning at ten o'clock with the annual graduation exercises, at which time Dr. Thomas Parran Jr., surgeon-general of the United States Public Health Service, Washington, D. C., delivered the commencement address to approximately 400 members of the June class of 1936.

Wednesday, May 27, Field Day exercises and graduation exercises for the University R. O. T. C. unit were held on Stoll field, officially opening the commencement program. Thursday, May 4 was alumni reunion day, with old grads returning for the class luncheons and alumni banquet in the evening.

Dr. M. H. Lichliter, Columbus, O., pastor of the First Congregational Church of that city delivered the Baccalaureate sermon Thursday afternoon at three o'clock in Memorial Hall, followed by a tea at Maxwell Place, home of the President and Mrs. McVey for alumni, visitors, speakers and guests.

17-Year Locusts Do Little Damage To Vegetation

Louisville, Ky., June 11.—"Although the 17 year locust, more correctly known as the periodical cicada, is appearing in many localities of Kentucky in quantities comparable to the year of 1919, there is little likelihood of heavy damage," declared B. J. Wight, president of the Louisville Chemical Co. here today.

"The cicada," continued Mr. Wight, is not the same devasting insect which plagued Biblical peoples and more recently the farmers of our own Western states. Those swarms were the true locusts which are similar to the ordinary grasshopper and devour all vegetation in the path of the swarm."

"Very little vegetation is destroyed by the cicada which sustains itself chiefly on a small amount of sap from a tree or shrub. This amounts to a slight pruning action and, except in extreme cases, is not of serious consequence. An one of the external chewing and sucking insects whose quiet presence can enable it to work multiple times the damage of the cicada is more of an economic hazard."

"Laboratories of the large chemical companies are constantly seeking effective means of insect control and at the same time using methods which are non-poisonous to animal life. These insects which constitute such a risk to all vegetation in this region are the Mexican bean beetle, striped cucumber beetle, cabbage worm, potato beetles, leaf tyers and rollers, flea beetles, leaf hoppers, thrips. aphis curculio, and pear slugs. The most effective and economical means for a farmer, gardener, and florist to combat these insects is the use of a new bug dust that has been recently developed and is applied during the growth of the plant.

BURLINGTON WINS OVER UNION NINE

The Burlington baseball team, behind the pitching of Kirkpatrick and the hitting of A. Sebree and Voshell had little difficulty in defeating Union 14-9 at the local ball park Sunday afternoon. Jack and Afterkirk divided the mound duties for Union.

SWALLWS HIS CASH

Buffalo, New York, June 4—Robert Ford, 42, coughed after he had been operated on for a skull fracture. Up came a roll of 11 one dollar bills. Police said Ford had been attacked by bandits and apparently had swallowed the money for safe keeping.

WALTON MAN SEEKS POST

AS RAILROAD COMMISSIONER FROM SECOND DISTRICT. WAS FORMER REPRESTNTATIVE OF GRANT AND BOONE.

Leonard Cook, of Walton announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for Railroad Commissioner from the Second District Monday.

Mr. Cook is a business man of Walton and managed the campaign of Gov. A. B. Chandler in Boone county last year. He is seeking to serve out the unexpired term of Oscar Vest, Carrollton, who was reelected to the post last year, but died shortly thereafter. Frank McCarthy, of Lexington was appointed by Governor Chandler to serve until Vest's successor could be chosen at the election this year. It is expected that McCarthy will be a candidate for the position.

Mr. Cook planned to make the race against Mr. Vest last year, but remained out of the race to become campaign manager for Gov. Chandler. Under his leadership in Boone county, Chandler carried this county, in both primaries and by a huge majority in the general election.

He is the owner of the Walton Feed Mills. He is also a farmer and tobacco dealer, being one of the largest tobacco growers in this county. He was born in Owen county, reared in Grant and moved to Boone county 14 years ago.

REV. JOHNSON LEAVES BIG BONE CHURCH

Rev. Johnson, who has been pastor of the Big Bone Baptist church for almost ten years, will leave his work there and take up his duties at Paint Lick, Ky., as pastor of the church at that place.

During the ten years that Rev. Johnson has been among the people of this community, he has established himself as a pastor that has always been loyal to his fellow church workers and also a pastor that has built one of the finest churches and Sunday Schools in this county. Both the church and Sunday school at this time are very active and are continuing to build each week.

There is to be an all day meeting at this church Sunday, June 21st, in honor of Rev. Johnson, who will leave shortly after that time. Everyone is cordially invited to attend.

25TH ANNIVERSAY TO BE CELEBRATED SUNDAY

The Silver Jubilee or 25th anniversary of St. Paul's Catholic church will be celebrated Sunday at the church building located on Highway No. 25, Florence, Kentucky. There is to be an all day meeting, with services in the morning and games and contest in the afternoon.

Father T. J. McCaffery who is responsible for the erection of this building will be the guest of honor at this gathering and will also deliver the sermon at the morning services.

Immediately after the service, there will be a home-coming celebration, and the public is invited to attend. These services will continue until 2:30 p. m., after which there will be games and contest for both old and young. The public is cordially invited to attend all these services.

Boone County has many advantages; are you one of them?

Black Eyed Susan Coming to Burlington

"Black Eyed Susan," a three-act musical comedy, full of witty dialogue, colorful costumes and clean, wholesome fun, will be given at the Burlington High School, June 19th under the direction of Frances Beasley, of Lavonia, Ga., sponsored by the Burlington P. T. A. This play looks different, sounds different and is different.

The plot of Black Eyed Susan is woven around five old maids hunting a husband and Black Eyed Susan comes down from Boston to visit one of the old maids and she sees how lonely these old maids are so she tries her hand at marrying them off. She slips off and puts an ad in the Boone County Recorder for an unmarried man as caretaker of the garden and signs her name as Miss Rowena Tom, which is the name of a rose. She does this to make it more romantic. She gets lots of answers to the ads and writes five of the old bachelors to come. As soon as the men enter the garden the old maids begin immediately to make love to them Each of the five bachelors are handicapped in some way. one hiccoughs, one stammers and one has a terrible cold, but these old maids, they love them any way. Black Eyed Susan is the only one left without a lover and if you'll come see the play, you'll find how Black Eyed Susan falls in love. It's a scream from beginning to the end.

BOONE COUNTY WOOL GROWERS

RECEIVE HIGHEST PRICES IN RECENT YEARS FOR CLIP AT WALTON TUESDAY

Three hundred and twenty Boone County Wool growers sold their wool through the Boone County Wool Pool at the Walton Equitable Bank, on Tuesday of this week, according to Lillard Scott, secretary and H. E. White, president.

The clip consisting of 10,600 fleeces was sold to S. Steinharter & Co. ,of Cincinnati. The price reported is one of the highest in recent years and higher than received by those farmers who sold outside the pool. The wool will be delivered to the places designated below on the following dates: Walton Thursday, June 18th, Burlington June 19th and Petersburg June 20th.

The pool sign-up has already been closed and only pooled wool is included in the above sale. The pool method for wool growers in Boone county has proven very satisfactory. The farmers put their clip together in one lot and are thus able to get a better price and uniform fair treatment to all the growers.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hensley and family of Burlington, attended the graduation exercises of their son, Robert, at the University of Kentucky Friday. Bob, as he is known, has completed his degree in Bachelor of Laws.

ELMO AYLOR WINS AWARD

FOR HIGHEST AVERAGE IN CLASS OF EIGHTEEN AT OHIO MECHANIS INSTITUTE. EXERCISES CONDUCTED MONDAY.

Elmo Edison Aylor, son of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Aylor of the Camp Ernst Road, has just recently completed his two-year course of study at the Ohio Mechanics Institute, Cincinnati, and has been awarded first prize for the highest average of the entire class of eighteen graduates for the two years' work.

Mr. Aylor was a graduate of the Burlington High School in 1934 and immediately entered the O. M. I. school for a two-year course in Industrial Engineering.

Graduation exercises were conducted Monday afternoon at Emery Auditorium, with Dr. Abraham Crombach, Professor of Jewish Social Studies of the Hebrew Union College, to deliver the address to the graduates.

A two year membership in the Industrial Engineering club was awarded Mr. Aylor for completing his course. one of the most difficult of its kind, with a higher average than any other student. He also received honorable mention by the executive members of this institution.

At the present time Elmo is employed at the Cincinnati Milling Machine Company, Cincinnati, and expects to remain there for the summer at least. It is his intentions to become a licensed aeroplane mechanic and is trying to get employment with the aeroplane construction of Cincinnati.

ANNOUNCES FOR COUNTY ATTY.

OF BOONE COUNTY IN DEMOCRATIC PRIMARY ELECTION AUGUST 1—SERVED AS CASHIER OF HEBRON BANK FOR 14 YEARS

Charles W. Riley, of Hebron has announced his candidacy for County Attorney of Boone County in the Democratic election which is to be held August 1st of this year.

Mr. Riley is among one of Boone County's most prominent business men, being cashier of the Hebron Deposit Bank since 1922. He was born and reared on a farm, and followed farming as his means of livelihood from 1910 until 1922, at which time he was appointed cashier of the Hebron Deposit Bank.

Mr. Riley was born in Boone County December 12, 1891, and has spent his entire life as a citizen here. He received his education in the common schools of Boone county, Covington High School, and Transylvania College. In 1926 he entered the Cincinnati Y. M. C. A. Law school where he later received his L. L. B. degree. He was admitted to the bar in 1930, and since that time has been practicing law in Boone county.

He was the son of the late C. W. and Corrine Riley, also lifelong residents of this county.

Mr. Riley states, quote: "If I am chosen to represent the citizens of Boone County as County Attorney, I promise to serve in the same manner in which I have served in other capacities.

CLORE—CRAIG

The announcement of the marriage of Miss Frances Clore to Mr. William Jennings Craig came as quite a surprise to the citizens of Boone county this week.

Miss Clore is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kirby Clore of the Waterloo neighborhood.

The license was purchased in Boone county and they were married at the home of Rev. F. Dumont Brown, Christian minister in Erlanger. They were married Tuesday morning, June 9th.

We join with their many friends in wishing them much happiness.

A. J. OSTROW OPENS NEW STORE IN COVINGTON

Monday, June 8th marked the opening of one of Covington's most complete and modern electric appliance stores. The store is owned and operated by A. J. Ostrow's Inc., is conveniently located at 715 Madison Avenue and carries a complete line of radios, refrigerators and electrical appliances.

The new store will incorporate modern ideas in display, with special offers being made on opening day. Residents of northern Kentucky are invited to attend the opening to inspect the new quarters.

COMPLETES TRAINING

AT CINCINNATI Y. M. C. A. BUSINESS SCHOOL. FIFTY FOUR STUDENTS RECEIVE DIPLOMAS THURSDAY.

Miss Marjorie Hensley, graduate of Burlington High School has just completed a nine-month business training at the Cincinnati Y. M. C. A. Business School. There were approximately fifty-four students that received their diplomas for the winter term of the business school.

Graduation exercises were held at Memorial Hall, Cincinnati, on Thursday night at 8:00 p. m. Ellsworth S. Ireland delivered the graduation address.

Miss Hensley also attended the University of Kentucky for one year preceding her entrance in the business school, and is the eleventh student from Boone county to graduate from the Y. M. C. A. schools.

The Y. M. C. A. schools are recognized as being one of the most modern and best equipped school of its kind in Cincinnati, and has a very good record in this community for preparing high school graduates for present day requirements in the business world.

WHAT ABOUT COLLEGE

With a High School diploma in their hand, and full of big ideas, there are many students who are now confronting the big problem of making a life. I am afraid that too many will stop their scholastic training at the end of high school days without realizing the tremendous advantage that will come to them by pursuing their way thru college.

The Recorder does not recommend a college course for every boy and girl. There was a time when people thought this was a good idea, but, undoubtedly, there are some boys and girls who will not take advantage of the educational opportunities that can be obtained in college. These might as well go to work, whether they are the sons or daughters of rich or poor parents.

At the same time, let us urge all students who have completed their high school courses this summer, to give serious thought to the possibility of attending college. The right institution, and the right personal application, will make a difference in your life which is now before you to build.

WHAT DOES 1936 MEAN TO YOU?

Along about the latter part of the month of December, as we recall, we gave out a little advice, as editors are prone to do, upon the general subject of savings.

It is not what a man earns in life that makes him independent financially, but what he saves. The present year of 1936 will be a good year for you to proportion that it's end finds you better fixed to withstand the vicissitudes of life. It doesn't make any difference how much money you get if you throw it away foolishly.

Of course, we are speaking of financial matters only. So far, one-third of the year has passed. How do you stand? What has 1936 meant thus far? Will the other part of the year show any improvement? You are the only person in the world who can answer the questions for yourself, and it is entirely in your control.

THE LEAGUE'S FAILURE

Italy and Ethiopia were both members of the League of Nations. Italy had solemnly covenanted to respect the independence of Ethiopia and the other members of the League were supposed to have agreed to assist any member which became the victim of aggression. There can be no denial that Italy violated its pledge and the League members failed to make good their promised protection.

The League was unable to protect Ethiopia because Great Britain and France could not agree. For the same reason it could take no steps when the Germans under Hitler invaded the Rhineland. The English wanted to help the Ethiopians and the French wanted to punish the Germans but in each case the other nation did not feel that the issue justified running the risk of a European war.

The smaller nations are more dubious than ever before of the protection afforded them by solemn commitments of more powerful neighbors in the League. It is unlikely that anything will be done about Italy's successful seizure of Ethiopia, a theft of territory successfully accomplished without League prevention, just as in the case of Japan taking Maunchuria from China. Unless the League is made more potent it will afford no protection to its members.

EDITORIAL BRIEFS

There has been considerable talk from time to time about our present form of government being under the head of a dictator. It is evident to see that if such a thing should happen, our dictator's greatest problem would be how to keep the stomachs of his subjects full and their heads empty.

—o—

Our school teachers in Boone county are many times severely criticized for their inability to prepare students for the present day needs. Let us not overlook the fact that our teacners must abide by instructions given by higher authority, and if we really feel that there is room for criticism, let us not pick on the teachers alone, but get to the root of the thing, our county school system.

WOULD TAX EVERYBODY

Billions of dollars could be spent for the increased happiness of American citizens if the money was available. Adequate homes, a wider educational opportunity, proper clothing, more and better food, a more careful attention to health and physical needs, a wider enjoyment of the comforts and luxuries of civilization—all these things are desired by almost everybody. However, the acquisition of these things costs money, which limits the ability of government to furnish them, even if it were desirable as a function of government.

The Roosevelt Social Security Program goes along moderately towards making life more secure and safe for Americans who are handicapped. Aged persons, those out of employment, dependent children without parents, and the blind are the groups which would be benefited by enactment of this legislation by the various states. Even in this moderate program the necessity for taxation to furnish the money is a major problem.

The Townsend $200-per month pension plan looks only to the comfort and ease of those over sixty years of age. If paid indiscriminately to every aged person, as the plan contemplates, the cost would run to billions of dollars per year, and to raise this a "transactions tax" is advocated, which economists calculate would even make the recipients pay nearly one-third of their pensions in taxes to keep it going.

An investigating committee of the National House has been looking into the methods by which the Townsend leaders collected thousands of dollars for propaganda. Other relevant facts are also being brought into the light—one of these being that the advocates of the plan have soft-pedalled the fact that under the Townsend plan every farmer would have to receive a license to sell and would be taxed on the sale of every article from a dozen eggs to a bale of cotton.

In the effort to improve the condition of unfortunate people the nation as a whole is endangered by two classes of workers. First comes the idealistic theoretical reformer who does not keep his feet on the ground of reality. Second, equally as dangerous is a political demagogue who will promise anything to get votes without any idea of how the reward will be delivered or what this will result if an effort is made to make the delivery. Sensible people will have to dampen the enthusiasm of one and rebuke the hypocisy of another.

Lesson for June 14

JESUS CRUCIFIED

LESSON TEXT—Luke 23:33-46.

GOLDEN TEXT—But God commendeth his love toward us, in that, while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us.—Romans 5:8.

PRIMARY TOPIC—When Jesus Died for Us.

JUNIOR TOPIC—The Savior—Christ the Lord.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Jesus Died for Me.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Meaning of the Cross.

It is highly important that every teacher have the personal experience of Christ's death for himself and then get his pupils to see that Christ's death was instead of their own death. We escape judgment because judgment fell upon Christ. He was made to be sin for us that we might be made the righteousness of God in him (II Cor. 5:21). No one lacking this experience can truly teach this lesson.

I. The Place of Crucifixion (v. 33).

They led him away to Calvary, a hill north of Jerusalem resembling a skull. Calvary is the Latin word, and Golgotha is the Hebrew. This is a most significant name for the place where man's redemption was accomplished. The skull is an apt symbol of man's condition as a result of sin. Life and intelligence are gone, leaving only the dark empty cavern which once contained them.

II. His Companions on the Cross (v. 33).

Two malefactors were crucified with him. This is in fulfillment of the Scriptures: "He was numbered with the transgressors" (Isa. 53:12). Personally, he was sinless, but he became sin for us.

III. His Forgiving Love (v. 34).

He cried, "Father forgive them." He doubtless had in mind not only the soldiers who acted for the government, but the Jews who in their blindness were ignorant of the enormity of their crime. He was absolutely destitute of hatred, even for his betrayer and murderers.

IV. The Revelation of the World (vv. 34-43).

Take a cross section of the world at any time since Christ was crucified, and representatives of the various classes therein were found around Jesus on the cross. The cross is the judgment of this world (John 12:31).

1. The covetous (v. 34). They gambled for his seamless robe where he was dying. This represents those whose primary interest in Christ is a means to get gain. If they had had eyes to see they could have beheld a robe of righteousness being provided in his death.

2. The indifferent (v. 35). "The people stood beholding." They gazed upon him with indifference. The great mass of the world today gazes upon the crucified Christ with stolid indifference.

3. The scoffers (vv. 35-39).

a. The rulers reviled him for his claim to be the Savior. They wanted a Savior but not a crucified one. Many today are religious but have only contempt for a salvation which centers in an atonement made by blood. They uttered a great truth when they said: "He saved others." But he could not save himself and others because God's plan was to save others by giving himself.

b. The soldiers reviled him for claiming to be a king. The title "King of the Jews" had been placed over him in irony. But it was pre-eminently true, for by right of the Davidic covenant, he shall one day be king over Israel (II Sam. 7:8-16). Through his death, he came into the place of Lordship over all who acknowledge him.

c. The impenitent malefactor (v. 39). This brutal man joined in reviling the Savior, even though he himself was under condemnation.

4. The penitent malefactor (vv. 40-43).

The conscious sinner who discerned the heart of the Savior prayed for mercy. The salvation of this penitent man is a remarkable picture of the saving power of Christ. The man confessed his sin as against God and cried to Jesus for salvation. He saw that the dying man was the forgiving God. His salvation was immediate. Christ said: "Today shalt thou be with me in paradise."

V. The Death of Christ (vv. 44-46).

So shocking was this crime that nature herself threw around the Son of God a shroud to hide him from the godless crowd. Darkness was upon the land at noonday. When the price of sin was paid he cried with a loud voice, showing that he still had vitality, that his death was not through exhaustion but by his sovereign will. He died like no other one in all history. He gave up the ghost, that is, dismissed his spirit.

The Soul

I am fully convinced that the soul is indestructible, and that its activity will continue through eternity. It is like the sun, which, to our eyes, seems to set in night; but it has in reality only gone to diffuse its light elsewhere. —Goethe.

Active in Good Works

Beautiful is the activity that works for good, and the stillness that waits for good; blessed the self-sacrifice of the one, and the self-forgetfulness of the other.

WELL, HERE'S ONE PLACE WINE AND GASOLINE WILL MIX

In its search for gasoline substitutes Italy is now looking to the wine crop, which was commercially heavy last year, as another source for motor fuel, according to a report to the Louisville District Office of the Commerce Department. A census of individual wine holdings is now being made with the view of ascertaining the amount which will be available for conversion into alcohol for use as motor fuel. To provide raw material for distillers, sugar beet acreage was increased last year. Low-grade wines, spoiled rico, fruits, and other agricultural products are also used by alcohol distilleries. Wood and charcoal gas is also being used for motor fuel in Italy.

THE NEW NATIONAL FARM PROGRAM

Here is a thoughtful comment on the new National Soil Conservation Law by E. O. O'Neal, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, in The Progressive Farmer:—

"The new program is decidedly more flexible than the AAA. It can be adapted to widely varying conditions, and it gives individual farmers more freedom in planning their farm operations. It is much simpler, and administration is lodged in the states, which meets constitutional objections. A broad program of soil conservation and land use is the major objective, and this is clearly in the national interest.

"Tenants, share croppers, and small producers are protected. Consumers are protected against scarcity and unduly high prices. Parity of income is the objective rather than price parity. Benefits are paid for good farming practices, which experiment stations have been advocating for years. Marketing agreements and orders under the AAA are left intact as well as provisions for expanding foreign and domestic markets on a sound basis.

"Among the weakness of the act is the possible difficulty of coordinating various plans submitted by different states. The refusal of some states to cooperate might jeopardize the program. In the absence of positive production control on such crops as cotton and tobacco, burdensome surpluses may be grown unless the states cooperate fully and effectively.

"The financing of the new program may develop into a source of weakness. If costs are paid out of the national treasury without benefit of processing taxes, opposition may appear. Under the AAA we interpreted the processing tax as "the farmer's tariff," and I feel that this principle is fundamentally sound."

The gigantic task of securing and keeping records of 26,000,000 individuals who will be entitled to benefits under the old age section of the Social Security Act is now being planned.

Eventually, leaders say, because of the Social Security Act, practically every person in the United States will have to be given a number and listed in the Government's enormous files.

MORE CORRESPONDENTS WANTED FOR RECORDER

The management of the Recorder has just completed plans for converting this newspaper into a seven column, twelve em page instead of the six column, 13 em page which has been used for quite some time.

This new change will give us considerable more space each week for news that we have been forced to omit in the past. The new management has realized this great need quite some time, but due to the great expense and unlimited amount of labor required, it has not been possible to do this until the present time. It is going to require approximately one month to make this change, or by July 15th you should be reading seven columns instead of six in the Recorder.

We wish to take this opportunity to thank all of our correspondents who have served us faithfully in the past, although many weeks your news items were not published. We hope that you can understand that there was no other reason for ommitting your news than we just didn't have the space. Your efforts are appreciated just the same whether your items are published or not.

We also note that there are several communities in this district that are not represented in the news columns. We are going to make every effort possible to have every community in Boone county and adjacent districts represented in the Recorder each week. We are asking you, our readers, that if you are living in a community not represented now, to communicate with us either by phone or postal card giving us the name or names of those you think might be interested in writing for this paper. If you desire to become a correspondent, just mail us a card giving your name, address and the name of the community that you will represent, and all necessary supplies will be forwarded to you immediately.

We are daily trying to give you a better paper, and with the cooperation of our readers we assure you that we will build such a paper that will be more interesting to you, and a valuable asset to your community and county as a whole.

THE EDITOR.

EXPLAINS LACK OF ADJUSTMENT PAYMENT FOR BURLEY TOBACCO

Lexington, Ky., June 9.—Last year's burley tobacco crop sold more than 2 cents a pound above its fair exchange or parity value, which is the reason the A. A. A. made no adjustment payment on the 1935 crop this spring, according to a letter from W. G. Finn, assistant director of the agricultural conservation program for the East-Central region. Copies of the letter have been sent from the College of Agriculture to county agents' and county committeemen.

"The determination of adjustment payments is not an arbitrary decision," says Mr. Finn, "but has been made in accordance with provisions of the burley contract and the notice of the continuation of the contract for 1935. The contract provides that 'the rates of the adjustment payments shall be determined by the Secretary of Agriculture and shall be such as will tend to give producers a fair exchange value for that portion of their 1935 production which is equal to domestic consumption.'

Figues to date indicate that the prices paid by farmers for commodities bought by them during the current year 1935-36 are only 76.87 per cent as high as they were on the average during the base period, specified in the Act, 1919-1928. In other words, to buy the same amount of goods with the proceeds of the sale of 100 pounds of burley of the 1935 crop, tobacco prices have to be 76.87 per cent as high as in the base period.

"The average price of burley tobacco during the 10-year base period was 22.3 cents a pound, and 76.87 per cent of 22.3 cents equals 17.1 cents. Therefore, the fair exchange value as defined in the Act for the 1935 crop of burley tobacco is 17.1 cents a pound. The average net sale price of the 1935 crop as computed from the official record of sales is 19.2 cents a pound, which is 2.1 cents a pound higher than the fair exchange value.

"Careful consideration has been given to the possibility of making an adjustment payment in regard to burley tobacco in 1935, but we have been informed that, according to the terms of the contract, and the provisions of the supplemental appropriation act, fiscal year 1936, it is legally impossible to make any such payment.

REFRIGERATION NEWS

Whether or not a refrigerator is a safe place to keep food is something that a surprisingly large number of people do not know how to determine. Especially is this true during the hot months of the summer season. Many people are surprised when they learn that a refrigerator can be cold and not cold enough, or even to be too cold for the proper keeping of food.

"But," said Mr. King, of Erlanger Electric Shop, local Frigidaire dealers and specialists in food preservation, "from now on everyone who uses a 1936 Frigidaire will be able to prove instantly whether or not its foods compartment is in proper condition to preserve the foods that are entrusted to its care.

"This will be done by the new food safety indicator, a small, compact little instrument built into the food compartment of every new Frigidaire, which tells instantly whether conditions are in the danger zones or in the safety zone. There are no complicated scales of figures which must be interpreted in the light of actual temperatures which in turn must depend upon the user's knowledge of what temperatures are best for food.

"This little instrument, which is a small, tubular glass enclosed thermometer, provides reading which indicate directly and without figures, the two zones of danger or the single zone of safety.

"Foods which are recognized as perishable usually will be rendered unfit for human consumption if they are permitted to remain for long in places that are too warm, or too cold. Long experience and many laboratory experiments prove that the upper limit of warmth is 50 degrees, and the lower limit of cold is 32 degrees. Between these two limits is what is called the safety zone for food.

"Proving that Frigidaire maintains this safety zone under all conditions is the purpose of this new food safety indicator which can be instantly seen every time the refrigerator door is opened."

Special demonstrations of this new device, together with a display of test equipment designed to prove low operating cost and fast freezing of plenty of ice, are being conducted daily at the firm's sales rooms, on Dixie Highway, Erlanger, Ky.

RABBIT COSTS $3.47, SQUIRREL $4.94, HE FINDS

It costs the average hunter $3.47 to kill a rabbit, $4.94 to kill a squirrel and $7.38 to kill a pheasant, according to L. C. Trent, Loveland, former president of the Southern Ohio Coon Hunters' Association.

The figures were shown in a report of a recent survey made by the Ohio Conservation Council. Trent told members of the local association at a meeting Thursday night in Loveland.

The cost is based on the cost of the hunter's gun, ammunition, transportation to and from the hunting grounds, license and other incidentals.

A. E. Martz, president, reported that ground hogs in danger of extinction in Ohio, will be protected by law until August 1. This order came from the Conservation Council he reported.

American industry today has 14,800,000 of its 18,000,000 employables at work.

Probably it will be amazing to many of us to find that the United States, which is supposed to be the largest food export country in the world, has for the last decade imported more foodstuffs than it exported.

RESETTLEMENT ADMINISTRATION HELPS FARMER

Raleigh, N. C., June 9.—It has been said millions of times but a Sunday school class up in Lynchburg, Virginia, has just given mute testimony that it isn't the intrinsic value of a gift that counts—"it's the spirit behind it."

Moreover, blessing still come disguised. R. C. Searcy, Acting Farm debt Adjustment Chief of the Resettlement Administration, reports that in the late winter of 1934 the tenant farm home of a Dinwiddie county family was destroyed by fire. All that the farmer had left was a wife and three small children.

His plight was explained to a rehabilitation supervisor of the Resettlement Administration. His industry and sobriety plus a yearning to "stay off" relief proved sufficient collateral for the government to find him a farm, buy him a mule, fertilizer and seed and feed enough for the family to subsist on until a crop was grown.

Under the supervision of Resettlement representatives, a shack became a cozy cabin, kept scrupulously clean. Many quarts of fruit and vegetables were canned—to sell some. All told, the little farm yielded sufficient income to pay off most of the advance made by the government.

When the Lynchburg class heard of this winning fight against adversity, four members made up a purse for the family—small in size but a big spiritual boost to another family helped first by the government to beat back the humiliation of a public dole.

FARM DEBT ADJUSTMENT

Many farmers who have financial problems—those who have lost their farms by foreclosure but wish to redeem them, those who need refinancing, those who wish to work out some plan for remaining on mortgaged farms—do not know that Voluntary Debt Adjustment Committees have been set up in almost every county in every state to give counsel to distressed debtors. In regard to this service for distressed debtors, The Progressive Farmer gives this information:—

"These committees have served as a source of information and counsel to distressed debtors. They have helped farmers work out equitable agreements so that they can pay their debts. They have stopped unnecessary foreclosures. In cases where a composition of debts seems impossible, extension agreements which will, in a sense, freeze the debts pending settlement and provide for the efficient operation of the farm have been worked out. As a result of the activities of these committees, many thousands of farms have been saved from foreclosure, and debts aggregating hundreds of millions of dollars have been adjusted.

"These committees are in the nature of farmers' councils in matters of debt adjustment. They are anxious to help farmers, and should be consulted about matters of this sort. You can find out about your local committee by asking your county agent."

U. S. OFFERS AID IN FOREST-TREE OR TERRACE PRACTICES

The planting of forest trees and construction of terraces, if carried out to meet specified requirements, are included in the list of practices which will qualify cooperating Kentucky farmers for soil building payments under the Agricultural Conservation Program.

For planting forest trees in 1936 on crop land or non-crop pasture land, between January 1, 1936, and October 31, 1936, the rate of payment is $5 per acre.

For terracing crop land between January 1, 1936, and October 31, 1936, with properly constructed terrace sufficient to give adequate protection against erosion, the payment is 40 cents per 100 feet of such terrace up to a total payment per acre not to exceed $2.

Although the above specified rates have been approved for soil-building practices, there is a soil-building allowance, or top limit for the soil-building payment. This top limit is calculated for any farm by multiplying by $1 the number of acres of soil-conserving crops on the farm in 1936, except that if this acreage is less than 10 acres the soil-building allowance is $10. For example, on a farm with 60 acres in soil-conserving crops in 1936, the soil-building allowance would be $60. The farmer would earn part or all of the $60, depending upon the amount to which he would be entitled for terracing and planting forest trees, or carrying out other approved soil-building practices on his farm in 1936.

One trouble with some husbands is that they expect their wives to be a combination of angel and

BLACK LEGION CHIEF ON TRIAL

"BRIGADIES GENERAL" EARNEST TO BE QUESTIONED IN CONNECTION WITH SLAYING AND FLOGGINGS

Jackson, Mich., June 4—The birthplace of the Republican party in 1854 as a mildly radical political instrument witnesses today the stern, public disrobing of a raging band of emerging Facists who were out among other objectives, to capture the Republican macnine in Jackson county.

Jackson's case against the Black Legion—accused here of causing the death of one, possibly two men, of four floggings and three house burnings in the course of their bid for power—is furthest advanced of any county in Michigan.

Owen Dudley, Republican, a vigorous young prosecutor, deserves credit for Jackson's promptitude. While Detroit and other infected communities vented their amazement in talk, Dudley acted. He set up a one-man grand jury which is now in the thick of unfrocking the night riders.

"Brig-Gen." Rev. Earnest, suspended guard in the Jackson State Prison, fumes resentfully in the county jail. He is to be questioned today .In Earnest's home police found a sub-machine gun, rifles, ammunition, robes and masks.

Founded Republican Club

Earnest founded and headed the Citizens' Republican Club, with which he hoped to captnre the county Republican organization.

Today, the Rev. Ralph C. Montague, Baptist minister at .nearby Rives Junction regaled Justice of the Peace Earnest. J. Rogers, the one-man jury, with his defiance of the legion.

A two-fisted World War veteran and country preacher, Dr. Montague dared the threats of hooded Legionnaires at a midnight pasture lot meeting last year. Invited to join, he went with friends to an initiation.

The anti-Catholic, anti-Jewish, anti- Negro bigotry of the speeches and the bloodcurdling sudieval tone of the oath affronted him. He refused to take the oath, attempting to reason with the committee instead. Guns were drawn.

"You're wrong" he told the black knights. "I'm a man of God and willing to die," a detail of knights hustled him out of the meeting.

City Belies Menace

A visitor to the tree-shaded Michigan industrial city of 60,000—the usual midwestern overgrown county seat, with smooth streets, a luxury hotel, handsome movie theaters, modern schools and tall church spires—find it difficult to believe that under the day-by-day surface of life there existed a secret movement bound to any crime, not excepting murder, by its ritual.

But in the court house the grand jury inquires into the Smith flogging, the death of Paul Every soon after he was beaten last year, and a mysterious death.

"We are looking into the case of a man found by the roadside," said Mr. Dudley. "His skull was fractured and it was dismissed as a hit-and-run automobile fatality. But new evidence has come to light which indicates, he too, may have been a legion victim."

Every widow and son the prosecutor said, were frightened out of Jackson and now live somewhere on Long Island, N. Y.

The buyer who always hunts a bargain price fails to realize that he always gets just about what he pays for, or a little less.

Wheat demonstrations have been started by several Metcalfe county farmers.

Robertson county Junior 4-H club members netted a profit of $108 from one performance of a play put on at the county high school.

what Irvin S. Cobb thinks about:

A Political Bystander.

HOLLYWOOD, CALIF.—If I were a Republican orator, I'd say the Democrats wouldn't need a keynoter at their convention when a hog-caller would be more suitable. If, on the other hand, I were a Democratic silver-tongue, I'd say the Republicans needed no campaign committee, whereas a set of pallbearers would be highly appropriate.

As a Republican spellbinder, I'd proclaim we were giving Puerto Rico four years in which gradually to cut loose from us, because, should the Democratic outfit win in November, by the end of those four years the Puerto Ricans will be used to having some independence and we'll be used to having none at all. As a Democratic champion, I'd come right back by pointing out that, since Puerto Rico would starve to death anyhow under a Republican administration, congress mercifully was taking steps to let the people down there get accustomed, by degrees, to the starvation process.

Irvin S. Cobb

As an innocent bystander, though, about all I can say is that, once the nominations have been made, it's a safe prediction that this summer will be fair and warmer.

Meandering Revenue Program.

THE members of the senate finance committee—poor things!—seem to be going forward with the new revenue program the same way a land crab makes headway—by traveling backward. At last accounts they were so snarled up in figures and language that any minute the rescue party was expected to rush in with bush-hooks and chop them loose.

However, out of the epileptic seizure into which these unfortunate patriots have been enmeshed, one concrete fact has emerged. There will be a slight exemption of dues on the profits of corporations making less than $15,000 a year. This will be a great boon for trunk stores down by the depot, brokerage firms handling second-hand railroad tunnels and dealers in Brazilian butterflies.

New Socialist Argument

THE trouble with being a socialist is that, no matter what you start to debate, you always wind up on the Tom Mooney case. Or at least, such was the situation until recently. Now, for any socialistic argument on any subject from German measles to the Great Wall of China, there is a new climax.

The tenants of a Bronx apartment house, mostly radicals, held a meting, and, in accordance with the best radical traditions, drew up resolutions demanding that the management do this and that. Having read the fiery protest, the superintendent addressed the gathering:

"Now aboudt not ledding nobody hang out vashing in the hallways—that's reasonable. I start beginning that reform right away.

"Und as to keeping garbages off the front fire escape—vell, vy nodt?

"But, say, vot do you suckers uxpect me do aboudt the Scottsboro boys?"

Sauce for the Goose.

WHEN a bricklayer feels upset and licks his wife that's temper and he gets $30 or 30 days. But when a flicker star goes on a similar tantrum and wrecks an expensive set, that's artistic temperament and the studio gives her some silver fox furs to calm her nerves.

Thus it goes. If a couple in, say, Peoria, break up, why, then, a couple in Peoria have broken up. But if the same thing occurs in Hollywood, it invariably is featured as a "nuptial rift."

A lad in Kansas takes his girl to Ye Olde New Era eatery for dinner, and what with the blue plate specials and the tip, the transaction amounts to $1.80, but otherwise creates no special excitement either locally or throughout the nation. Let the same thing happen to a couple of the least conspicuous of the movie colony, and 20 columnists fight their way to the wire to scatter the thrilling tidings.

Choosing a New "Buddha."

FROM the forbidden kingdom of Tibet—although goodness knows they never had any trouble keeping me out—comes word that after a two years' search a new "living Buddha" has been discovered. However, we already have our own grand lammer, the name being Joe Louis.

The news from Lhasa should give encouragement to the poor unhappy congressional committeemen who are prominently connected with the Townsend plan who'll condescend to talk to them.

You may quarrel with the Townsendites' bookkeeping, with their way of handling the contributed dimes of thousands of trusting oldsters, with their failure to explain where they're going to get the billions to pay those gaudy pensions or how the provisions of the distribution are to be enforced, but at least the leaders are too proud to endanger their social positions by being caught chit-chatting with a lot of congressmen.

POISON INSECT PESTS

Some timely hints for gardeners, whether they grow flowers or vegetables, are given by L. A. Niven in The Progressive Farmer:—

"Frequently insects injure flowers greatly. These pests may be controlled by spraying or dusting. During spring such sucking insects as plant lice and aphids frequently do great damage. Spray them with nicotine sulphate, using 1½ teaspoons to a gallon of water in which enough soap is dissolved to make thin suds. Spray so as to come in direct contact with the insects, as they suck the juice from the inside of the leaves or tender stems and can be killed only by putting something on them that will burn them. Because they are usually on the under side of the leaves one must get the poison there and directly on them.

"For any of the eating insects, use a stomach poison such as arsenate of lead, Dutox, magnesium arsenate, etc. For a spray use three teaspoons arsenate of lead to a gallon of water or five teaspoons magnesium arsenate, mixing in a small quantity of hydrated lime. With Dutox use two level teaspoons to a gallon of water.

"If one prefers to apply these poisons as a dust, mix one part arsenate of lead with four parts hydrated lime; one part magnesium arsenate to three parts hydrated lime; one part Dutox with two or three parts of lime or flour, and dust on thoroughly, covering all leaves and tender twigs.

"Everyone with even a few flowers or vegetables about the place needs a small spray pump or a hand dust gun. The directions given for dusting or spraying flowers are also correct for vegetables."

Brick brooders and brooder houses are being built by many of the Lawrence county farmers.

High quality lambs are being raised by Harrison county farm leaders.

CURES EFFECTED BY FEVER!

It's a minature broadcasting station operating on a frequency of 12 million kilccycles, known by non-professional men as a "fever machine." This machines generates an artificial fever of from 104 to 106 degrees in the human body.

In the offices of the Queen Medical Clinic, 603 Vine St., Bell Block, Cincinnati, Ohio, one of these "fever machines" is in constant use. It is used specifically for the treatment of rheumatism, arthritis, gout, neuritis, sciatica, myositis, and bursitic.

The heat from this machine destroys the germs in the body just at heat sterilizes water. This treatment is used successfully by the Mayo Clinic of Rochester, Minn.

Fever and other modern scientific treatments given by the Queen Medical Clinic are under the supervision of a qualified physician and surgeon specializing in this work.

MRS. JOHN FELDHAUS

Mrs. John Feldhaus of Union, Ky., passed away Monday morning at her home near Union after a recent illness. Mrs. Feldhaus was 50 years old last Saturday and has been a resident of Boone county her entire life.

She leaves her husband, John, five boys: Hayes, Albert, Charles, Ralph and William, two girls: Sarah and Thelma. Also she leaves a host of friends and relatives that are going to miss her friendship thrcughout this community.

Mrs. Feldhaus was a member of the Beaver Baptist church, where she has been a faithful and obedient servant in the work of her Lord.

Funeral services will be conducted at the East Bend M. E. church, (date at this writing not known) and Rev. Johnson, pastor of the Big Bone Baptist church will conduct the funeral. Chambers and Grubbs have charge of the funeral arrangements.

AMUSEMENT TAX TO GO ON SUNDAY

Frankfort, Ky., June 4.—The amusement or admissions tax, exacting a levy on admissions to theaters, night clubs, skating rinks, public bathing places and other forms of amusements will take effect at 1 a. m., Sunday, it was announced today by the State Tax Commission.

The tax is not applicable where the admission charge is 10 cents or less. Thereafter the charge is one cent where the admission fee is from 11 to 18 cents; two cents on charges of from 19 to 28 cents and three cents on charges of from 29 to 38 cents.

The fee then rises one cent on each five cents above 38 cents. Proceeds from amusements devoted solely to charitable, educational or religious purposes are exempt from the tax.

1030 WORK SHEETS FILLED OUT AGRICULTURAL CONSERVATION PROGRAM

Ten thousand and twenty work sheets covering more than 90 per cent of the farm land in Boone County has been filled out under the Agricultural Conservation program, according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent.

The primary purpose of the program is to conserve and improve the Nation's soil fertility and halt wasteful exploitation of soil resources. Farmers may earn payments for increasing the acreage of crops that conserve the soil by adopting practices that increase soil fertility.

The work sheet which is filled out contains spaces for recording the acreage of crops harvested in 1935 and other information about the farm. It should be filled out with the help of a committeeman or other qualified person. Filling out and signing the work sheet does not place the signer under any obligation or bind him in any way, but it is necessary that the work sheet be filed at the County Office before he can apply for payment.

Boone County has been divided into six communities in the new Association set-up as follows: 1. Burlington and Florence—2. Petersburg and Grant—3. Hebron and Constance—4. Hamilton and Carlton—5 Union and Beaver—6. Walton and Verona. Beginning next week a meeting will be held in each of the six communities to elect permanent committeemen. Each of the six communities will elect three regular committeemen and one alternate from among the members of the Association living in the community who will serve for the remainder of the year 1936.

All persons who have not filled out a work sheet for their farm are urged to do so immediately

LOCAL FARM OWNERS PRAISE ELECTROLUX MODERN REFRIGERATION

HERE'S WHAT MRS. GUNNARD E. NELSON OF CASSELTON, N. DAKOTA, WRITES:

"I am very glad to have a chance to tell you how very much my Kerosene Electrolux has helped me in a hundred different ways. Besides its being a food saver, it has given me a chance to have such a variety in meals. As for having company, I find it isn't a chore any more. I can fix frozen salads so long ahead of time there needn't be any last minute rush to fix them so they'll be fresh."

KEROSENE Electrolux brings to farm homes anywhere all the comforts and conveniences that have made the famous gas-operated Electrolux the choice for finest city homes and apartments. This ideal farm refrigerator insures perfect food protection at all times . . . all the ice cubes you want . . . new delicious frozen desserts . . . greater freedom from kitchen work.

Nor is that all! Electrolux runs for only a few pennies a day! One filling of the tank lasts a week or more. Owners find that Electrolux actually pays for itself with its big savings on food bills and on refrigerating cost.

Electrolux is able to operate so efficiently because of its simple refrigerating principle. It has no moving parts to wear. A wickless glow-type kerosene burner does all the work . . . eliminates depreciation due to moving, wearing parts. Electrolux requires no daily attention . . . needs no water. Write today for free literature.

THE BOONE COUNTY RECORDER

BURLINGTON, KY., THURSDAY, JUNE 11, 1936

Peaches, apples, pecans and sweet potatoes constitute some of the major crops on the farm of H. R. McUmber, Weakley County, Tenn. Here is shown his peach orchard. This young orchard borders a field of sweet potatoes.

Cold Weather Only One Foe Of Indiscreet Peach Blossom

YOU can't grow your peaches, and eat them too, unless you spray them.

The peach is a child of destiny in the fruit world. It is indiscreet about coming out in the Spring, blossoming gaily when freezes are common farther North, and when these same freezes are apt to swoop down deep into the South. But, cold weather isn't the big enemy of the peach. What escapes late Spring freezes and frost, may succumb to scab, brown rot, curculio, scales and leaf curl.

The most common disease of the peach, say plant pathologists of the University of Tennessee, is brown rot.

The most abundant scale insect is the San Jose scale. A dormant spray of three per cent lubricating oil is advised.

Digging out by hand, or gassing with paradichloro benzene is suggested for controlling the peach borer. Gassing is not advised for trees under two years of age.

For brown rot, these sprays have been successful. First: Dri-mix sulphur, with lead arsenate added in the first four sprays. Second, lead arsenate plus lime in first, second and third sprays. For the last two sprays, use flotation sulphur and Dutox. Rates of mixtures follow: Flotation sulphur, 20 pounds to 200 gallons of water. Dry mix, 8-8-½-50. Lead arsenate, one pound to 50 gallons of water. Dutox calls for six pounds to 200 gallons of water.

Tennessee Wool Better Handled

TENNESSEE wool producers are finishing up a series of cooperative wool sales which began the first week in May in 40 towns.

As a preliminary, some 30 shearing demonstrations were staged under auspices of the U. T. extension service. Points in grading and cleaning wool were discussed and actual work done. These demonstrations resulted in obtaining better handling of the wool.

C. C. Flanery, U. T. extension specialist in sheep husbandry, stressed means of preventing rejections and eliminating conditions leading to low grading of the wool. He warned against poor cleaning methods. Proper tying, to facilitate handling was emphasized.

Beginning June 5, lamb shipping dates were set in East Tennessee counties, and will last through the first week in July. The lamb market period closes at Knoxville July 10. The annual purebred ram sale at Nashville, July 15, will be the high spot of the season for producers.

Ewe sales and the annual 4-H Club boys show and sale, will be held at Nashville, November 12-13.

JUNE WORK SUGGESTIONS

GENERAL FARM WORK—Sow soybeans, cowpeas, Sudan grass; strip bluegrass seed; cut wheat, rye, barley and oats, clover for hay, timothy for hay, second crop of alfalfa hay, orchard grass for hay; cultivate the corn.

LIVESTOCK—Wean pigs, treat sheep for stomach worms, finish selling early lambs, sell broilers.

FRUIT—Spray apples for codling moth, peaches for brown rot, cherries for leaf spot.

Hay Quality Important

Hay quality, always important, should cause more thought to early cutting. This is especially true of alfalfa, clover and timothy. Old, woody, coarse hays furnish much less feed than do young and tender plants. Of course, hay can be cut when too watery and before it has developed to its best feed value. However, the mistake is more often made by allowing it to over-mature. Early cutting of clover makes for a better seed crop, which comes along in late August on the second growth.

Sudan grass makes an excellent supplementary pasture for the dry months of July and August. It should be sowed early in June. Likewise, soybeans and cowpeas should be sowed early in the month.

More attention should be given to early corn cultivation. Early, shallow plowing controls weeds before they get a start. Thorough cultivation in May and early June is far better than struggling with big weeds later in the season.

Spray Fruit Trees

Codling moth on apple trees should be cleaned up in June. The first brood is still active then, and if it is well subdued there should be little bother with the second brood. See your county agent for details of codling moth control.

Peaches should be sprayed two or three weeks before they ripen for the control of brown rot. Wetable sulphur is used.

After cherries are picked they should be given a thorough spraying with sulphur to control leaf spot. This is highly important.

Eight weeks is about the proper age to wean the pigs. To permit them to run with the sow longer is just a drain on the sow and does the pigs no good. Pigs begin to eat grain when about three weeks old, and should then be provided with a creep where they can eat unmolested by the sow. If they have been properly fed grain, weaning will be easy.

All old sheep and all lambs to be carried on the farm into July and August should be treated for stomach worms in June, and every month thereafter. Lambs sold this month need not be treated. This matter of stomach worms is becoming increasingly important. New kinds are appearing in Kentucky and Tennessee.

They Build Their Own Utopia

The Kentucky College of Agriculture claims the lead of all states in its work for older farm boys and girls who have "graduated" from 4-H Clubs or are too old to be members. In Kentucky, 18 years is the age limit for 4-H'ers.

In 1930, Carl W. Jones, agricultural agent in Todd county, was called to the college at Lexington and given the job of "fathering" the older farm boys and girls of the state.

As a name for his new work, Mr. Jones selected "Utopia" as the ideal toward which his boys and girls might work. The training was to be principally in leadership and recreation, although there would be projects much as in 4-H work.

Utopia club work is going forward in 24 Kentucky counties, with a total membership of approximately 1,000 young men and women.

Projects include tobacco growing, farm accounts, small fruits, orchards, landscaping, poultry raising, dairying, beef calf production, permanent pastures, farm shop, and canning, clothing and room improvement for girls.

Plans call for a canning exhibit and livestock judging team at the State Fair.

Three Utopia camps are in the 1936 schedule.

The state champion gold medal Utopia girl is Miss Nell Jasper Barnes of Pulaski county, on landscaping work.

IT'S JUNE In Kentucky

By P. E. Karraker

Fayette County Farmer and U. of Ky. Faculty Member.

"'Long about knee deep in June,
"Tell you what I like the best:
"'Bout the time strawberries melt
"On the vine—some afternoon
"Like to jes' get out and rest,
"And not work at nothing else!"

P. E. Karraker,

June is quite a month on the farm, but not in just the way James Whitcomb Riley thought of it. It is a busy and an important month on the farm, but so are all months on the present day farm.

Spring comes along with seeding of the early crops and plowing and preparation of the seed bed for the summer crops.

One of the smaller-growing earlier varieties of corn should be used for the late planting, unless for the silo, to make sure it matures ahead of frost.

Except for the danger of winter killing, barley is an excellent feed crop and deserves more attention in Kentucky than it has received. It does not yield as well as corn, but does make good yields on productive land. Since it is imperative that we grow less corn in Kentucky because of our rolling land, and the erosion that occurs when this crop is grown, we could well consider growing more barley.

Pasture land should be watched and not overgrazed at this season of the year.

Cultivation is imperative now to destroy and control weeds.

Soybeans can be planted any time this month. They get a better start after the weather is warm.

Profitable As Corn

Sloping land in good sod could be plowed in the late Summer and barley seeded in the last half of September. Considering the fact that the barley is off the land in June and that lespedeza seeded in the Spring probably will make a hay crop in late August, it may be just as profitable to crop land in this way as in corn. Two or more crops of barley can be grown consecutively, with Korean lespedeza between, before the land is seeded down to a grass legume sod crop for several years.

With most of the tobacco set, it is important that good sized plants be used for the late set tobacco. Fertilizers which have not been applied to the tobacco land should be applied along the row before the plants are set or, as soon as possible after setting is finished. Unless the fertilizer is sodium nitrate or some other soluble nitrogen fertilizer, it should be placed a few inches in the soil. If applied before setting, close to but not directly in the soil where the plants will be set. Fertilizers placed in the soil where the plants are set are likely to cause a poor stand when the weather is dry at setting. There is no other adverse effect on the crop from fertilizer in a dry season, although the crop may be held down by lack of water so that the fertilizer does not have a chance to increase crop yields. It is to be expected that the well fertilized crop will come through a dry season better than on poor land.

With most of the tobacco set, it is important that good-sized plants be used for the late set tobacco, so that they will grow off rapidly and partially overcome the late start. Fertilizers which have not been applied to the tobacco land should be applied along the row before the plants are set or as soon as possible after setting is finished.

The first cutting of alfalfa will be made this month. Mr. Karraker warns, however, that it should not be cut too early. "Wait," he advises, "until the plants are pretty well in bloom. Early cutting weakens the plants for later cuttings." (Right) County agent inspects a farmer's alfalfa hay.

To Increase Yield

If the tobacco crop does not grow off as it should and if the leaves are a pale green color, indicating a shortage of nitrogen, and if also it is known that ample supplies of phosphate and potash are available, it probably will pay to side-dress the crop with a soluble nitrogen fertilizer, such as sodium nitrate or ammonium sulfate, at the rate of 150 to 300 pounds per acre. Care should be taken not to get the materials on the leaves. Tobacco can be side-dressed in this way any time until it is half grown.

On thin land and when farm manure was not applied, these treatments will greatly increase the size of the top leaves, improve their quality and considerably increase yield. I am thinking of Burley tobacco. An adequate supply of nitrogen is more important in getting yield than quality for Burley.

If soybeans are to be grown for hay and have not been planted earlier, they can be planted at any time this month. In the average year I have had better success seeding in this month than in May. The beans get away to a better start planted after the weather is warm, and are more likely to get ahead of the weeds.

A few acres of Sudan grass for an emergency hay, pasture, or soiling crop seeded the first of this month will furnish a lot of pasture during August.

June Cultivation Valuable

June cultivation of corn and tobacco is the most valuable. If a good seed bed has been prepared and many of the weed seed germinated and destroyed before the crop is up and if this is continued by cultivation when the crop is small, weeds will be pretty well under control. Little cultivation will be required after the crop is of considerable size. Practically the only value of cultivating corn and likely tobacco also, is in destroying or controlling weeds.

Barley and wheat will be cut this month so make sure the binder is in good shape.

Red clover and the first cutting of alfalfa hay will be made this month. I like to cut red clover before it gets too mature. A more nutritious and palatable hay is made than if cut later, with no great reduction in yield. Alfalfa should not be cut too early. Wait until the plants are pretty well in full bloom. Early cutting weakens the plants for later cuttings.

BLACK BASS MOST POPULAR

By DICK WOOD

Landing a 10-pound large-mouth bass in a Florida lake near Lynne

THE black bass, small-mouth or large-mouth, is the most popular game fish that swims in American inland waters.

There have been many hot arguments as to which is the gamer, bass or trout. Certainly the bass is no inferior fighter. The small-mouth bass taken on a flyrod will put up a fight not surpassed by any fresh water game fish of equal weight.

The small-mouth is generally taken in rapids, fast water over a rocky bottom, or around rock ledges. The large-mouth frequent lakes, ponds and still holes in rivers, prefering weed beds and lily pads for cover. Dark splotches of the small-mouth are inclined to be vertical. In the large-mouth, the dark line is lengthwise of the fish. Scales of the former are smaller.

Plenty of Fight

The main points of identification are the mouth, and cheek scales. The angle of the small-mouth's maxillary stops under the eye; in the large-mouth it extends back of the eye. The small-mouth has 17 rows of scales on the cheek to 10 or 11 on the large-mouth. The small-mouth is also apt to announce its cognomen in the way it fights, because no large-mouth can equal it.

Both are taken by bait fishing, but the most popular method of taking the large-mouth is by casting "plugs." The small-mouth takes flies readily, but especially nature lures and spinner flies. The most killing lure I used last season for small-mouths was a Peck's underwater minnow in the Babcock pattern. They just ate it up!

One of the best early season lures for the bass is the helgramite, found under the stones of mountain streams. Other favorite baits are minnows, frogs, spring lizards, grasshoppers, crickets, crawfish, and bugs. Flyrod artists will need a box full of popular bass bugs, in about 1-0 size.

Watch For Strike

Bait casting is generally done from boats. Start the season with a new 18-lb. test, silk braided line and a few half-ounce lures. I am partial to the River Runt and Crab Wiggler lures; although a jointed minnow is second best. Under-water lures should predominate. A few weedless feathered lures are needed to get among the pads. Make your casts close in under over-hanging banks, next to rock ledges and weed patches.

When fly fishing for small-mouth, let your lure ride down with the rapids, pulling it by submerged rocks or over underwater crevices where the bass hide. Work the big pools. Let your underwater lure sink, then retrieve a yard at a time, imparting life-like action. When fishing surface bugs, leave them motionless on the water for a minute, then twitch the rod tip, and look out for the strike.

JEST A-WHITTLIN' AN' A-THINKIN'

BY PETE GETTYS

There's all kinds of weather signs—some of 'em fairly accurate—us fellers on the farm use—at least get a good deal of fun out of it: rain crow a-hollering—almanac signs—an' things like that—but the beatin'est thing anybody ever heard of was a feller experimentin' and studyin' to work outa way to tell how hot or cold it is by a cricket's chirp, unless it gets colder than 50 degrees, for when it gets chillier than that crickets jest don't sing. Nearly everybody knows that the warmer the weather the faster a cricket chirps—the way to do is to take out your watch and count the chirps in a second and add 40 to it, and that's the temperature.

An' talkin' about crickets, the bug books say their ears are in their legs—and that cicadas—we call 'em locusts—all the females are deaf—an' the funny part about it, that "zizzy" sound they make is supposed to be a love song and his best gal can't even hear him singin.'

—o—

In Ireland the pig's known as "The Gentleman that pays the rent"—and he's about that here, too — 'cause a hog'll produce more meat from 100 lbs. of feed than any other animal. He'll eat and grow and fatten on more kinds of feed than will any other critter—an' hogs can be sold at any time or age or weight.

Ever look in the dictionary and see the different things "hog" means? "A sheep about a year old that has never been shorn;" "To cut short a horse's mane so as to make it bristly."

—o—

Surely no more colossal ignorance could exist than some town fellers' sense, or lack of it, about things in the country. The other day a new neighbor came to borrow a gun to shoot a "chimney sweep" that sang all night. It was a mocking bird, and he thought it a "chimney sweep" 'cause it sat up on his chimney and sang—and his wife complained 'cause the quail waked her up at daylight "Bob-whiting" and called the bull a "male cow"—and fussed because there was water in the buttermilk.

Eatin' peas with your knife and usin' toothpicks maybe ain't the best modern manners, but a lot of fellers in the country who do this have got a lot more brains in their head, and know a mocking bird from a "chimney sweep."

Truth is there's a lot of comfort and satisfaction in breakin' some of the rules of etiquette—eating chicken with your fingers and sopping big hot sody biskits in the gravy, and "sucking up" your coffee like the old folks used to. May not be just the thing to do—but it makes 'em taste mighty good.

Purebred breeding Herefords on W. T. Moffitt's lespedeza pasture, Warren County, Tenn.

Missouri Style Stock Farm in Central Tennessee

W. T. Moffitt Manufactures Roasts of Beef and Porterhouse Steaks on the Hoof in Warren County

By G. H. DACY

WITHIN rifle range of the historic old Daniel Boone Trail which bisects Tennessee and penetrates to the famed Bluegrass of nonpareil Kentucky is an outstandingly successful stock farm of the kind you customarily might expect to see in central Missouri but which is rather rare in the latitude of Memphis.

And not so far from where the early settlers from Virginia and North Carolina carved a portion of the future State of Tennessee from a virgin wilderness, W. T. Moffitt of Warren County today raises breeding Herefords and manufactures porterhouse steaks and roasts of beef on the hoof for future consumption.

Moffitt, the name of this stockman, may not signify much to you unless you know him, but to the people of Warren and contiguous counties, it stands for substantiality, patient persistency, and reputable reliability.

Expands Operations

Mr. Moffitt owns and lives on the farm his father cultivated successfully. The Moffitts rank among the leaders of Plainview Community; one of the oldest communities in Warren County. Where his father was satisfied to farm the original Moffitt home place of 123 acres, W. T., the son, has expanded his operations and increased his herd until he now operates three farms merged into one. As soon as he was financially able to, Mr. Moffitt bought the interests of the other heirs to his father's farm. Subsequently he purchased two adjoining farms, 155 and 100 acres in extent. He now owns and operates a well-organized stock farm of 378 acres, his postoffice address being Rock Island, Tennessee.

Mr. Moffitt is president of the Warren County Farm Bureau, director of one of the leading banks, director of the Warren County Fair Association, a leading counselor and advisor in 4-H club work as well as an outstanding local leader in civic, church, and school activities. Here is a countryman of unselfish instincts who works for the upbuilding and progress of the community and county in which he lives with similar zest and zeal to that which he exercises in the improvement of his private farm and herd of registered Herefords.

Practical Stock Farming

The Moffitt stock farm and its systems of management are not presented as models for the entire South, although many establishments would benefit by revising their methods to coincide with those of this Hereford breeder. Everything fed on the farm is raised within its borders, with the exception of cottonseed meal. That is practical stock farming in the fullest meaning of the term. In addition to the fertility scattered by the grazing animals, more than 100 spreader loads of manure are annually hauled to the neighboring fields as top dressing.

The Moffitt farm supports 36 acres of permanent bluegrass and other native grass as well as 115½ acres in rotational pastures. Approximately 100 acres is cropped annually; some 60 acres consists of woodland, and feed lots, roads, and waste and idle land on this farm aggregate about 20 acres. Around 20 acres is cropped to corn, the average crop being about 1,300 bushels with approximately 70 tons of corn stover as the by-product. The oats field, ranging from 15 to 18 acres generally yields about 12 tons of feed; at least ten tons of hay are harvested from the five-acre patch of alfalfa. A 15-acre field of Korean lespedeza, in addition to providing good summer grazing, produces an average hay crop of one ton to the acre. Twenty acres in wild hay is also mowed each year and yields around 22 tons. Only six acres is devoted to wheat, enough to provide sufficient straw. Considerable sorghum is grown in the cropping system as a worth-while cattle feed. The pastures are mowed twice annually; winter rye, crimson clover, and wheat are grown for winter pasturage. Rye and crimson clover are sown when the corn is cultivated the last time.

Mr. Moffitt usually shreds corn fodder to facilitate its efficient use by the cattle and work animals.

Beau Delaware V, the herd bull, is distinguished, in the center of the picture, by his horns.

The Moffitt farm layout was planned with stock-farming in mind. Well-built buildings are satisfactorily located in relation to pastures. The farm is under fence, cedar posts being used because of their long life and general utility. A new addition to the big barn was recently built of timber logged and milled on the home farm.

Started Herd In 1926

Mr. Moffitt embarked in the Hereford breeding business in 1926 with a foundation herd of 12 purebred cows of Fairfax blood and a registered bull of Anxiety lineage.

Any animal, which does not satisfy his owner's ideal of the standard toward which he is striving, is culled from the breeding herd, fed out and fattened for beef. Under this system, the Moffitt herd increased to a population of 26 cows, 24 yearlings and two bulls by 1934. Today, it features 66 purebred cows of Hereford breeding.

Herefords have always ranked high as meat producers; no beef breed excels them in early maturity. The "white-faces" have probably improved more in the United States than any other beef breed. Herefords weigh heavy for their size, and are of first rank in constitutional vigor. It is one of the largest breeds of beef cattle, with males frequently weighing 2,200 pounds and females 1,500 pounds or more. Herefords respond quickly to good pasture and grain by distributing well-marbled flesh over their bodies. The Hereford excels other breeds in beautifully formed shoulders, evenly covered with flesh at market time. The Hereford is superior in quality, fine bone and hair and a mellow, elastic skin. Which probably explains why Mr. Moffit selected Herefords.

Between 10 and 12 calves are debarred from the Moffitt herd annually because of defects which this experienced breeder believes sufficient justification for their culling and fattening for beef. These youngsters are fattened on grass and such grain as cottonseed meal and corn-and-cob meal feed. The fat stock when ripe for market are shipped to local terminal markets where the animals command top prices. They practically qualify in the baby beef class.

Climate Favorable

The aim in handling the breeding herd is to maintain the animals in healthy, thrifty condition, allowing neither cows nor herd sires to get too fat. The climate is especially favorable; the beef breeders run outdoors practically the year around. Breeding stock is sold through advertisements placed in breeders' journals and livestock periodicals. Mr. Moffitt has built a reputation as a man who is particularly careful and thorough in culling his registered cattle.

It takes time to start a purebred cattle business like that of Mr. Moffitt. There are lean years when the herd is being developed and when the reputation of the breeder is being built. This Tennessee stockman tided his operations over that trying period by feeding beef on considerable scale as a source of current income. As the breeding herd increased, he gradually reduced specialized beef-manufacture in favor of better blood for breeding distribution. He has ready sale in the neighboring counties and his state at large for all the high quality Herefords which he can produce.

Gentlewomen of Virginia Take The Lead

Built-in clothes closets on the back porch provide storage for work clothes and tools and conceal unsightly articles from view. (Below) Rock from the chimney of the old home, torn down, forms an attractive mantel in Mrs. Sallie Bing's new bungalow, Free Union, Va.

IN the findings of the Federal Farm Housing Survey, rural Virginia was shocked to learn that 45 per cent of owners' homes and 61 per cent of non-owners' homes were in poor condition; that 79 per cent of the white population, and 99 per cent of the colored, carried water a distance of from 200 to 400 feet; that only 10 per cent of whites had flush toilets or bathtubs in their homes; and only about one-third of the houses were fairly adequately screened. The figures on electrified homes ran much lower, and as to interior furnishings—well, when the home demonstration agent took a look around, a drab picture was presented.

So the Department of Home Economics of the State Co-operative Extension work called into conference at Blacksburg, the Departments of Engineering and Rural Sociology. As a result, a long-time program for better rural housing was mapped out, which is showing splendid results after an intensive campaign effort started last year and continuing through 1936.

At present, the 59 county home demonstration agents, working under the direction of the State Staff of which Miss Maude E. Wallace is the Executive Head, are pushing this program.

Variety of Improvements

Forty-four counties in which home demonstration work is being done are putting on a campaign which ties in with some department of home improvement.

Accomac is stressing improved bedroom units and remodelling out-of-date clothing; Alleghany, improved storage space; Amelia and Amherst, general storage; Campbell, better food storage; Augusta, sanitation and house repair; Botetourt, kitchen improvement and style in dress; Brunswick, water in the house and sanitation.

Carroll is busy with a kitchen improvement campaign; Dinwiddie, house repairs and better furnishings; Essex and Goochland folks say they must have more livable living rooms; Fairfax, house repair and improved housekeeping equipment; Franklin, storage and sanitation; Frederick, Greene, Highland, Louisa and Madison folks are doing all round repair jobs; Giles women are looking to better kitchen storage; Halifax is working toward water in every home and Henry County women want better storage space for foods in Winter.

James City County is repairing houses and furniture; Lee County is aiming at better pantry and kitchen utensil storage; Montgomery is installing water systems; Nansemond and Norfolk Counties have on as neighborly contest, the reconditioning of house furnishings.

Much Accomplished

Nottoway, Prince Edward and Wythe are among those realizing the need for more and better storage facilities in the home; Orange combines storage spaces and sanitation; Prince William, house repairs; Pittsylvania, better food care; Rockbridge and Shenandoah are to have more convenient and cheerier kitchens; Spotsylvania is urging better home sanitation and general repairs; Tazewell women have a clothing project which will be climaxed with a fashion show.

Bedford, Chesterfield, Henrico and Powhatan are planning landscape gardening.

Roanoke has a heavy registration of contestants in a campaign for the "Elimination of Hazards in the Home."

Albemarle County is doing an outstanding piece of work under their campaign slogan "Bring the Old House Up-To-Date." One hundred and fifty women are entrants, each having selected for herself what her home most needs to bring it up-to-date and then concentrating on that need.

Much has been accomplished along sanitation lines in many counties, conspicuous among these being Prince William.

So Virginia swings back to her proud heritage, the home of country gentlemen and fine country homes, and it is the gentlewomen of Virginia who are accomplishing the job.

DEMONSTRATION

Knowledge exchanged is cooking sense gained. Along about right now, far-seeing farm women gather together to enrich their ideas on conservation by canning. Many of grandma's old stand-bys still meet the test of taste, all right, but she's always open for new ideas.

Demonstrations such as these are the first deposits on growing accounts of pantry happiness and home thrift.

APPLICATION

Putting ideas to work and storing away a treasure chest of meal-time delights is the next step for this home-minded farm wife. Well she knows those days which will arrive when unexpected company arrives; when the farm garden and orchard are barren of their store-houses of wholesome ripe, fresh food; when a breath of the home garden in canned deliciousness will warm a Winter day.

REPUTATION

Whether it's your community canning competition, the county or state fair, or even the big national contests, almost every farm wife gets just as big a thrill out of adding to her home canning triumphs as dad does with his livestock blue ribbons.

Farm Building Booms Over All Kentucky

College of Agriculture Distributes Thousands of Plans for Barns, Homes and Other Structures

By C. A. LEWIS

JUDGING from the number of requests for building plans being received these days at the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station, farmers are ready to launch one of the greatest building programs in the history of American agriculture.

Prof. J. B. Kelley, head of the agricultural engineering department, reports that since last November his mail has been almost packed with requests for plans or for information about all kinds of new buildings and equipment and about the remodeling of farm structures.

For several years, the Kentucky College of Agriculture, through its extension service, has been promoting improved ventilation in tobacco curing, stressing in particular the use of ridge ventilators on barns.

Practically every new tobacco barn now being built in Kentucky has the type of ridge ventilator designed by the college, through the assistance of growers in various parts of the state.

Many New Houses

In addition, thousands of barns are being remodeled each year, the principal job in the remodeling being the construction of the ridge ventilator.

New construction and remodeling on farms throughout the state includes all kinds of buildings and equipment. New houses are beginning to appear in every section of the state. Substantial and imposing as the old mansions were built, many of them now are over 100 years old and are in a poor state of repair.

The relatively small, modern-type farm house, much as generally seen in the cornbelt, is beginning to be seen all over the state. The huge, brick or stone mansion represents another age, when construction was relatively cheap, when families were large and when labor was plentiful and wages not high.

Rigid milk ordinances in Kentucky cities, many of them rather recent in their origin, have compelled wide interest in sanitary milk equipment. The College of Agriculture designed a simple and inexpensive milk house for farmers selling whole milk. It has found wide use on many farms in the last few years.

Economical and Fireproof

The college recommends the use of asbestos-cement shingles for covering farm buildings, other than dwellings. This type of construction does away with painting, with the exception of window and door frames. The first cost is slightly more, but the saving is considerable in the life of the average farm building. The building is sheeted diagonally, the sheeting covered with felt paper, and the asbestos-cement shingles then put on. Not only is there a saving in paint, but the shingles help to make the building fire-proof.

In the construction of new barns or the remodeling of old ones, Professor Kelley recommends the hip-roof. It costs only a little more than the gable roof and adds materially to the hay and storage space.

The Kentucky Experiment Station has designed a simple portable hog house that is finding favor on many farms. It is simple and inexpensive, provides shelter in Winter and shade in Summer, and can be moved about so that the hogs may be raised on clean ground free from worm infestation.

Self-feeders for chickens, hogs, sheep and other livestock are growing in favor. The Kentucky college has plans for all kinds, and thousands have been distributed in this and other states.

Water Supply Aided

Recent dry years have brought the farm water supply to the front in much of Kentucky. Many farmers were actually without water in 1930 and sometimes in other years. In addition, many stock men have come to realize that a good supply of pure water pays. It is especially essential in dairying, and helps to reduce feed bills in raising beef cattle, sheep and hogs. Thousands of water holes have been cleaned out and walled up in the last five years. Concrete and stone have been freely used in this work. On many of the better stock farms, concrete tanks are being used, thereby insuring the stock a supply of sanitary drinking water.

Professor Kelley and his assistants advise farmers and others to give careful consideration to building plans. Avoid mistakes by building from carefully prepared plans, they urge. Here are some points which they emphasize:

1. Select the building site carefully.
2. Decide on the number of persons, or animals, and the amount of feed and equipment to be housed.
2. Consider the future requirements of the structure.
4. Consult your County Agent or Home Demonstration Agent, local lumber dealers and builders regarding plans and materials.
5. Consult farmers who have similar buildings and examine them for ideas.
6. Decide upon the interior equipment to be used and obtain plans and instructions from the manufacturers for its installation.
7. Obtain or prepare the plans to be used.
8. Obtain the services of a competent builder.
9. Remember that good plans aid in determining the exact size and arrangement of the buildings and equipment, prevent expensive mistakes and save labor and building costs.

Concrete and stone improve farm water supply.

Hip-roof replaces gable on this barn.

"My New Kentucky Home" has four rooms and bath, a living room, two bedrooms, kitchen and bath. The contrast between this type of house and old, rambling farm mansions is decided.

The Kentucky College of Agriculture has plans for this and other portable hog houses.

Agricultural Brevities

Forests

Actual figures on the value of forest growth in controlling and preventing floods are brought out in tests by the Forest Service of the Department of Agriculture.

In the Ohio Valley, forest soil is 15 to 30 per cent more porous than field soil and absorbs 50 times as much water as bare soil. Forest soils absorb more water not only in single storms, but in successive rains, an important item in flood control.

On 23 small watersheds at the headwaters of the Mississippi, the flood flow from forested watersheds for one year was only 38 cubic feet of water per second per square mile. But the flood water from grassed and abandoned agricultural lands was 432 cubic feet, more than 10 times as much.

National Forests have gained 6,176,492 acres in area through purchases approved by the National Forest Reservation Commission since July 1, 1934, the U. S. Department of Agriculture reports.

Great Britain

The number of pigs contracted for delivery to bacon curing establishments in England during 1936, under the provisions of the Pigs and Bacon Marketing Scheme, is approximately 2,000,000 head compared with 1,855,000 head in 1935. Under the 1936 contract, at least 25 per cent of the total number had to be delivered during the first four months of the year. A special bonus was paid farmers who delivered in excess of the number during this period.

According to the new basic import quota for cured pork, as announced by the British Board of Trade, the imports from non-Empire sources during the four months May-August are limited to 203,107,000 pounds.

Death

Death on the highways will be slowed down when road and traffic officials put into effect generally those regulations of proved value that have already been widely adopted. The mere lack of uniformity in traffic regulations, says Thomas H. MacDonald, Chief of the Bureau of Public Roads, is the cause of many accidents.

The National Conference on Street and Highway Safety has prepared motor vehicle codes and traffic ordinances. Thirty-nine states have adopted these proposals in part, but only a third of the states are in reasonably close agreement with the code.

Only 19 states have the standard licensing system based on a thorough examination. Not more than 20 states have a highway patrol of even reasonably adequate character.

Man can help Nature in the reproduction and growth of good timber. Finding out how to help most effectively is one of the principal jobs of the Forest Service, U. S. Department of Agriculture. Sunlight and water are vital to healthy tree growth.

The diagrams illustrate three conditions common on forest lands. Where the overstory trees (those trees which overtop the rest) monopolize the sunlight and soil moisture, young new growth does not come in and the understory stagnates. The first diagram shows an overstory of old growth where old, mature and defective trees may be getting more than their share of a limited place in the sun, to the detriment of the second-growth and new-growth. The second represents an overstory of second-growth monopolizing the light with new growth again as the victim. In the third diagram an overstory of new growth itself is overtopping smaller new trees.

Fences

Scientific advances in the making of more durable fence will save farmers of the country millions of dollars in depreciation costs, according to Prof. H. W. Riley of Cornell University. Professor Riley estimates the savings in New York state at $2,500,000 annually.

This is how your fence looks as it comes from the weaving machine. Each single strand is as lustrous as it was before the weaving process.

(Bethlehem Steel Photo).

Longer life in fence means an annual saving of from $30 to $50 on the average 160-acre livestock farm.

Better fencing also increases farm income, according to the Department of Agriculture. The department estimates that hogs raised under sanitary conditions, made possible by adequate fencing, return their owners $6 a head more than those kept in small dirty pens.

India

The 1935-36 cotton crop in India is now estimated at 4,793,000 bales of 478 pounds net weight from 25,138,000 acres, according to the Bureau of Agricultural Economics. This estimate is 17.9 per cent above last season. The production trend in India has been upward for many years.

Indian cotton is for the most part the shortest staple in commercial use, most of the crop ranging from 3-8 to 7-8 inch. The Indian government has been endeavoring not only to increase the length of the average staple, but also to increase yields per acre.

Poultry

Thirty-four states are taking part in the National Poultry Improvement Plan, under the guidance of the United States Department of Agriculture. The department has for distribution, a tabulation showing the particular phases of the plan in which each state is participating.

Those desiring names and addresses of hatchery men and breeders taking part in the plan may obtain this information by writing to the State College of Agriculture or the State Department of Agriculture.

Germany

Adoption by Germany of a maximum agricultural sufficiency program has decreased the volume of German net imports of agricultural products by 18 per cent, and the value by 70 per cent, according to the U. S. Department of Agriculture Attache L. V. Steere in Berlin.

All large agricultural exporting countries, especially the United States have been affected by this German policy. Of the six farm products of primary importance in trade with the United States—cotton, lard, tobacco, apples, prunes and raisins, only three—cotton, prunes and raisins are not produced in Germany.

Reclamation projects now under way in Germany cover an area of approximately 3,000,000 acres. Within the next two years it is expected that approximately 600,000 acres of this area will be available for the production of food.

This reclamation project is one of the important tasks undertaken by the government to secure the nutritive self-sufficiency of the nation. Throughout Germany, under government guidance, fertility of soil is being improved, yields are being increased by improved soil preparation and better crop rotation. The improvement in cultivation of waste land is being promoted and new land is being reclaimed from the sea.

The territory at Germany's disposal for food production is relatively small, amounting to only 111 acres per 100 inhabitants. In the United States, it is 297 acres, in Denmark and France 210 acres, and in Italy 138 acres, according to the Bureau of Agricultural Economics.

4-H Clubs

Nearly 1,000,000 farm boys and girls are now enrolled in 4-H club work, according to Dr. C. W. Warburton, director of extension, U. S. Department of Agriculture. These young people, who are studying improved methods of farming and homemaking and learning cooperation and good citizenship under the direction of the extension service, are located in all of the 48 states, and in Hawaii, Puerto Rico, and Alaska.

Club work is carried on in the United States in 2,960 counties. Extension agents are assisted in directing this work by 106,215 local volunteer club leaders.

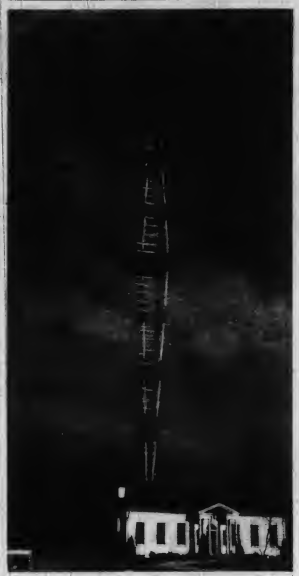
Reflector Belt Designed To Combat Death On Dark Roads



Designed to protect night pedestrians, a reflector belt has been patented to cut down the tremendous death toll of persons struck by automobiles while walking on dark highways.

Studded with reflector buttons, the leather belt is worn around the arm or body. The buttons are said to catch the light from an on-coming car and reflect it back to the motorist, giving him notice of a pedestrian as far as 1,000 feet away

Although the light may hit the buttons at as much as a 25 degree angle, the reflectivity is said to be equally good.

Farmers Are Listening In

WSM's 878-foot radio tower is a familiar sight to many Tennessee farmers. It is located a few hundred feet from the Nashville-Birmingham highway, seven miles from Franklin, 18 miles south of Nashville. From this structure comes the National Farm and Home Hour each week day.

At the right is pictured Harold Corder, in charge of broadcasting market reports and news for the Tennessee division of markets, as he speaks into the "mike" in his office at Nashville. WSM carries this popular farm program daily.

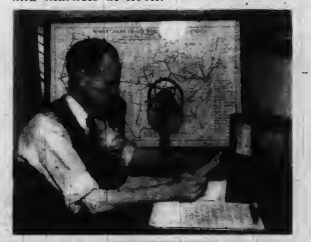
It is estimated over a half million persons comprise Tennessee's small town and rural radio audience.

There are more than 1,000,000 radio listeners in Tennessee, in areas covered by the seven radio stations operating in daily broadcasts of farm market news.

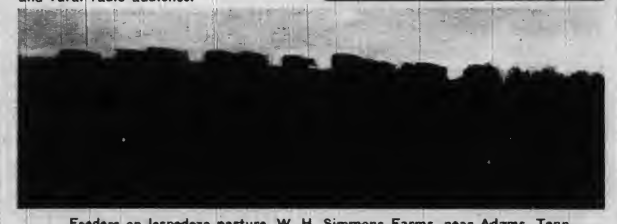
WSM at Nashville and WMC at Memphis carry the National Farm and Home hour from 11:30 to 12:30 o'clock.

WOPI, Bristol, broadcasts a quarter hour period at 11:30 a. m., daily. When possible, G. C. Baker, county agent, presents this program.

WNOX, Knoxville, helps cover East Tennessee with a quarter hour program starting at 11:30 a. m. R. M. Murphy, Knox county agent, has been in charge of this period for almost a decade.



WDOD, Chattanooga, puts on a quarter hour program beginning at 12:30 p. m., on Wednesdays and Mondays, directed by W. J. Forbes, Hamilton county agent, and the station announcer in charge other days.



WSM, Nashville, has a quarter hour period, at 12:45 p. h., conducted by Harold Corder, assistant marketing chief, state division of markets.

WJTS, Jackson, has a quarter hour period, from 11:45 until noon.

WMC, Memphis, sponsors Tri-State Farmers' Forum, beginning at 11 a. m. A microphone connection is in the office of L. J. Kerr, Shelby county agent.

WNBR, Memphis, has farm news and markets at noon.

$10,000,000 Lespedeza Crop Developed In Tennessee

AFTER little more than a decade of development, lespedeza crops in Tennessee have reached a valuation of $10,000,000.

Some varieties of lespedeza were grown before the World War. And Jap clover, sometimes known as "Yankee" clover flourished for over half a century. But it was not until the early '20's a systematic movement was begun to use lespedeza as a cover crop extensively.

Value Realized

In 1926, it is doubtful if more than 100,000 acres were in this crop. In 1929, 149,000 acres were seeded to lespedeza. In 1935, according to J. H. McLeod, University of Tennessee economist, lespedeza had covered 1,000,000 acres. This was divided: Hay, 450,000 acres; pastures, 350,000; seed and soil improvement purposes 200,000.

The value of this development has been realized by Tennssee farmers. It is something new for the state to raise sufficient hay for its own needs and have some to spare. Four types of lespedeza lead: Kobe, Tennessee 76, Korean and Giant Sericea.

Soil Holding Crop

It was before 1910 the U. S. Department of Agriculture decided to test out lespedeza in this country and imported seed from Korea. The experiment confirmed reports of the plant which thrived so well on almost any type of soil in certain portions of Asia. The early test crops demonstrated that lespedeza grew several inches higher than the ordinary Jap clover.

Next, seed was sent to the land grant colleges and state experiment stations. In 1921, the experiment station at Knoxville began trying out the new crop. Within two years, leading farmers began sowing small tracts with lespedeza. It was tried as a soil holding crop with success.

Kentucky Rural Ministers Attend Second Annual Spring Short Course

THE second annual Spring short course for town and country pastors at the Kentucky College of Agriculture attracted approximately 100 rural ministers.

Mornings were devoted to rural church problems, and afternoons to rural sociology and to the work of the College of Agriculture and Agricultural Experiment Station and other agencies to promote improved economic conditions on the farm.

Lecture series were given by Dr. E. C. Cameron, in charge of courses in the rural church at Butler University, Indianapolis, and secretary of the Rural Church Commission of Indiana, and Dr. G. S. Dobbins, professor of religious education and church efficiency at the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, Louisville. Dr. D. C. Troxel of the College of the Bible, Transylvania University, Lexington, conducted devotional exercises and vesper services.

Other speakers included President Frank L. McVey, University of Kentucky; President William J. Hutchins, Berea College; George H. Goodman, director, Kentucky Emergency Relief Administration; Dean Thomas P. Cooper, Professor George Roberts and other Kentucky College of Agriculture faculty members.

Visitors included Dr. W. H. Thompson, field secretary of the Ohio Council of Churches; Rev. Donald F. Wogamon, Winchester, O., and Rev. Theron A. Zimmerman and Rev. Ralph A. Brandon, co-pastors of the Christian Fellowship Parish at Hamersville, Ohio.

The annual course for country pastors is a cooperative project of the Kentucky College of Agriculture and the Kentucky Rural Church Council. Dr. W. V. Cropper is president of the council, and Dr. W. D. Nicholls is head of the department of farm economics at the College of Agriculture, the department sponsoring the course. Dr. Nicholls acted as chairman.

Market Wise or Otherwise

BY E. A. JOHNSON
Kentucky College of Agriculture

THE market for farm products is passing through a critical stage.

There is more than usual interest in the lamb market because it has just recently reached a period of large sales. We recall how lamb prices rose last Summer after most of us had sold our lambs, and we wonder if it will happen again. Right now things look different from a year ago, so the market probably will be different, too.

E. A. Johnson

The market for lambs started at a higher level than last year. Early lamb losses were heavier than last year throughout much of this territory. Last Summer was a period of rising prices for all meat products, partly because pork and beef production had been greatly reduced by the scarcity of feed grains, but also because consumer incomes were increasing and there was a greater demand for meat.

This year, the supply of beef is larger and the pork supply is increasing; so it looks as if lamb prices are likely to drop lower as the season advances. Many lambs have made a poor start, so it seems likely there will be more than the usual spread in favor of lambs of better quality.

There is good assurance that wool will sell for more than in 1935. Wool is in a strong position because there are fewer sheep to produce wool than in recent years, and because there is little old wool left from last year. There was a strong demand for woolen goods during the past year, which caused woolen mills to operate at a high rate, and that is really the backbone of the present wool market.

With the prospects of even larger consumer income than in 1935, it seems reasonable that wool prices should equal those which prevailed during the first quarter of 1936.

The hog market has the greater adjustment to make, but do not assume that all the adjustment must be made in one year. The sharp rise in hog prices during 1935 came as a result of the reduction in hog slaughter brought on by a combination of factors but principally by the AAA and the shortage of feed grain as a result of the 1934 drought.

Attractive Fall Market

A gradual drop in hog prices must be expected during the next two years, as hog slaughter recovers from about one-half of the normal slaughter to, shall we say, 90 per cent of the 1932-1933 figure. The late Summer peak in prices may not, as is usual, exceed the early Spring top price for hogs. As the supply of lard is replenished it is also to be expected heavy hogs will sell at more of a discount under the 200-pound class than has prevailed during the past year. Numbers and not weight will be in greater demand.

Further adjustment in the cattle market may come, but the present level of prices may prevail for several months. The present narrow spread in prices between fat and thin cattle may not persist but will increase seasonally until next Winter and then reappear next Spring. Cattle prices will hold to a fairly high level making an attractive Fall market.

Chickens in June

The two big jobs for the chicken raiser in this section of the country in June are to keep the laying pullets growing.

There is a tendency to begin to neglect the hens in June, on the theory that summer eggs are not profitable. Hot weather has descended, the hens are seeking the shade, and selling good fresh eggs is more trouble. Despite these things, summer eggs can be made profitable.

Range, shade, fresh water and proper feeding are necessary in June. Continue to feed dry mash but cut down on the grain, since the latter produces too much heat for the hot weather. Supply an abundance of good water in clean vessels. Water is always essential, since the egg is largely water.

Eat More Mash

Reducing the grain part of the ration forces the birds to eat more mash. Grass, alfalfa lespedeza, clovers or some other green field should be available in which the birds can forage. They will eat much grass or legume leaves and will gather bugs.

Three dry mash mixtures are recommended by the Kentucky College of Agriculture. One is made of 200 pounds of wheat mixed feed, 100 pounds of each ground corn, tankage or meat scraps and ground oats, and five pounds of salt.

Another is made of 300 pounds of mixed wheat feed and 100 pounds each of ground corn and tankage or meat scraps and the five pounds of salt.

The third comprises 200 pounds each of the wheat feed and ground corn and 100 pounds of tankage or meat scrap and the salt.

Watch Pullets

The first two are recommended for the general breeds and the third for Leghorns. Equal parts of bran and shorts may be used in place of the mixed wheat feed.

If skimmilk is fed in abundance, the tankage or meat scrap may be reduced. If no skimmilk is used, either tankage or meat scrap must be used if good egg production is to be expected. A well-culled flock of hens should average 17 eggs each in June.

Attention must be given by the poultry raiser to the pullets in June, if early egg production is to be had. Pullets given good care from the brooder to the laying house produce a month or two earlier than the pullets allowed to hunt for their feed.

Of course, the cockerels should be separated from the pullets, and those not wanted for breeders should be fattened and sold. The pullets also should be kept away from the old birds, for best results. This is not always possible.

Hot Weather Problems

In general, the same ration can be used for growing pullets that is fed to the laying flock. Probably half grain and half mash produce best results. Shade, water and range are all important in June.

Lice, mites and disease germs are always a hot weather problem, with both hens and pullets. Keep the house and equipment clean. Scrape them clean at least once a week and spray with a solution of a pint of stock dip to three gallons of water. Paint the roost poles with crude oil or cresote, or drainings from the crankcase of an automobile or tractor.

To rid the birds of lice, use sodium fluoride as a powder or dip. But do not dip the chicks until they weigh 2½ or three pounds and are well feathered out. Dip in the morning on a warm, sunny day.

HARMONIOUS CONVENTIONS HELD BY DEMOCRATS

At Both County and State Conventions. Eighteen Delegates From Boone County Attend State Convention

The Democrats of Boone County met in Convention at the Court House, Saturday, June 6th, for the purpose of selecting delegates for State Convention to be held in Louisville, June 9th.

Newton Sullivan, County Chairman, called the meeting to order and stated the purpose of the meeting.

Walter Ferguson, Union, was elected as Chairman and C. D. Benson, Burlington, secretary. A committee on resolutions was appointed, consisting of C. L. Cropper, T. F. Heile and Leonard Cook, the committee on delegates consisting of H. A. Rogers, Mrs. E. R. Rivard and O. R. Russ. The committee reported resolutions commending the National and State administration and the committee on delegates and alternates reported the following as delegates: Walter Ferguson, Leonard Cook, John W. Grant, Harve Tanner, T. F. Heile, H. A. Rogers, Robt. Hensley, Newton Sullivan, N. E. Riddell, Al Rogers, Omer Cleek, C. L. Cropper, Mrs. Emily Cleek, Lloyd McGlasson, Mrs. R. S. Hensley, Mrs. Edgar Aylor, Mrs. H. A. Rogers and Mrs. Emil Rivard.

The following were also selected as alternates: Evan Hance, Emil Rivard, Robt. Porter, Tom Rice, Harry Moore, Frank Allen, Wilbur Acra, Howard Tanner, Jake Cleek, J. P. Brothers, Wm. Crouse, Tom Marshall, Mrs. Eileen Conner, Mrs. J. W. Grant, Mrs. Frank Hossman, Mrs. J. P. Brothers, Mrs. Tom Castleman and Mrs. J. M. Lassing, Jr.

The delegates were instructed to vote a (unit) in all matters at the State Convention in Louisville on June 9th.

At the State Convention in Louisville, Henry Berndt of Kenton County was elected to succeed the late W, N. Hind, Democratic Committeeman from the Fifth District. James A. Diskin was also re-elected as committeeman from the Fifth District.

Ward Yager and Aubray Bauber of Newport, were elected as delegates from the Fifth District to the National Convention to be held in Philadelphia.

Hon. A. B. (Happy) Chandler was elected National Committeeman succeeding former Governor Ruby Laffoon.

Both the county and state conventions were harmoniously conducted and the State Convention at Louisville went on record as endorsing the National Administration of President Roosevelt and also the present administration of Governor Chandler.

CHANDLER TO SPEAK

AT DEMOCRATIC NATIONAL CONVENTION AT PHILADELPHIA AFTER ROOSEVELT'S NAME IS ENTERED

Frankfort, Ky., June 12—Governor Chandler late today said he had been notified he would make a twenty-minute seconding speech after President Roosevelt's name had been placed in nomination at the Democratic National Convention.

The Governor added he would leave next Wednesday for Philadelphia.

It is understood he plans to campaign in a number of other states for the national ticket this summer and fall.

Asked regarding rumors current here that he might be chosen as a running mate for President Roosevelt in the event Vice President Garner declined to seek reelection, the Governor said he was not a candidate for the office and preferred to serve his term as Governor.

LARGE CROWD ATTENDS JUBILEE AT FLORENCE

According to a report to this office Monday, a very large crowd attended the Silver Jubilee of St. Paul's Catholic Church Sunday. Services were held until 2:30, after which games were enjoyed by the large crowd in attendance.

Father McCaffrey preached a very interesting sermon. He was pastor of the church when it was dedicated twenty-five years ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Kelly and Mrs. Zelma Clore, spent Sunday in Burlington visiting friends and relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Mark Cook and Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Ryle spent Sunday with Sam Ryle and family of Burlington.

LANDON IS NOMINATED

AS REPUBLICAN CANDIDATE FOR PRESIDENT—FRANK KNOX CHOSEN AS RUNNING MATE

Cleveland, June 12—With the nomination of Colonel Frank C. Knox, of Illinois, for the vice presidency, the Republican National Convention early this afternoon concluded its labors and adjourned sine die.

Later in the afternoon, the new Republican National Committee conducted its first meeting and organized by electing John D. M. Hamilton, of Kansas, the manager of the pre-convention campaign of Governor Alf M. Landon of Kansas, the presidential nominee, Chairman.

An Executive Committee, consisting of 16 members, was named to select the remaining officers of the committee after conferences with Landon and Knox. The committee is scheduled to confer with Landon in Topeka next Tuesday, and later will call on Knox at his convenience.

The convention closed today in the spirit of harmony and unity that has prevailed ever since the rival candidates for the presidency released their delegates from their instructions and made possible the nomination of Landon on the first ballot, last night by unanimous vote.

Like the nomination of Landon the nomination today of Knox to be his running mate was unanimous, except in the case of Knox, he actually received the entire 1,003 votes of the convention on the first roll call, whereas there were 19 votes cast against Landon before a motion was adopted to make his nomination unanimous. Chairman Bertrand H. Snell said it was the first time in convention history that a candidate for Vice President received all the votes on the initial roll call.

REVIVAL SERVICES

TO BE HELD AT GUNPOWDER BAPTIST CHURCH — R. LEE JAMES WILL DELIVER SERMONS.

Beginning Monday night, June 22, at 7:30 Rev. R. Lee James, pastor of the Burlington Baptist church, will conduct revival services at the Gunpowder church. He will be assisted in the work by members of the Burlington Baptist church.

The Gunpowder church is one of the oldest churches in this vicinity. It has served the cause of Christ in a mighty way in days gone by. But during recent years the church has not had services. Many are longing for the day when services will be resumed at this historic church. This revival to be held will open the way for Gunpowder to serve again.

The people of Burlington and vicinity, especially the members of Gunpowder church, are urged to attend these services.

T. A. HUEY FARM TO BE SOLD IN TWO TRACTS

The T. A. Huey farm, located on the Union and Big Bone road, 3 miles southwest of Union will be sold at public auction on Thursday June 25th.

This tract of land contains 194 acres, and is said to be one of best farms in the Union neighborhood. The land lies level to rolling, practically all limestone land and will produce fine tobacco, sweet clover and alfalfa.

The sale will be conducted by R. K. Kinman Auction Co. Mr. Kinman has established a slogan, that when he advertises a tract of land the high bidder gets a deed. Therefore, this will be an absolute sale, to the highest bidder.

FLAG RAISING HELD SUNDAY

IN BURLINGTON COURT HOUSE YARD. POST NO. 4 OF AMERICAN LEGION CONDUCTED EXERCISES.

The Flag Raising at the Court House yard, Burlington, Sunday, was one of the largest and most colorful events of the season. There was the largest crowd gathered in the county seat to witness the exercises that has been here since the Hon. A. B. Chandler delivered his address here some time ago.

Post No. 4 of the American Legion conducted the exercises, with the assistance of the Drum and Bugle Corps and Firing Squad from the Newport Post.

The flag was officially raised at 3:05 P. M., and remained there until sunset. However, the flag that was raised Sunday afternoon was not the one to remain there permanently, and consequently it is not being used daily at the Court House now. It is the wishes of everyone that as soon as we receive our permanent flag that it be flown each day as it should be in a county seat town.

PRESIDENT VISITS LINCOLN SHRINE

THRONG WAITS FOR HOURS TO GLIMPSE CHIEF EXECUTIVE. CHANDLER RIDES ABOARD TRAIN.

Hodgenville, Ky., June 14—President Roosevelt inspected the birthplace of Abraham Lincoln, exchanged greetings with Governor Chandler and other celebrities, waved greetings to several thousand Kentuckians who had waited hours to welcome him, and started back to Washington late today.

The President made the last stop here of a swing about the nation which has taken him to historic spots in Indiana, Arkansas, Texas, and Kentucky in the last week. This morning he spoke at Vincennes, Ind., at the memorial honoring Colonel George Rogers Clark, the founder of Louisville.

The President made a brief stop in Louisville, where Gov. Chandler, Ambassador to England Robert Worth Bingham and other notables boarded the train. Among those to join the party were Senator M. M. Logan and former Congressman John Young Brown, running against Logan for the Democratic nomination for Logan's seat.

Drives 14 Miles

The President and his entourage left the train at Elizabethtown, Ky., and through flag-garlanded streets drove 14 miles to the Lincoln shrine, passing through Hodgenville, where the streets were packed with citizenry.

AAll day from every direction carloads of persons poured into the Federal park which surrounds the shrine. They ranged in age from a woman, bent and hobbled, who said she was 87 years old, and smoked a cob pipe as she edged under a small tree, trying to escape the blazing sun, to the youngest Roosevelt fan, a two-week-old baby.

Scattered cheers heralded arrival of the presidential party. Mr. Roosevelt's car drove into an area which had been roped off and up a board gangway erected for the occasion to the side of the shrine.

The chains which ordinarily keep visitors from the crudely fashioned, mud-chinked cabin in which President Lincoln was born were let down.

Mr. Roosevelt stepped into the doorway of the cabin. Chatting with Governor Chandler, they posed for photographs. Ambassador Bingham joined them there.

The President walked a few feet into the shrine and studied intently for several minutes the tablets imbeddied in the walls. Then he turned and left the shrine.

The small pulpit which holds the shrine visitor's register was moved out to the head of the steps today. The visitors were kept by troops at the foot of the steps.

Before the pulpit stood a microphone, placed there to carry any address the President might make. He advanced to the pulpit and signed the register. As the crowd cheered he waved repeatdly. Governor Chandler then signed the register after him, both waved a new acknowledgement of the applause, then the President returned to his car.

Because of the hilliness and the many trees around about the Lincoln Shrine many of the thousands did not see the President at all.

ELECTIONS HELD IN AC PROGRAM

COUNTY DIVIDED IN SIX COMMUNITIES. EACH COMMUNITY WILL SELECT A COMMUNITY COMMITTEE.

Boone County farmers cooperating in the Agricultural Conservation Program are setting up their permanent Association through community elections this week, according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent. For convenience to cooperators the County has been divided into six communities. Each community will elect a Community Committee of three and an alternate who will supervise the running of the Association.

The community elections are being held as follows:

Burlington Courthouse—June 16 at 1:15 p. m. for Burlington and Florence communities.

Hamilton Schoolhouse — June 16th, at 7:30 p. m., for Hamilton and Carlton Communities.

Hebron Schoolhouse—June 17th at 7:30 p. m., for Bullittsville, Hebron and Constance communities.

New Haven Schoolhouse—June 19th at 8:00 p. m., for Beaver and Union communities.

Petersburg Schoolhouse—June 20th, at 1:00 p. m., for Petersburg and Grant communities.

Walton Schoolhouse—June 20, at 8:00 p. m., for Walton and Verona.

The six chairman of the community Committees make up the County Board of Directors and supervise the work of the County Association. One thousand and thirty-one work sheets covering more than 90 per cent of the farm land in Bone County have been filed at the County Office. Both landlords and tenants on farms covered by work sheets are members of the County Association. This means that probably 95 per cent of all farmers of the County are included as eligible members of the Association. Farmers have shown a splendid spirit of cooperation and interest in agricultural improvement. This spirit under the ACP should help hold and advance the progress made under the old AAA program.

4-H TEAM WINS SECOND PLACE

IN JUDGING CANNED FRUITS AND VEGETABLES AT JUNIOR WEEK HELD THE PAST WEEK AT LEXINGTON.

The Hebron 4-H Club Home Practice Demonstration Team was awarded second place in the State 4-H Foods Demonstration Team Contests held during Junior Week at the University of Kentucky the past week, according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent. Fifty-eight county &home economics demonstration teams took part in the State 4-H home economis demonstration team contests.

The Hebron team composed of Anna Mary Grant and Louise Elkins gave a splendid demonstration entitled "The Judging of Canned Fruits and Vegetables." The team was trained by Mrs. Sibbia Reimer, efficient canning project leader of the Hebron 4-H Club and coached in the State contests by Miss Mary H. Gillispie, Home Demonstration Agent.

WALTON MAN IS SIGNED

BY THE LOUISVILLE BALL CLUB OF THE AMERICAN ASSOCIATION

John R. DeMoisey, basketball coach at Harrodsburg, Ky., High School the past year, has been signed to a contract by the Louisville Colonels of the American Association. John has demonstrated great ability as a pitcher and was found by a scout for the Louisville team and has signed a contract to pitch for that club. Burleigh Grimes is manager of the Louisville team.

John is the son of Rev. and Mrs. R. F. DeMoisey, of North Main Street, Walton. His brother, Paul, is also making a name for himself as an outfielder for Eastern State Teachers College, Richmond.

The many friends of John R. throughout Boone County are proud of his accomplishments, and wish him the best of luck in big league baseball.

GREAT DEMAND FOR THESE BABY FARMS

The auction sale of river camp sites and baby farms, held recently one mile south of Sprinklake, to settle the J. W. Mardis estate, was highly successful. The attendance was large, and everything sold quickly and at very good prices. So great was the demand for these camp sites and baby farms that a number of them already have been resold at a good profit—several were resold at surprsingly good profit before the auction sale was ended.

Rel C. Wayman, Covington, real estate agent, who conducted that auction, at Springlake, states he will have some more camp sites and baby farms for sale in the near future. Mr. Wayman was capably assisted by Col. R. G. Kinman and Col. Geo. Simmons as auctioneers.

BONUS BONDS RECEIVED HERE

$2,000,000,000 WILL BE PAID TO VETERANS —KENTUCKY WILL RECEIVE APPROXIMATELY 34 MILLION DOLLARS

The largest and most concentrated dosage of "spending treatment" ever given American business by the Federal Government begins this week. Within the next two months, or sooner, twice as much money will be paid out by the Treasury as has ever been paid out in any similar peacetime period.

Bonus payments to flow into trade channels represent nearly one-sixth of the entire amount which has been spent by the Federal Government to prime the wheels of industry since the start of the emergency program of public works in 1932.

HOW MUCH IS $2,000,000,000?

More than all wages and salaries paid by railroads in 1935, totalling $1,888,000,000.

More than all wages and salaries paid by the mining industry in 1935, totalling $895,000,000.

More than all wages paid on work relief projects in 1935, totaling $1,300,000,000.

More than all Federal pay rolls in 1935, which including the military services totaled $1,7000,000,000.

More than all wages and salaries paid in 1935 by public utilities, which totaled $1,795,000,000.

Record two months' Federal expenditure thus far was during the period of the Civil Works program, December, 1933-January, 1934, when the Government spent $1,693,000,000.

The size of the outflow of bonus cash is dependent on the number of veterans who cash their bonus bonds rather than hold them to take advantage of Congress' provision that bonds held until 1945 shall draw 3 per cent compound interest.

The American Legion estimates that bonds totaling approximately half a billion dollars in value will not be casheed but will be kept until maturity. A $50 bond, if held until June 15, 1945, accumulates $13.50 interest. Bonus payments will go to 3,500,0000 veterans. Part of the bonus bonds will not be cashed immediately but will be retained by holders who wish to benefit from the 3 per cent compound interest.

Kentucky will receive approximately 34 million dollars of the vast payment within the next few months. As to the direct effect on recovery, however, it is the general opinion of Government economists that the payments are "timed" at a period of strategic importance.

Bonus money will come into circulation, it is explained, at a time when the country has experienced a year of almost constant recovery. If that recovery were interrupted now by a pronounced Summer slump the decline in business might have a bad psycholigical reaction with effects much greater than would seem warranted by the decline. On the contrary, if the upward movement- can be sustained, that would be likely to have an equally beneficial reaction. A recovery tide might set in which would carry on after the bonus money was spent.

CONDITIONS VS. THEORIES

Wholeseale and retail "conditions" existed throughout the World for thousands of years. Now heady-dchey "theories" follow in rapid succession as substitutes for age-old "conditions."

Human nature is queer! Many of the most vocal champions of the independent merchant are the best customers of the chain stores. The contradiction of not practicing what they preach doesn't raise a blush.

The Government is naturally concerned with the problems that relate to independent merchants and chain stores. Of course the latter have great advantages because they purchase in wholesale quantities. That's what built up the five and ten cent stores, but no one kicked very hard in earlier days when the Woolworth Building became the highest commercial structure in the World.

Undoubtedly something should be done about this store question—in the interests of rugged individualism and the community institution which we used to call "our store." But the remedy proposed to get a new twist on the great problem by another "little" NRA experiment to police a million and half retail establishments in the United States is ridiculous.

The chain stores claim that they save the purchasers of the country $750,000,000 annually, and they keep a string of lobbyists in Washington to represent their side of the nation-wide controversy.

The problem seems to call for some sound economics, minus quack remedies of the kind that have been applied in "cracking down" on business for the past three years.

G. O. P. WASTED 30 MONTHS FAILING TO TAKE ACTION ROOSEVELT TOOK FIRST DAY

"The opposition party has been in power 12 years, during nearly all of which time they had not only he Chief Executive but both houses of Congress and they could have put through any sort of legislation they wished," said Chairman James A. Farley of the Democratic National Committee at the Michigan Democratic convention in Grand Rapids. "They could have done all the things that Franklin D. Roosevelt has done—if their President had the courage and the desire for service to the general public.

"I think you must agree with me that it would have been a very much easier job to have prevented the Hoover panic than it was to check it and turn the tide after that great disaster was upon us in full force. Take a single instance:

"Does anybody believe that if the former President had grappled with the banking situation as firmly and as intelligently as the present President did, the economic disaster would have been as acute as it was? The stock market crash that inaugurated the panic was in the Fall of 1929. That shook the banks. Tempted by the opportunities, hundreds of banks had rushed their depositors' money to Wall Street to be loaned to brokers carrying stocks on margin. It should not have taken two and a half years to learn that many of the banks were in a desperate state. As a matter of fact it did not. Failure after failure heralded the gruesome intelligent. They toppled and fell at the rate of 30 to 40 a week. At the end of June 1932 one huge institution, presided over by an ex-president of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation sent its midnight demand to Washington for a $90,000,000 loan.

"I remember the date because the Democratic National Convention was then in progress and the streets of Chicago were blocked by the multitude that was making the run on that and other banks. Incidentally, we are still trying to collect that loan.

"There was nothing to prevent the Republicans from taking the steps that President Roosevelt took the very day of his inauguration.

"But, reasoned the administration then in power—including Secretary of the Treasury Ogden Mills—to shut up the banks, while the good were separated from the bad, would have precipitated panic. Suppose that to be true. Letting bankrupt banks remain open only deferred that inevitable day and practically every 24 hours saw one or more folding up and taking to destruction business firms and individuals whose funds were in their keeping.

"Would it not have been infinitely better to have faced the situation at any time during these two and a half years with courage, resolution and car for the interests of the depositors, than to have permitted them to drift while some of our great financiers, themselves perfectly cognizant of what was bound to happen, looked out for themselves, while the people who trusted them were ruined?

"So far from precipitating disaster, the bank holiday of March, 1933, checked the panic and restored confidence, because the people saw that there was an administration in power that had their interests in mind. The bank holiday was the first step upward that this country had seen in two and a half distressing years.

"And what have we now? Ex-President Hoover tells us he had the depression stopped at the very period of the Chicago banking incident. Ex-Secretary of the Treasury Mills, with his own particular air of authority, warns the country that unless we go back to the system and the political control that marked the period of hideous economic failure, chaos is just around the corner, possibly the same corner we heard so much about four or five years ago."

QUESTION NO. 1

"The really valuable lesson for the voter from the official disclosure that the 'grass roots' convention at Macon Ga., last January was was financed by the sponsors of the Liberty League is that this episode shows so clearly how anti-Roosevelt campaign material is made. The 'rumors' that bat around in whispers or guffaws; the solemn discoveries that public opinion has turned unanimously overnight against some earnest public servant; these things do not just happen. They are promoted by expert manipulators of public opinion handsomely paid by groups that hope to profit. So the first question for the intelligent voter to ask about every one of these fancy campaign tales that assault his common sense is: "Who put that one out and what do they stand to gain if I and a lot of others believe it?"—New York News. "JEST A-WHITTLIN' AN' A-THINKIN'"

By Pete Gettys
(A State Farmer Section Feature)

Looks like the grocery and market folks are sellin' everything by weight 'cept the very things that above all others ought to be paid for for what they weigh, an' that's eggs. Cabbage an' lettuce an' bananas, an' about every other thing, is by the pound. A dozen eggs ought to weigh 24 ounces—but eggs is eggs on the market—so much a dozen whether they're banties' or Brahamas'.

What a business this farmin' is—how it can take its losses an' still be the greatest industry in dollars and cents of this country.

Fifty million acres of land in the U. S.—that's an area bigger than the whole State of Illinois—50 million acres of land which were once cultivated farms, have already been about ruined. This area ain't farmed at all now, 'cept for a little patch-farmin' here and there. An' another 50 million acres are in a condition almost as bad.

An' besides—the best top soil had been washed, or about washed off, a hundred millions more acres. This area's as big as Illinois, Iowa and Wisconsin all put together. About 100 million more acres are on the way.

More than three billion ton of soil is washed and blown off our fields every year. In terms of dollars and cents the direct cost of erosion is estimated at 400 million dollars each and every year.

Still us farmers are gettin' along—our income's the greatest in history—farm mortgages are bein' paid, there's a car in the woodshed, the smokehouse is full of meat and a radio in the kitchen—an' some of us are even feedin' old Shep canned dog food.

JESUS EXALTED

LESSON TEXT—Luke 24:36-53.

GOLDEN TEXT—Wherefore God also hath highly exalted him, and given him a name which is above every name.—Philippians 2:9.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Goes Home to Heaven.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus Goes Home to Heaven.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—The Lord We Worship.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Exalted Christ and the Unfinished Task.

In order properly to view the ascension of Christ into heaven, it would be well to study his ministry during the forty days prior to his ascension.

I. The Walk of the Two Discouraged Disciples (vv. 13-15).

Emmaus was seven and a half miles northwest of Jerusalem. Just why these disciples were walking this way we do not surely know. Perhaps their home was there. Or they were merely walking to seek relief from their stunning sorrow. If they had believed what Jesus had told them about his death and resurrection, they would have escaped this great disappointment. Unbelief causes many heartaches and disappointments. The topic of conversation was the tragedy of the cross and the resurrection rumors. So little had his teaching about the resurrection impressed the disciples that the reports which the women brought were as idle tales to them.

II. The Unrecognized Companion (vv. 16-24).

1. Who he was (v. 15). While they reasoned together on the wonderful events of the last few days, Jesus joined them. When he questioned them concerning their sadness they did not recognize him. How often we are so engrossed with our sorrows and disappointments that we fail to recognize Jesus, even though he is walking by our side.

2. His question (v. 17). Perceiving their sadness and perplexities, he sought to help by calling forth a statement of their grief.

3. Their answer (v. 18). His questions so surprised them that they jumped to the conclusion that he was a stranger in Jerusalem. The condemnation and crucifixion of the great prophet of Nazareth were so recent and notorious that no one who had lived in Jerusalem could be ignorant of them.

III. The Scriptures Opened (vv. 25-31).

1. His rebuke (vv. 25-30). He did not rebuke them for not believing the strange stories that they had heard, but for ignorance of and lack of confidence in the Old Testament Scriptures. They had only accepted such parts of the Old Testament as suited their notions. The very center and heart of the Old Testament Scriptures set forth the death and resurrection of Christ. Ignorance of the Scriptures and unbelief as to the wonders and complete redemption wrought by Christ robs us of many joys and deprives us of power as workers for Christ.

2. Jesus Recognized (vv. 31-35): While sitting at meat with the disciples, their eyes were opened as they saw him bless the bread and distribute it to them. We too can see the Lord on such common occasions as eating a meal if we have open eyes. Indeed, we ought to see him when eating, buying, selling, and in our recreations, for he has promised his abiding presence. They were so filled with joy over this revelation of the Savior that they hastened back to Jerusalem to tell the other disciples of his resurrection.

IV. Jesus Stands in the Midst of the Eleven (vv. 36-47).

1. He said, "Peace be unto you" (vv. 36, 37).

However, they were terrified and affrighted. Sinful man in the presence of a holy God is ill at ease.

2. He showed them his hands and his feet (vv. 38-40). In order to convince them of his personal identity, he gave them tangible evidence that he was not a mere spirit.

3. He ate before them (vv. 41-45).

4. He commissioned them to evangelize the world (vv. 46-49). They were to testify concerning his shed blood and resurrection, and on this ground they were to preach repentance and remission of sins to all nations.

5. Jesus ascends into heaven (vv. 50-53).

Having given them the parting message to evangelize the world he ascended into heaven. From his place in heaven he continues to carry on his work through his disciples as they are energized by the Holy Ghost. Just as we treasure the last words of our departed loved ones so we should ponder this farewell message of our Lord.

Magnet of Thankfulness

The unthankful heart, like my finger in the sand, discovers no mercies; but let the thankful heart sweep through the day, and as the magnet finds the iron, so will it find in every hour some heavenly blessings, only the iron in God's sand is gold.—Henry Ward Beecher.

NEW CONSERVATION PROGRAM ATTRACTS 103,000 FARMERS

With approximately 103,000 Kentucky farmers already signed up, it is predicted at the College of Agriculture at Lexington that more farmers will incorporate in the new agricultural conservation program than took part in the old agricultural adjustment program.

While the active campaign for signers ended May 30, arrangements have been made whereby farmers unable to sign by that date may still fill out work sheets by calling at their county agent's office. It is probable that several thousand more farmers will join in the coservation plan.

Following the sign-up, permanent agricultural associations were organized by counties, community committeemen elected and a county committee of three farmers and an alternate chosen. This committee will be largely responsible for administering the provisions of the conservation program in the county.

AGRICULTURE STUDENT TAKES LITERARY AWARD

That a farmer also can be a leader in arts was proved by James Dyer, a Henderson county farm boy and student in the College of Agriculture, when he won the $225 Patterson Literary Society prize at the University of Kentucky. This is the highest literary award made by the university.

Mr. Toy was graduated from the College of Agriculture this spring. An outstanding student, he was a member of several honor organizations, including Alpha Zeta, Patterson Literary Society and Phi Upsilon Phi, professional botanical fraternity. In an essay contest sponsored by the Saddle and Sirloin Club he was second in Kentucky and fourth in the nation by the Gulf States Steel Company.

B. Y. P. U. 6:30 P. M.

Evening Worship 7:30 P. M. An Evangelistic Service. Sermon Subject: "The Signs of the Times." This sermon will deal with current events in the light of prophecy.

Prayer Service Saturday 7:30 P. M.

On Sunday afternoon at 2:30 at Woolper Creek the ordinance of baptism will be administered.

Special attention is called to the Sunday evening sermon. It will be well worth your time to attend this service. The pastor will discuss current events in the light of prophecy. "The coming of the Lord draweth nigh."

A Revival is in progress at present. We are not having the usual week night services but regular Sunday services emphasizing a quickening of life of the part of the Christians and acceptance of Christ on the part of the unbelievers. Let us remember that the summer months present a wonderful opportunity in church work. There is no reason why we should turn the summer over to the devil. Let every member of the church find his place in these services each Sunday.

All are cordially invited to come. "Come thou with us and we will do thee good."

All of the above tours start at 9:15 a. m. The entire club including both members and leaders (except Florence Club) will meet at the school building in their community and plan a route to visit each member of the club. All members are urged to have their project work and record books up to date for the inspection tour of teir club.

RAILROADS USE DETECTOR FOR ANNUAL INSPECTION

Some credit for the perfect Safety record of American Railroads in 1935 and of its own Company's record of not having a passenger fatality in a train accident in 18 years, is attributed to the Sperry Rail Service by the June Louisville & Nashville Employes' Magazine.

The Louisville & Nashville Railroad has had the principal portion of its track inspected annually by the Sperry Detector Car—which finds flaws in rails by means of electricity—for several years. From January 16 to April 20, 1936, a total of 2,517 miles of L. & N. main line track underwent inspection and all rails found to contain defects were replaced with new ones.

New home loans by Federal Savings and Loan Associations totaled $16,521,242 during April or a larger amount than for any month since the associations were authorized in 1933.

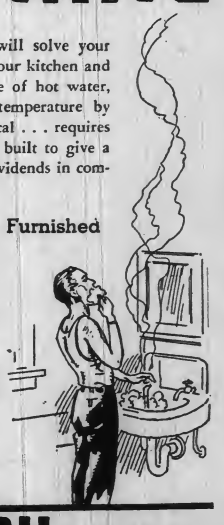
NEW LOW Off Peak WATER HEATING RATE

To widen the scope of electric service in the home, we have installed a new low rate for off-peak water heating service, which makes it economical for the average family to enjoy the convenience of an automatic hot water system. The new rate, shown in the box at the right, is available to any of our customers in this district upon written application. It applies specifically to water heating service, the kilowatt-hours used to be metered and billed separately.

Hot Water at Your Faucet 24 Hours a Day



An automatic electric water heater does away with the bother and uncertainty of old-fashioned water heating methods. It provides a constant, never-failing supply of steaming hot water . . . always ready at the turn of a faucet. There is no waiting, no fire to start, no water to carry, no soot, no dirt, no heat, no ashes, no bother of any kind. One simply turns a faucet and the water is there . . . steaming hot and in abundance . . . for bathing, for shaving, for dishwashing, for any one of a dozen household requirements.

An automatic electric water heater, once installed, will solve your hot water problems forever. Connected to faucets in your kitchen and bathroom, it provides storage for 40 gallons or more of hot water, which is maintained automatically at the proper temperature by thermostatic control. It is noiseless, safe and economical . . . requires no atention . . . cannot blow out or over-heat and is built to give a lifetime of service. It is an investment that pays big dividends in comfort and convenience.

Full Details and Cost Estimates Gladly Furnished

Drop into our office today and let us give you further information about the new water heating rate. We shall be glad to explain in detail the operation of an automatic electric water heating system and to supply you with an estimate of the monthly operating cost for your particular requirements. You will be surprised to learn how little it costs to enjoy at-the-faucet hot water service in your home. Come in today, examine one of the new heaters and get the full story. No obligation!

MEETING

OF PUBLIC WORKS ADMINISTRATION TO BE HELD AT COURT HOUSE, SATURDAY JUNE 20

According to Mr. J. C. McClendon, District Director of Labor for District No. 3 of Lexington, Ky., there will be a meeting of officials and employees of W. P. A. projects throughout this district, at the court house Saturday evening at 3:00 P. M. (Slow Time).

Information and instructions concerning the operation of the WPA Program for the next fiscal year beginning July 1st, 1936, will be broadcast in a radio program over stations WAVE, WCKY, WMAQ and WSM. Honorable Harry L. Hopkins, National Administrator of the Works Progress Administration and other officials, will speak at this time.

Arrangements have been made to use the court room for this meeting, where Administrative and Semi-Administrative employees, officials of counties, cities, boards of education and other sponsoring units may gather and receive instructions about our work for the coming fiscal year.

It is highly important that all Administrative and Semi-Administrative employees be present at these county seat meetings as it is believed that the information given at that time will be useful to those who are going to work in next year's program. Every Administrative and Semi-Administrtive employee should cooperate in seeing that officials, representing sponsoring units, be invited to these meetings. Most of these officials will be interested in learning how their governmental units may benefit in the coming year.

Mrs. Cordie Cox called on Mrs. W. O. Rector and daughter Mary, Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Chas. White and daughters called on Mrs. H. E. Arnold Sunday afternoon.

To my Readers—Gasburg is sent out every Monday morning, if it is not in the Boone County Recorder every week it is not my fault, neither is it the fault of the Editor. The reason is it gets to Burlington too late for publication—do not blame your editor, for news being omitted when it takes letters six days to go from Petersburg to Covington, it may take it a year to go to Burlington, as it has several more miles to travel. This statement about taking six days for a letter to get to Covington is not fiction, there is proof of it. It happened this past month.

Your Correspondent,
Mary A. Rector

Mrs. Kirtley Cropper was hostess to the bridge club Tuesday afternoon. The guests were Mrs. John Lassing, Jr., Mrs. Newton Sullivan, Mrs. Dudley Blythe, Mrs. Harry Holtzclaw, Mrs. L. T. NEW STORE NOW OPEN

AT CONVENIENT LOCATION, 112 SCOTT STREET, COVINGTON

Covington has a new retail furniture enterprise—The Bellonby Furniture Mart, located in the old Walsh buildings, 112 Scott Street, where all kinds of furniture may be purchased at very low prices for cash.

Extremely low prices are possible because of the fact that all furniture comes directly from factory to the home, low overhead (company owns the building in which it is located), volume of sales, "cash and carry" policy, and low costs in general. This saving is passed on the purchaser.

The Bellonby Furniture Mart is owned and operated by the Bellonby Furniture Co., a 30-year-old firm, which has an excellent reputation for honest dealing. Officers are: James W. Bellonby, of Park Hills, president; Ray E. Bellonby, treasurer, and Leonard J. Bellonby secretary. Robert F. Bellonby is a director.

The Bellonby Furniture Mart is managed by B. F. Dugan, who owned the Dugan Furniture Co., Covington, for many years. Read the Company's advertisement in this issue of the Recorder and note how you save money on purchases.

There will be a dance given by American Legion, July 4th at Harvest Home Grounds. Music to be by Griffin's Twin Oak Orchestra with several special attractions. Dancing from 9 to 1 A. M. Public invited.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilford Rouse had as Sunday dinner guests Mr. and Mrs. Harve Tanner, of Hebron, Mrs. Ora Tanner and daughters Margarite and Lucille, of St. Petersburg, Florida and Mary Lina Lassing.

Hugh Stephenes has a force of men and teams working in the gravel pit this week.

The funeral of Mrs. John Felthaus was conducted by Rev. Roy Johnson last Tuesday at the East Bend M. E. church. Burial was postponed until next day, awaiting the arrival of a brother from Texas.

The East Bend W. M. S. will have an all day meeting at the church Thursday the 25th.

A large crowd attended services at which Ange Hodges, Ed. Shinkle and Paul Acra were ordained as deacons of the East Bend Baptist church last Sunday. Revs. James, Johnson, Smith and Huey officiated.

Mr. and Mrs. Orville Kelly had as a Sunday guest Mrs. Kelly's father, Mr. Anderson, of Indiana.

Jack Acra and family visited his brother Raymond and wife, of Cincinnati, over the week-end.

100 PERFORMERS TO APPEAR AT DEARBORN COUNTY FAIR, LAWRENCEBURG, INDIANA

All precedents in attraction programs will be broken with the appearance at the Dearborn County Fair of the two big Musical Productions — "Manhattan Vanities," July 29-30, and "Parisian Revels," July 31-August 1. Each show will have a cast of 50 people.

These shows will be presented on a special constructed stage with beautiful scenery and lighting effect. A special waterproof roof makes it possible to present these shows rain or shine. Sixteen glorified dancing girls feature the ensemble. Music will be furnished by the Rhythm Queens, America's foremost entertaining Girls band. Six outstanding troupes. A Prima Donna Singer and a Master of Ceremonies make this one of the most unusual and entertaining programs ever attempted at any County Fair. The revues will be stages only at night—while vaudeville acts will be intervened between the Harness Races in the afternoon.

MEETINGS TO STRESS SHEEP IMPROVEMENT

Aid for farmers who plan to enlarge their breeding flocks or do fall and winter feeding of lambs was discussed by the representatives of stockyard companies, railroads, the State College of Agriculture, Kentucky Farm Bureau Federation and Future Farmers of America at a meeting in Louisville preliminary to a series of conferences to be held in Kentucky in the intereset of sheep improvment.

County planning boards are recommending more sheep, as land is changed from grain to grass and legumes in the agricultural conservation program. The increase in lespedesa growing and the fact that good sheep given proper care usually make money also are tending to stimulate sheep raising.

Opinion was expressed at the Louisville meeting that the use of inferior late lambs and scrub rams for breeding is affecting the quality of Kentucky spring lambs. Good range ewes are considered preferable to late lambs for breeding. Speakers also emphasized the importance of using good purebred rams.

The series of meetings now being held in the state has for its purpose the encouragement of better breeding practices, the demonstration of desirable types of breeding ewes and rams, lamb grading and parsite control.

SANITY IN VOTING

The Republican convention is over. Soon the Democratic sessions will have been held. Then the campaign will be under way in earnest, probably the most momentous campaign in our history. Certainly the most important since the Civil War.

Unfortunately political campaigns are not always conducted in the best interests of the people, and the current one will be no exception. Fundamentals of the American system are at stake. To a great extent we will be voting upon whether we desire to change our system, whether we wish to diminish the power of the individual citizen and the states and to aggrandize the authority of the Federal government.

That there will be mud-slingaplenty is already apparent. That there will be appeals to class hatred, efforts to align one class of citizen against another, and bitter epithets hurled also is apparent.

Those who will do the voting have a greater obligation therefore to separate the wheat from the chaff. It behooves every person who will go to the polls in November to work out his or her yardstick for determining when candidates are appealing to their senses and when to their passions and emotions.

Only a small percentage of the electorate went to the polls in the hard-fought 1932 campaign. If in 1936 there could be 60,000,000 votes cast instead of 40,000,000 and each voter were to fully realize the sacred trust which he was exercising, there would then be little reason to fear for the future of these United States.

KEROSENE OPERATED

ELECTROLUX

brings you Modern Refrigeration at LOW COST

HERE'S WHAT MRS. W. E. COMBS, MULHALL, OKLA., WRITES: "We think Kerosene Electrolux is a wonderful refrigerator and does more than you claim it will do. We have had our Electrolux just about a year and it has been in use every day and the cost of operation is not over 60¢ a month. I have had quite a lot of experience with other makes of refrigerators but none of them gave me the real satisfaction that I have had from my Electrolux."

RUNS ON KEROSENE (COAL OIL) WITHOUT MACHINERY . . . NEEDS NO ELECTRIC CURRENT . . . NO DAILY ATTENTION . . . NO WATER

NOW give your food the finest protection modern science has devised! Put an end to the inconvenience and waste of inadequate or makeshift refrigeration . . . running back and forth to the well house for supplies . . . traveling long distances for ice over bad, washed-out roads . . . losing valuable meat and milk through spoilage.

Kerosene Electrolux keeps food in perfect condition 24 hours a day . . . brings you all the comforts and conveniences that have made the gas-operated Electrolux Refrigerator the favorite for finest city homes and apartments the country over. It gives you plenty of ice cubes at all times . . . new delicious desserts . . . more freedom from kitchen work.

Picture this beautiful, labor-saving Electrolux in your kitchen! And remember Electrolux operates on ordinary kerosene (coal oil) for just a few pennies a day . . . one filling of the tank lasts a week or more. Owners find that savings on refrigerating cost and on food bills make Electrolux actually pay for itself.

Plenty of ice cubes with Electrolux

Temperature regulator speeds freezing

The outstanding efficiency of Kerosene Electrolux is the result of its simple operation. A wickless glow-type burner does all the work . . . takes the place of all moving, wearing parts. Electrolux uses no water. Clip coupon for booklet.

NOTE ALL THESE ELECTROLUX ADVANTAGES:

- NO MOVING PARTS TO WEAR
- LASTING EFFICIENCY
- CONTINUED LOW RUNNING COST
- FULLEST FOOD PROTECTION
- EVERY WORTH WHILE CONVENIENCE
- SAVINGS THAT PAY FOR IT

The shower given for Mr. and Mrs. James Ogden last Friday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Pettit was attended by a very large crowd. They received many useful gifts from their many friends who wish them a very successful married life. They are preparing to make their home in part of the house owned by Wendel Easton of Burlington.

Mr. Frank Rouse, one of Boone County's best fishermen, has just returned with a report of "GOOD LUCK" from Herrington Lake. Mr. Rouse and his party spent from Friday until Sunday at Dix Dam, and brings back a story that he and his party had all the fish they could eat while there, and also brought several pounds home with them. The result of this trip will probably cause several persons to burn lots of gasoline in the next several days.

HOMEMAKERS CLUB TO MEET

The Hamilton Homemakers Club will meet Wednesday, June 24 at 1:30 P. M. at the school building. Please make an effort to attend.

Railroads in this country will buy and consume more material and supplies this year than at any time since 1931, predicts Dr. Julius H. Parmelee, Director of the Bureau of Railway Economics.

MRS. REA FELDHAUS

Mrs. Rea Lamkin Feldhaus was born June 6, 1886. The daughter of Silas and Emma Lamkin. She united with the Union Baptist church July, 1896. Moved her letter to Beaver Baptist church in 1907. Remained a member there until the departure of her life June 8, 1936. Age 50 years and 2 days.

She was united in marriage to John Feldhaus Nov. 17, 1899. To this union were born nine children, one departing this life in infancy, Mrs. Emma Feldhaus Black departing this life April 30, 1926. She leaves to mourn her death her husband, seven children, five sons and two daughters. Hayes, Charles, Ralph, Albert, William, Sara and Thelma Feldhaus. One brother Earl Lamkin of ElPaso, Texas. Three half brothers Leo, John and Robt. Lamkin, of Moores Hill, Ind. Thirteen grandchildren, a step-mother, two aunts and a host of other relatives and friends.

Mrs. Feldhaus was a faithful wife, a kind and loving mother, even through her long years of suffering until her Saviour called her home. She was a helpful and thoughtful neighbor, kind and considerate of others at all times. She will be greatly missed by the entire community.

Dear mother, we know you are happy.
And all your suffering is oe'r,
But oh! We sadly miss you,
For your voice we hear no more.

BEWARE OF THE WATER

Due to the prolonged spell of dry weather, most all the water in small creeks and ponds has become stagnant and is therefore very dangerous for use as swimming holes and picnics.

A little precaution in time may save you much trouble later. If you have the skin broken, or sores of any kind on your body, do not enter the water at any time until such things are properly cured. If you must go swimming, do so in pools that have access to fresh, running water, and are drained and purified daily.

It is also well to use every care in selecting your drinking water. Under the conditions now existing in Boone county and surrounding territory, with no fresh water for almost two months, many springs and seemingly good drinking watmay be dangerous for drinking purposes. The surest and safest way, if you are in doubt, is to have your water tested for purification. You may secure details on this matter from your county agent, and it would probably relieve many minds to know whether or not the water they are drinking is pure and free from all disease germs.

Burlington -:- Kentucky

DRY WEATHER

BY JOHN S. GARDNER, KENTUCKY COLLEGE OF AGRICULTURE.

It is not the object of this column to emphasize unduly the fact that in many parts of Kentucky, rain shortage exists, but to pass on hits to circumvent this condition, this condition, should it conmore general. As it happens, what applies to gardening in seasons of scant rain-fall, applies also to operating the garden when moisture is adequate, or even excessive.

Water is an important asset to gardeners. All the vegetables contain high percentages of moisture, and, more than that, their quality depends on its being available in lavish amount. Although rains are to be desired, from time to time, during the growing season, vegetables can be produced and have been produced, by utilizing only the rain water and the melted snow that fell in the winter previous. Gardeners who had their land broken last fall, and let it lie rough, were in splendid position to store abundant moisture supplies on which now to draw. This is true of most of the state.

If such lands were early disced fine, or chopped fine with a hoe, to seed depth and below, then dragged or raked to mash out the few clods that remained, the moisture-reservoir, as it were, was sealed. If, further, only shallow stirring of the soil was done in cultivation, to uproot the weeds as soon as they started, that moisture was saved to th evegetables, or, at any rate, a great deal of it.

Not all gardeners had their gardens fall-broken. Some of these in fact, were driven to delay breaking until after the excessive rains of last spring suspended, and in their haste, perhaps did not prepare their seed-beds in fashion fine enough. As a result of clods being present, the soil is quite too porous, and deep moisture rises, and passes off through evaporation. Such gardeners need not give up, even though present vegetable planting do not promise to bear, or to continue living, but should look to making their "second" garden fruitful, staring now, chopping up all clods and reducing them to dust. Then, they should tamp the soil where the rows are to be, with a hoe or a roller, and wait, either for a light rain, or, if the job is properly done for a rise of moisture that is absorbed in every winter season, even in lands left unbroken.

All gardeners, even those favored with adequate moisture should cultivate assidiously, removing any weed competition as soon as it arises. The word is "cultivate;" not "work," for, working carries with it the idea of deep stirring a sure way to waste soil moisture, to say nothing of curtailing root area. If ever a plant needs all its roots, it is in dry times.

Cultivation need go no deeper than ½ inch, but all the soil surface should be covered. The surface, furthermore, should be kept level; hilling and ridging are not necessary in any season; in one these practices are positively harmful, because moisture is wasted, lost to the crops.

A passing word concerning insects is timely. No plant can well spare any of its foliage or any of its plant sap, at any time; in dry times, it is all the more important that any insect injury be checked as soon as it starts. Leaf chewers. should be poisoned, and sap sucking lice and bugs should be stopped with contact sprays.

"Eternal vigilance" and "cultivation" should be the watchword of all Kentucky gardeners, even after the moisture situation has improved.

"COUNTRY THINGS I LOVE MOST"

When people live close to nature, what phases of it do they really love most? Some revealing replies by real farm people are given in a department in The Progressive Farmer, in which they write on "Country Things I Love Most." We quote the following timely extracts:—

"I love clover fields, where the bees keep up a constant humming; a green pasture with a little brook winding its way across the center to meet the creek beyond the woods; to see baby ducks playing in the pond; the hum of a crosscut saw working its way through a log. —Jewell Allen, Putnam County, Tenn."

"I love the little paths of the country, each leading its own way. This one is a short way through the woods to a neighbor's home; another leads to the spring; another to the berry patch or the wild grapes of muscadines. You'd never tire of exploring the mystery of each little path. I love the babies of the country—baby chicks, cheerful and chirping bits as they follow their mother in search of food; baby ducks, yellow balls sailing on the duck pond; baby robins in the nest; baby kittens, white and spotted, climbing and tumbling in the hayloft; baby boys and girls, playing in the sand, gathering nuts, chasing butterflies, hunting flowers. Potential rulers of our nation, they are getting their first lessons close to that wise old teacher, Nature.—Mrs. Stella Holms, Lamar County, Ala."

"I love to hear rain falling on the roof and the sound of thunder 'from way down under,' indicating that another cloud is coming up. I love bright zigzag flashes of lightning plowing across the clouds. I love the feel of new-plowed soil between my bare toes.—T. A. Davis, age 15, Wayne County, Miss."

Federal employment during April rose to a new peace-time high, with a gain of 4,383 in the number of employes. For the month there were 810,418 employes in the Executive Branch of the Federal Government, or 107,000 less than at the close of the World War.

FARMERS CASH INCOME AT HIGHEST SINCE 1930

A new six-year high in farmers' cash income is reported by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics. The total for the first four months of 1936 includes $2,017,000,000 from marketings and $62,000,000 in government rental and benefit payments. This compares with $1,749,000,000 from marketings in the first four months of 1935, and $221,000,000 from rentals and benefits.

"Government payments during the remainer of 1936 will likely exceed the payments in the same months of 1935," the Bureau's report stated, with the further prediction: "It is probable that if industrial activity is maintained, farm income from marketing will be in excess of the 1935 level."

Rural Electrification Administration has allotted or ear-marked $13,435,912 for 92 projects in 29 States. The projects provide for the building of more than 11,000 miles of lines, which will bring electricity to 45,000 new farm customers.

$330,000 TO BE SPENT IN AIR-CONDITIONING 39 DAY COACHES

Approximately $330,000 is being spent by the Louisville & Nashville Railroad in the air-conditioning of 39 days coaches for use in several of its better trains, according to the L. & N. Employes' Magazine for June.

Three of the coaches were completed and placed in service the last week in May. It's expected that of the remaining 36, fourteen will be ready for the rails in June and 22 in July.

Thirty of the air-conditioned coaches will be placed in The Pan-American and Nos. 1 and 4 between Cincinnati and New Orleans and Memphis, and the remainder will be assigned to The Southland, The Flamingo, The Dixie Flyer and the Dixie Limited in joint service between Chicago and Florida.

These coaches, it is stated, will be a far cry from the hot and dusty ones of the past. They will be as spick and span as paint and new materials can make them, and many of them will be further modernized by the addition of lounges and smoking rooms for both men and women.

J. O. Huey, who has been ill for some time, is improv ingrapidly.

It takes 15¼ pounds of bread, cereals or baked goods a week to keep a family of four persons in a healthy, vigorous and moderately contented state, the University of Kentucky home economics department found in a study of diets at minimum costs. The estimate is based upon two active adults, and a girl 12 years old and a boy 9.

As to milk, 17 quarts—not pints—should be consumed regularly every seven days. To afford variety, cheese or some similar dairy product may be substituted, but the quantity should not be lowered. At least 15 eggs should be used, and 5 pounds of lean meat or poultry. Fats and sugars should total 3½ pounds each.

Twelve pounds of potatoes will be enough to meet health requirements, and 5 pounds of tomatoes. Leafy, green and yellow vegetables are needed in the amount of 7½ pounds. That is, peas, spinach, carrots, cauliflower, lettuce, lima beans, broccoli, etc., should be used plentifully. If the garden makes it at all possible to use a larger quantity of vegetables, it should be done.

Dried beans, peas and nuts are important in the minimum cost diet, and 2 pounds a week are required. Two pounds of dried fruits and 8 pounds of other fruits and vegetables, are the last items on the list.

Larger quantities of some foods are desirable, and these figures should be adhered to only where strict economy is necessary. The diet is, however, balanced and fairly adequate.

For the first tin e since it was begun several dec des ago, there may be no decendial census of religious bodies. Scheduled time for the census is this year, but thus far Congress has denied the Census Bureau's request for money to make the survey.

Initial steps in the development of Mammonth Cave and the surrounding area as a national park were taken during the past week with the deeding of a substantial area to the Federal Government by the Kentucky National Park Commission.

Don't forget the play "BLACK EYED SUSAN" to be given at the school auditorium Friday night. The play is under the direction of Miss Beasley, of Georgia, and is sponsored by the P. T. A. of Burlington.

DELIGHTFUL DAY SPENT AT HOME OF LATE JOHN U. LLOYD

A very delightful day was spent on Tuesday of last week at the home of the late Prof. John Uri Lloyd in Hyde Park with Mrs. McWilliams as a most charming hostess. Luncheon was served on the veranda of this beautiful home and the afternoon was spent in meandering through their beautiful grounds.

Those partaking of this pleasant day, were: Mrs. C. T. Blankenbeker, Mrs. Tom Castleman, Miss Anna Cleek, Mrs. Fannie Clutterbuck, Mrs. Pearson, Mrs. Eva Osborne, Mrs. Sallie Highhouse, Mrs. Emma V. Rouse, Mrs. Sarah Marksberry, Miss Lula Caton and Misses Margarite and Lucille Tanner, of Florida.

TO GIVE CHICKEN SUPPER

The ladies of the Florence Christian Church will have a fried chicken supper at the parsonage, just across from the church Saturday, July 11, 1936 from 5 p. m. to 7. p. m.

Price 50 cents. Everyone is cordially invited. 7-3t-ch.

WOOL BRINGS GOOD PRICE

BOONE WOOL GROWERS RECEIVE $18,832.82 FOR 47,839 POUNDS. GROWERS PLEASED WITH SALE.

Boone County wool growers sold 47,839 pounds of wool through the Boone County Wool Pool last Thursday, Friday and Saturday for a toltal of $18,832.82.

The clip consisted of 45,403 pounds of clear and 2,436 pounds of rejects. The clear brought 39.5 cents per pound net to the producer and the rejections 35.5 cents per pound.

The clip was sold to S. Steinharter and Company of Cincinnati. 16,726 pounds of wool was delivered at Walton on Thursday, 16,726 pounds on Friday at Burlington and 11,347 pounds at Petersburg on Saturday. The clip weighed light, but growers received the highest price in recent years. Growers were well pleased with the sale.

Though reluctant to severe my connections with the Recorder, I am inclined to follow the lines of John Locke, "He that has not a mastery over his inclinations, he that knows not how to resist the importunity of present pleasure or pain, for the sake of what reason tells him is fit to be done, wants the true principle of virtue and industry, and is in danger never to be good for anything." Therefore, I feel that to wash the ink from my hands and to re-enter school is logical.

It has indeed given me pleasure to serve as news Editor of the Recorder for the past several months and the experience gained, which was made possible through the never failing cooperation of Northern Kentuckian's will, if properly administered, be of great advantage.

Even though journalistic inexperienced, one of my naturalistic instincts, observations, leaves with me this fact: The Recorder is one of the best weekly papers in Kentucky and its present editor, A. E. Stephens, is worthy of the editorship.

RALPH GARNETT MAURER

GRANT PASTOR IS MARRIED

TO GEORGETOWN GIRL WEDNESDAY OF LAST WEEK. LEFT FOLLOWING CEREMONY FOR TRIP TO WASHINGTON, D. C.

The marriage of Miss Elizabeth Marie Warring, of Georgetown, and the Rev. Raymond Smith, of Grant took place at 8 o'clock Wednesday night of last week at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Roy McFarland, in Georgetown. The ceremony, which was said by the Rev. D. B. Eastep, of Covington, was witnessed only by members of the immediate families.

The house was beautifully decorated with garden flowers and ferns were banked in the living room to form an altar before which the ceremony was said.

Prior to the ceremony Miss Cornelia Gaines, niece of the bride, sang "At Dawning," accompanied at the piano by Mrs. W. T. Warring and the "Bridal Chorus" from "Lohengrin," by Wagner, was played by Mrs. Warring as the bridal party entered. First came the maid of honor, Miss Imogene Maddox, gowned in blue embroidered organdie and carrying a bouquet of Briarcliff roses and delphinium.

The bride was lovely in her wedding gown of white mousseline de sole, designed with high neck, pleated sleeves and full skirt. Her veil of tulle was held in place at the head with a bandeau of pearls. Her bouquet was a shower of bride's roses and delphinium.

They were met at the altar by the bridegroom and his best man, Mr. James Lee McNeely, of Grant.

Following th ceremony a reception was given, after which the Rev. and Mrs. Smith left for a motor trip to Washington, D. C., and other points in the East.

The bride, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Warring, attended Eastern Teachers' College and Georgetown College, and for the past five years has been a teacher in the Scott county schools.

The Rev. Mr. Smith attended Moody Bible College, Chicago, and for the past five years has been pastor of the Belleview Baptist Church at Grant.

ERLANGER MAN SOUGHT

Mrs. John V. Fant, 308 Cross street, Erlanger, reported Saturday that her husband had been missing since Wednesday of last week, and asked that anyone learning his whereabouts notify her.

She said that he left their home en route to work. Neighbors said that he is a man past 50, is light complexioned and has black eyes. It was said that he was employed on a federal project in Kenton county.

ANNOUNCEMENT

A housewarming and dance will be given at Wm. Kennedy's new house on the Hebron and Constance Pike Saturday, June 27th, in the evening. Everyone is invited.

EDITOR WILL RE-ENTER SCHOOL

R. G. MAURER, YOUTHFUL NEWSPAPERMAN AND FORMER CO-EDITOR OF RECORDER TO ENTER EASTERN.

R. G. Maurer, 20, one of the youngest newspapermen in Kentucky and former co-editor of the Recorder, made known this week his plans of resuming his journalistic training at Eastern Kentucky State or University of Kentucky during the coming school year. Mr. Maurer had several years training at Eastern, previous to his connections with the Recorder, but as yet is undecided as to which of the above institutions he will enter. Before becoming affilliated with the Recorder young Maurer served as feature writer and sports editor of the Eastern Progress and did part time wfiting for several Central Kentucky Dailies. He has several similar offers with other Kentucky papers during the coming school year.

A. E. Stephens, who served in the capacity of co-editor with Mr. Maurer has purchased the entire publication and will now serve as editor and business manager.

Mr. Maurer, accompanied by Leslie Voshell, star athlete of Eastern, will leave Monday for a two-month visit through the South, where they expect to visit the Texas Centennial Exposition and other points of interest.

PETERSBURG HOMEMAKERS

The Petersburg club met last Thursday for an all day meeting at the home of Mrs. Mary G. Berkshire. Three new members were added to the roll making a total of twenty-five.

The morning was devoted to the subject of Millinery. The announcements of leaders training classes and the advisory council which will be at Burlington were brought before the club.

At noon a very simple covered dish luncheon was served. In the afternoon the business meeting was held then Miss Gillispie gave a report of the convention held in Washington, which was very much enjoyed. After several games the meeting was closed.

The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. J. B. Berkshire, of Petersburg, July 9th. Don't feel that because these meetings are held at people's homes that you are not welcome, they are for the good of the community, so please attend. Don't forget Mrs. J. B. Berkshire. July 9th at 1:30 p. m.

TWO MORE SEEK CONGRESS SEAT

FIVE CANDIDATES NOW SEEK-SEAT IN CONGRESS. JUDGE JOSEPH P. GOODENOUGH IS IN RACE.

The papers of two additional candidates, Joseph J. Leary and Judgee Joseph P. Goodenough were filed for Kentucky's August primary Monday, bringing the total of entires to five. The incumbent Brent Spence, Ft. Thomas; Jack Allphin, Covington, Jule Appel, Erlanger, had previously been filed.

Mr. Leary is an assistant Kentucky attorney general, and was a member of the battery of orators campaigning northern Kentucky in the interest of Governor Chandler last summer. He is a native of Grant county and a graducate of the Cincinnati Y. M. C. A. Law School.

Judge Goodenough is serving his second term as judge of Covington Police Court. He made the race against Mr. Spence two years ago and was defeated. He is a prominent leader in fraternal and civic circles.

PLANS FOR THE 4-H FAIR

The Boone County 4-H Council will meet Friday night at Burlington, Ky., to make plans for the County 4-H and Utopia Club Fair, to be held in August.

Thee Council Committee is enthused over the prospects for a good fair this year. Plans are for a bigger and better fair.

LOCAL WOMAN OUTSTANDING

IN UTOPIA CLUB WORK ACCORDING TO AGRICULTURE STATION. HAS BEEN 4-H AND UTOPIA MEMBER 8 YEARS.

Mrs. Ben C. Stephens, Burlington has been named by the University of Kentucky, College of Agriculture as the most outstanding Utopia club women in Kentucky. The selection was made on the basis of leadership, the results obtained from projects and the value of her work to the community.

Mrs. Stephens has been a 4-H or Utopia club member eight years, has taught 4-H canning and sewing, been secretary of her Utopia club four years, and secretary of the Boone County Fair Board three years. In her club work, Mrs. Stephens has carried the landscaping, room improvement, gardening, budgeting and canning projects. Last year her sewing brought her $195, and her garden supplied her family with vegetables and $50 worth to sell. She canned 438 quarts of fruits and vegetables.

REV. R. A. JOHNSON LEAVES BIG BONE CHURCH

A very sad occasion happened at the Big Bone Baptist Church Sunday, as the church was filled to its capacity, with people even sitting in the isles, to bid farewell to Bro. Johnson, their beloved pastor.

Rev. Johnson has been pastor of the Big Bone Baptist Church for almost ten years, serving in such a capacity that he has gained the love of all his fellow workers and members. It was the will of the entire church that the hand of God be with him wherever he goes.

Services were conducted at the usual morning hour, followed by a basket dinner in the grove by the church. In the afternoon there was a short session at the church, after which they went to Hamilton to perform the baptismal services. Twelve members were baptised.

Rev. Johnson left Sunday night for Paintsville, Ky., where he will become pastor of the church there.

AMERICAN LEGION TO GIVE DANCE

There will be a public dance given by the American Legion, Post No. 4 at the Beautiful Harvest Home Grounds, Hebron-Limaburg Road, Saturday, July 4th.

The music will be furnished by the Griffins Twin Oak Orchestra with a Blues Singer as a special attraction. There will be dancing from 9 to 1 (fast time). Everyone is cordially invited.

ALLPHIN IN RACE FOR CONGRESS

KENTON COUNTY ANTI-ORGANZATION LEADER WILL OPPOSE SPENCE IN FIFTH DISTRICT.

Jack Allphin, president of the Kenton County Young Men's Democratic Club, announced Friday his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for Congress against Brent Spence, incumbent.

Mr. Allphin, who has been aligned with the anti-organization sympathizers, made his annoucement on the heels of Richard Northcutt's decision to stay out of the race Thursday. Mr. Northcutt is a Covington attorney.

Recall Kratz Campaign

In making public his decision, Mr. Allphin said, "I organized the strongest antiorganization ever built in Kenton county when the late O. A. Kratz ran for city commissioner. We were succesesful in elevating him to office over the protests of the "gang." Two other candidates, practically unknown, but indorsed by my group made a good showing even though defeated. Mr. Kratz, himself, received more than 8000 votes.

"This same organization will work for me. In addition, I have been a friend of Governor A. B. Chandler long before he made the race for governor. I was one of his first and earnest supporters.

"The New Democracy"

"I represent the new Democracy in the Fifth District and have fought the old-line gang against the greatest of odds and have been successful in defeating them each time.

"I am well known throughout the district. I have relatives either holding or who have held elective offices in six of the nine counties. I am in the race to win and I have the courage to fight and the courage to win."

Thus far Mr. Allphin and Congressman Spence are the only avowed candidates. Rumors have had several others making the race, including State Representative John M. Hunnicutt, Judge Joseph Goodenough, and Robert Hensley, Burlington, organizer for the Kentucky Young Democratic Clubs in colleges and universities.

LOCAL DOCTOR MOVES TO LAWRENCEBURG, KY

Dr. and Mrs. R. N. Lawson, residents of Burlington for the past several months, moved from here Monday to Lawrenceburg, Ky., where Dr. Lawson will continue the practice of medicine in that place.

Dr. Lawson is a young and capable physician, and has established many friends and customers in his brief stay in this community. We regret to see such valuable citizens leave us, and too, this leaves our town with only one active doctor.

The Recorder and its many readers wish to express their regret for their depature from us, but wish them success in their new field.

ANOTHER HAT IN SENATE RACE

J. C. W. BECKHAM ANNOUNCES HIS CANDIDACY FOR UNITED STATES SENATOR. RESIGNS POST AT FRANKFORT.

Frankfort, Ky., June 19—John Creeps Wickliffe Beckham of Louisville resigned today as Chairman of the Kentucky Public Service Commission and as head of the new department of Business Regulation, and announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for United States Senator.

Beckham brought his declaration papers to the office of Charles D. Arnett, Secretary of State, shortly after he presented his resignation to Governor Chandler. He did not reseign his non-salaried position as Chairman of the Governor's Reorganization Commission.

Resignation from the Chairmanship of the Public Service Commission, which carried with it Directorship of the new Department of Business Regulation, was required by law when Beckham made his announcement of candidacy.

The former Governor's notification paper s were signed by L. Boone Hamilton, Judge of Franklin County Court, and M. J. Meagher, Frankfort merchant.

Although Chandler did not immediateley accept the resignation, he said he would do so, probably as of July 1. The Governor withheld comment when asked if he would actively support Beckham for the Senatorship. Neither did he disclose his choice to succeed Beckham as head of the Public Service Commission and the Department of Busineses Regulation. He indicated he would fill the vacancy upon his return from the Democratic National Convention at Philadelphia next week.

Beckham said he would issue a formal statement concerning his candidacy following his return from Philadelphia.

HOMEMAKERS TO MEET IN BURLINGTON

The fourth Leader's Training Class of the Homemakers' Clubs will be held Friday, June 26 in Burlington. Mrs. J. H. Huey, county project leader, will ask for a report of work being done in each club.

Miss Ida C. Hagman, specialist of the Extension Division, College of Agriculture, U. of K. will lead the discussion and work on the project, "The Livable Home."

County wide policies of the Boone Homemakers' Clubs will be discussed and adopted by the Presidents of the local club at an Advisory Council meeting in Burlington, Thursday.

Officers of the Council are: President. Mrs. Jake Cleek, New Haven; Vice Pres., Mrs. Mattie Mae Hamilton, Verona and Secretary, Mrs. John L. Vest, Walton.

Miss Lulie Logan, Asst. State Leader of Home Dem. Agents will explain the state constitution of Federation of Homemakers' Clubs.

OPEN HOUSE AT CCC CAMP

VISITORS TO BE SHOWN ABOUT CAMP BY GUIDES. EXHIBITION OF HANDICRAFT WORK WILL BE ON DISPLAY.

Extensive plans are being formulated by the Officers, Technical Staff and Educational Department of CCC Company 3541 for the holding of "Open House" at the Camp Site in Walton, Ky., for the members of the families of the enrollees and the citizens of the town of Walton and counties of Boone, Kenton and Campbell on Sunday, June 28, 1936. The camp will be officially opened for the day at 10 o'clock when the visitors will be shown throughout the camp area for the purpose of inspecting the various buildings in Camp. Competent guides will explain the use of each building and the part that it plays in camp life. An exhibition of handicraft work will be on display in the Recreation Hall.

At 12:30 tables will be provided upon which the visitors may spread their lunch. At 2 o'clock a soft ball game will be held between members of the camp and a team selected from the visitors. A Field Day program will take place from 3 o'clock until 4:30. From 4:30 until 5:15 a musical concert will be presented and refreshments served.

Preparations are being made for a group of visitors and all citizens are cordially invited to attend so that they may obtain a better conception of the work that the Civilian Conservation Corps is doing in this territory.

The "Open House" program follows:

10:00—Open House begins.

10 to 12—Inspection of buildings

11:30—Mess for men who have no visitors.

12:30—General mess. Tables provided for visitors who will bring their picnic lunches. Refreshments other than food will be served by the Company.

2:00—Soft ball game with team selected from the visitors.

3:15—Field Day. 1.100 yard dash baseball throw; three-legged race; sack relay race; centipede race; high jump; running broad jump; standing broad jump.

4:15—Musical con[illegible].

5:00—Refreshments Served.

BELLEVIEW BALL CLUB HAS NEW MANAGER

W. (Mutt) Rogers was elected manager of the Belleview ball club Sunday shortly after the game with Mt. Washington.

Mr. Rogers has been in baseball a number of year and has a very good record as a player. For this season his fielding averaged .992 and his batting average is .941, and has had many such seasons in his baseball career. Out on the playing field "Mutt" is a good sportsman and he is in there fighting from the time the first ball is pitched until the last man is out.

Fans at 2:00 Sunday afternoon you will find the new pilot and his team at the Belleview ball park, starting against the hard fighting St. Joe team.

AYLOR ESTATE TO BE SOLD

AT PUBLIC AUCTION THURSDAY RAIN OR SHINE—R. G. KINMAN AUCTION CO., HAS CHARGE OF SALE.

In order to settle the estate of Ruth Aylor, deceased, there will be a public auction Thursday, July 2, on the premises, just out of the city limits of Florence, Ky., on Burlington pike. The sale will consist of six-room house and about two acres of land. This place is located about nine miles south of Covington on a state highway and will make an ideal country home for anyone. Especially for someone who works in the city. This property is in wonderful condition and must be seen to be appreciated.

The heirs of the late Ruth Aylor have placed this sale in the hands of that well-known A. G. Kinman Auction., who have made an outstanding name for themselves throughout Boone County in the past few years.

Editorial of the Week

OLD AGE-PENSIONS

Recent national surveys of public opinion upon old-age pensions show that a tremendous majority of people of the country, independent of their political parties, favor this class of pensions "in principle." Evidently the greatest support is for a monthly sum of about $40, effective at about 60 years of age. So, while the suggestion of old Doctor Townsend, the late Huey Long, and Father Coughlin continue to attract popular attention those extravagancies appear to be 'runing down." The trend increases in favor of pensions in smaller amounts.

The idea of old-age pensions is not new. Some of the States have well-developed plans in operation. The Army, the Navy, and Government and State employees, have long been beneficiaries of retirement and pension plans. A great many industries, large and small also have their own arrangements. Many of these have been built up by independent efforts.

Evidently this is one of the big human problems about to be solved, since public opinion is apparently moving forward in its favor. A way that will be fair to old people is the whole spirit and essence of this "principle."

PLENTY OF MONEY AHEAD—MAYBE!

We cheerfully admit our lack of knowledge of the probable yield of various forms of taxation in the United States. Whether the new revenue measure, so long debated by the House and Senate, is necessary, we do not know. However. it is interesting to read the statement of Chester T. Crowell, in his book, "Recovery Unlimited." He says:

"The most careful calculations I have been able to obtain indicate that, on the basis of 1929 conditions, the present tax structure would yield a revenue to the Federal Government of close to eight billions of dollars. This is considerably more than the Federal Government needs for ordinary expenses."

The only flaw in the argument, it appears, is that the country is not yet on the basis of 1929 conditions. Let us hope that the Federal Government will find ample resources to pay for its emergency expenditures.

TO THOSE WHO WILL DROWN

Because most of the accidents resultsing in loss of life through drowning are due to inexperience or carelessness, and hence preventable, it is well to call attention to this danger as the open-air season gets underway.

Persons unable to swim, inexperienced in handling watercraft, and ignorant of the water into which they venture, need not be surprised if something happens when nobody is around to pull them out.

Parents of young children should take the precaution of warning their offspring of the danger of "harmless" wading in water. Along this line, it may be well to call attention to the importance of teaching children to swim. Many lives would be saved each year if unfortunate victims had a slight knowledge of how to keep afloat for even a few minutes.

JEST A-WHITTLIN' AN' A-THINKIN'

By Pete Gettys

When the Lord made the world in six days he rectainly was entitled to rest on the seventh. Jest think of the details he had to take care of to make all the birds an' animals an' fishes an' plants an' trees an' flowers!

Jest teachin' the migratory birds where to go and the way there and back, was about as interestin' a thing He ever did. And strangely enough, migrations of birds is old stuff. It's in the books back there nearly 3,000 years, to the times of Homer, Herodotus, Aristotle, and other old fellers like that.

Even in the Bible are several references to these rgular movements of birds. In Job: "Doth the hawk fly by Thy wisdom, and stretch her wings toward the South?" And Jeremiah wrote: "The stork in the heavens knoweth her appointed time; and the turtle (dove), and the crane, and the swallow observe the time of their coming." An' the flight of quail that saved the Israelites from starvation in their wanderings in the Wilderness of Sinai is now figured out as a hoppin' big movement of quail between their breedin' grounds an' their winter home in Africa.

Looks as if country folks and city folks are takin' more interest in birds than they used to do. At one time, express cars were packed full with coops of quail that'd been caught in nets, bein' shipped to the northern markets—whole covies were wiped out—an' the Government figures every quail on the farm is worth $5 for the bugs and weed seeds he eats.

An' these Game Conservation fellers are doin' great work—hatchin' quail in incubators and raisin' 'em in brooders like baby chicks.

Here's some sure nuff signs of improvin' business conditions that beat all the opinions of them expert professional economists:

"Patent medicine men, with their bags of tricks and 'cure alls,' plentiful this season."

"The big circus tent full each night."

"Farmers again carryin' check books."

"Farm homes and buildings showin' signs of recent repair."

"The lightning rod salesman, almost unheard of for the past several years, again making the rounds."

"The actual business gains boasted by automobile dealers, merchants andants and bankers."

TIMELY TOPICS

The alcoholic "hangover" of the morning after is caused by the formation of an excess of lactic acid in the system, according to Yale scientists. These same bright scientists have also discovered that laying off booze tends to ultimately banish the excess lactic acid and relieve the hangover.

It may interest some to know that the first woman typist in the world was recently reported alive and well at the age of 71. She is Mrs. Charles L. Fortier, of Milwaukee, daughter of Christopher L. Shoals, who is credited with being the inventor of the first practical typewriter.

Upon being naturalized some aliens Anglicize or shorten their names. But a Greek who applied for citizenship in Newark spurned the suggestion of the court clerk that a little shortening of his cognomen might be advisable, and will stick to his original name, which is Constantine Pappadimitrilloupoulos.

After being held up six different times, Louis Wajay, a young Chicago pharmacist, concluded that enough of anything is a plenty, so concealed two automatic pistols under his counter. When two bandits attempted the seventh holdup, he killed one and caused the other to flee.

Those of us who have difficulty in using the mother tongue correctly may take heart from the fact that many famous persons have or had the same trouble. Once when Henry Ward Beecher was told he had used bad grammar in a sermon he said: "Old I? Well, all I have to say is, God help grammar when it gets in my way when I'm preaching."

Dr. Kendall, of the Mayo Clinic, Rochester, Minn., has discovered the chemical structure of the hormone of the suprarental cortex gland. If any reader wants to make some of the stuff, here is the Kendall formula: "The monoether of epinephrine and beta-methyl - beta-ethyl dihydroxypropionic acid, combined as an ester with the phenol group of beta-o-hydroxyphenyl-beta hydroxypropionaldehyde."

Lesson for June 28

REVIEW: JESUS MEETING HUMAN NEEDS

GOLDEN TEXT—Jesus of Nazareth . . . went about doing good.—Acts 10:38.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Our Best Friend.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Because He Lives.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Jesus Meeting My Needs.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC — Jesus Meeting the World's Needs.

The lessons of the quarter center in one supreme person and have one transcendent theme, Jesus Christ the world's Savior. The best method of review for senior and adult classes will be to refresh the mind with the principal facts and leading teachings of each lesson. The following suggestions are offered:

Lesson for April 5.

The great supper represents God's gracious provision of salvation for mankind. The urgent invitation is extended to all to accept Jesus Christ as Savior. The making of excuses illustrates the sin and folly of men in rejecting God's free grace.

Lesson for April 12.

The resurrection of Jesus Christ is the supreme proof of the deity of Jesus Christ. The empty tomb is the divine guarantee that Christ was what he claimed to be, and that his offering on Calvary's cross was accepted by God.

Lesson for April 19.

The center of interest in this parable is not the prodigal son or his brother, but a certain man who had two sons. He who fails to see the heart of our Father God will miss the purpose of the parable. The whole of revelation as it pertains to a sinning race and a pardoning God is swept before us in this narrative.

Lesson for April 26.

The story of the rich man and Lazarus gives us a look into two worlds. In this world the rich man lived in luxury while Lazarus begged at his door. In the other world, their positions are reversed. Death is coming to rich and poor. Worldly condition is not a test of man's relationship to God. The rich man did not go to hell because he was rich, neither did Lazarus go to heaven because he was poor.

Lesson for May 3.

Forgiveness is a Christian obligation. Humility is a Christian quality. Gratitude is an uncommon grace. The nine lepers who were healed failed to express gratitude to the healer.

Lesson for May 10.

Prayer is an obligation on the part of the believer. Spiritual growth is absolutely impossible without it. Men should pray under all circumstances.

Lesson for May 17.

Zacchaeus brushed aside all difficulties in order to see Jesus. He proved the reality of his conversion by making restitution. He was saved instantly upon receiving Jesus Christ. Salvation is a present reality to those who believe on Jesus Christ.

Lesson for May 24.

Jesus warned against the scribes. They claimed to be loyal to the Word of God yet showed their lack of the saving grace of God. In connection with his teaching in the temple, Jesus prophesied of his return and warned against unpreparedness as to his coming.

Lesson for May 31.

The last meal that Jesus ate with his disciples was the passover, the memorial of the national deliverance which pointed to the supreme deliverance to be effected by Christ on the cross of Calvary. In connection with the passover, the feast of the new covenant was instituted. This feast has a double import, looking backward to the great deliverance wrought through Christ's atoning death and forward to the even greater deliverance which he shall accomplish at his second coming.

Lesson for June 7.

Jesus' indescribable agony in the garden shows what it cost the sinless Son of God to identify himself with the sinning race, when in anguish he sweat as it were great drops of blood.

Lesson for June 14.

The crucifixion of Jesus Christ was the greatest tragedy of all history. May the fact of the sinless Son of God suffering for a sinning race, move all sinners to accept salvation at his hand.

Lesson for June 21.

Jesus, having given the disciples the parting message to evangelize the world, ascended into heaven. May these last words of our Lord be received by us as our supreme obligation to take the gospel to every creature.

The lessons of the entire quarter have been rich in teaching material. A faithful presentation of the Bible messages given should mean conversion for some and growth in grace for many.

Pray Continually

Accustom yourself gradually to carry prayer into all your daily occupations. Speak, move, work, in peace, as if you were in prayer, as indeed you ought to be. Do everything without excitement, by the spirit of grace.—Fenelon.

Great Designs

Great designs are not accomplished without enthusiasm of some sort. It is the inspiration of everything great. Without it no man is to be feared, and with it none despised.—Bovee.

EAST BEND

Rev. Roy Johnson baptized 12 new members of Big Bone Baptist Church Sunday at Hamilton.

Ross Shinkle entertained guests Sunday.

Nearly everyone from this neighborhood attended the all-day services at Big Bone Baptist Church as it was our pastor, Rev. R. A. Johnson's farewell sermon and in the evening the congregation went to the river and twelve new additions were baptized at four o'clock.

Master R. W. Black called on Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Hubbard over the week-end.

Miss Willneetta Shinkle and brother, Buster, spent one night with their aunts and uncle, Ross Shinkle and sisters.

Mrs. Hazel Viola Smith and sister, Gladys Isaacs, have returned from Glencoe, where they were visiting relatives.

Mrs. Ross Isaacs and two daughters, Hazel and Gladys, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Black were calling on Mrs. Bid Huff, of Hamilton Sunday.

Miss Velma Lea Black spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Harmon Tanner, of Waterloo.

Rev. R. A. Johnson has been conducting a meeting at Big Bone Springs in the grove. It was well attended and may God bless Bro. Johnson, as he goes on through life, and may his be a bright and shining light for some one else to pattern by.

We are very sorry to hear of the passing of Mrs. McCubbins, of near Walton. May God comfort the broken-hearted family.

Thelma Hodges spent the week-end with her sister, Mrs. Melvina McCubbins.

A very sad occasion happened at Big Bone Baptist Church Sunday night when the church was filled to its capacity with people even sitting in the isles to bid goodbye to Bro. Johnson, who was leaving us. Brother Johnson has been with us at Big Bone for ten long years and we feel that we are losing one of the family. Friends there were tears shed, grief, broken hearts, as he was dearly loved by all the members of this church and everyone else, but whatever God's will, it is ours and may God be with him and if we are not together here anymore, may we meet in that happy home up yonder where there will be no more parting.

Miss Mary Utz, Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Allen spent Sunday afternoon with this scribe.

Lou Crutcher, Mr. and Mrs. Lesford, of Hebron, and James Beall, of Hamilton, O., made this scribe a brief call last Sunday.

Mrs. Zadie Aylor, after an illness of several weeks, died at her home in Hebron on Friday of last week. The remains were brought to Hopeful last Monday, where a very appropriate funeral service was conducted by Rev. Noble Lucas, pastor of the Bullittsville Christian Church of which she was a very faithful member. She leaves to mourn her departure, one sister, Mrs. Lou Crutcher, of Hebron, one brother, Elmer Beall, of Hamilton, Ohio, and a large number of other relatives and friends. She was laid to rest in Hopeful cemetery by the side of her husband who preceded her to the grave several years ago.

BEAVER LICK

(Delayed)

On account of the all day meeting at Big Bone Sunday June 21st, Rev. R. A. Johnson will conduct services at the Baptist church here on Saturday at 7:45 p. m., instead of Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Mollie Cleek, of Walton, and her daughter Mrs. C. F. Blankenbeker, of Florence, spent several days here last week visiting Mrs. Emma Cleek and Miss Anna Cleek and other relatives.

We were sorry to hear that Mr. and Mrs. Dick Black, of near Union lost their residence by fire Saturday.

Mrs. Lucy Aikens of Rising Sun, Ind., spent part of last week here with her sister, Mrs. A. A. Roter and family.

Mrs. Sam B. Sleet, attended the meeting of the Woman's club, which met with Mrs. Stevens, of Walton, Friday of last week.

Milford Moore, who has been in the hospital for several weeks, sufferering with a broken leg, was brought to his home here Sunday. He is getting along nicely but will be confined to his bed for some time yet.

Mr. and Mrs. Guy Lawrence Evans, (nee Katherine Dudley) of Pueblo, Colo., who were married in that city June 1st, and who have been spending their honey-moon at New York, Washington and other places of interest in the East, stopped off for a short visit with Mrs. Evan's uncle, Sam B. Sleet and wife on their way back to their home.

Mrs. Emma Cleek and daughter Miss Anna, entertained on Sunday for Mr. and Mrs. Jake Cleek, Mr. and Mrs. John Delahunty and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Green.

WORLD'S MIGHTIEST CIRCUS COMING SOON

With the most impressive and brilliant seven-ring-and-stage program in its history, the Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Combined Circus, which will exhibit in Cincinnati, Friday July 10th offers this season, as a sensational super-feature, a herd of African pigmy elephants, the first ever to set foot on this continent. These tiny tuskers are not babies, but full-grown, middle-aged midget elephants, the rarest animals on the face of the earth. Accompanying them is a heerd of miniature African pongurs, the world's smallest beasts of burden. The pigmy elephants have proven the greatest attraction the Big Show has ever placed before the public, not even excepting its presentations in the past of the dis-lipped Ubangis, the giraffee-necked women from Burma, the sacred white elephant of Siam, Jumbo, Tom Thumb and Goliath, the sea elephant.

Among the scores of new features to say nothing of the new importations from Europe and Asia, including the incredible Naitto troupe, the Royal Bokara troupe, the Imperial Viennese equestrian troupe, the great Frederico and a free running horse, pony and elephant liberty act of sixty members, is Col. Tim McCoy, the screen's most outstanding western star, at the head of his congress of rough riders of the world—Cossacks, cowboys, cowgirls, caqueros, Sioux and Blackfeet warriors and Australian bushrangers. Col. McCoy, plainsman, cavalry officer in the U. S. Army Reserve and friend fo the Indian, is the idol of American boys and girls, and he will be seen in both the main performances and the wild west.

The Greatest Show on Earth heads into this territory on four long railroad trains of 100 cars, with 1600 people, 7 herds of full-sized elephant actors, 1009 menageriee animals and 700 horses. Its tented city covers 14 acres of ground. There are 31 large tents, including the world's largest big top, seating 16,000 persons.

This is the peak season for youth and beauty among the 800 world famous arenic artists with the show. In the air, in the three rings on the four stages and in the quarter-mile hippodrome track will be seen hundreds of pretty girls. In the 60-girl aeerial ballet, the most beautiful midair display ever produced, there are beauties that evoke columns of newspaper commnt wherever the Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Combined Circus exhibits.

Most men will go to any amount of trouble to be able to have a good time.

ENJOY THE CONVENIENCE OF RUNNING HOT WATER

NEW LOW Off Peak WATER HEATING RATE

Makes it economical to heat water Electrically

Off-Peak Water Heating Rate
1½¢ PER KWH.
Minimum Billing, $2.00 Per Month

A Westinghouse automatic electric water heater like this will solve your hot water problems forever. Installed on easy terms.

TO widen the usefulness of electricity in the home, we have installed a new low rate for off-peak water-heating service, which makes it economical for the average family to enjoy the convenience of running hot water. The new rate, shown at the left, is available to any of our customers in this district upon written application. It applies specifically to water-heating service, the kilowatt-hours used to be billed and metered separately.

Hot Water Always Ready at the Turn of a Faucet . . . No Waiting . . . No Bother

An automatic electric water heater ends the bother and uncertainty of old-fashioned water heating methods. Connected to faucets in your kitchen and bathroom, it provides a constant, never-failing supply of hot water. There is no waiting, no fire to start, no water to carry, no soot, no dirt, no bother of any kind. You simply turn a faucet and the water is there . . . steaming hot and in abundance. It's a convenience no modern home can afford to be without. Come in and let us tell you more about it.

THE BLACK LEGION

Recent revelations of the existence of a terrorist organization in Detroit, usually referred to as the Black Legion, is an amazing disclosure to many Americans who have assured themselves that there is no room in this democratic country for such an association.

The only thing that we know about the Detroit secret society is what has been printed in the newspapers of the country, but, as a general rule, the people of the United States will do well to condemn any secret society which attempts to dabble in politics or to right the wrongs of the country. That the Black Legion has been able to attract thousands of members is unmistakable evidence that there are many citizens in this country who need a course of instructions on the principles of Americanism.

Some men would make more money if they paid more attention to their work and less to the luck of their competitors.

Psychologists advise girls to show the best side of their dispositions. They might as well—they show everything else.

Every state in the Union boasts of its climate. Some stress the sunshine and a few have been known to boost the moonshine.

This is a good time to remember that is, you see the lightning flash, it has not hit you, even if the thundner clap threatens to scare you to death.

Dr. O. S. Crisler, wife and son, Robert, of Columbia, Mo., are spending several days with Mrs. Lavina Kirkpatrick and family.

"ELECTROLUX GIVES US PERFECT REFRIGERATION ... SAVES ENOUGH TO PAY FOR ITSELF"

READ WHAT MRS. E. C. GUMMAGE, EUFAULA, ALA., WRITES: "Living nine miles from the ice plant was a great inconvenience to go for ice every two days—then refrigeration was not uniform, causing food spoilage when we could not get ice. Now with our Kerosene Electrolux we have all the ice we need. The ample food storage capacity enables me to save lots of leftovers. We figure our Electrolux will save us its price every year."

RUNS ON KEROSENE (COAL OIL) WITHOUT MACHINERY

NEEDS NO ELECTRIC CURRENT... NO DAILY ATTENTION

Plenty of ice cubes with Electrolux

Temperature regulator speeds freezing

KEROSENE Electrolux keeps food fresh every minute of every day ... brings you all the comforts and conveniences that have made the famous gas-operated Electrolux the choice for finest city homes and apartments from coast to coast. It gives you such things as plenty of ice cubes at all times ... new delicious frozen desserts ... more freedom from kitchen work.

And consider this: Electrolux operates on ordinary kerosene for only a few pennies a day. One filling of the tank lasts a week or more. Owners find that Electrolux actually saves enough on food bills and refrigerating cost to pay for itself.

This outstanding efficiency is the result of Electrolux's simple refrigerating principle. A wickless glow-type kerosene burner does all the work ... takes the place of moving, wearing parts. Today, write for free literature about this beautiful, labor-saving refrigerator. Use the coupon below.

QUICK FACTS

- No moving parts to wear
- Lasting efficiency
- Continued low operating cost
- Fullest food protection
- Every worthwhile convenience

FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT IS FAVORITE OF DEMOCRATS

Microphones Carries Acceptance Speech To Millions Throughout United States Saturday.

The President spoke Saturday night to a huge audience in Philadlephia, which had gathered to hear him and Vice President Garner accept nomination to the highest elective offices in the United States.

Microphones carried his words to another audience, numbering in the millions, which listened over the radio. A large proportion of that audience was gathered in thousands of similar meetings, staged throughout the country by the Democratic party.

The President's address was the climax of nearly a week of political demonstration which since Tuesday had been a major feature of the Democratic National Convention, meeting in Philadelphia. It also was the climax of nearly three and a half years of office as President. It was the prelude to the judgment of the electorate in the November elections.

At the conclusion of his speech the President was to go immediately to the Summer White House at Hyde Park where he planned to remain until Monday night before returning to Washington.

Last week opened for the President with a full schedule of work ahead to complete action on the huge batch of bills which Congress had passed in its closing week haste.

Although the study of bills took up part of Sunday after the President, accompanied by William C. Bullitt, United States Ambassador to Russia, had attended services at Tt. Thomas Episcopal Church, the routine task left in the wake of Congress soon was superceded by the real business of the week—the Democratic National Convention.

GULLET-COOK

The wedding of Miss Mary Gullett and Mr. George Cook was quietly solemnized at the home of the bride in West Liberty, Ky., last Thursday, June 25th.

The young couple, accompanied by Miss Myrtle Gullett, sister of the bride as maid of honor, and Mr. Hobart Arnett as best man, entered the parlor at 11:00 a. m. sharp to the strains of Lohengrin, played by Mrs. Hattie Baldwin. A large company of friends and relatives were present. Rev. J. Clyde Wheeler, pastor of the Castlewood Christian Church, of Lexington officiated. Rev. Clyde Boggs, of the West Liberty Methodist Church offered the prayer.

Mrs. Cook, the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. A. P. Gullett is a native of West Liberty, where she received high school education. She is also a graduate of the Lois Glynn School of Beauty Culture. Mr. Cook, a native of Boone County, studied at Transylvania University and is now a teacher in Burlington.

After a delicious wedding dinner, attended by the family and a number of friends, the couple left for a short honeymoon trip through Northern Kentucky. They will make their home in Burlington.

SEVERAL INJURED IN AUTO CRASH

ON DIXIE HIGHWAY NEAR FLORENCE—DRIVER HELD IN BURLINGTON JAIL UNDER $1,000 BOND.

Several persons were injured late Sunday night when two cars collided on State Highway 25, Florence, just opposite Dorothy Avenue. Sheriff W. B. Cotton was called to the scene and both drivers were brought before County Judge N. E. Riddell for hearing.

The injured were: Wm. McWhoiter. hitch-hiker, Bernard Schaburn, of Newport, Mrs. G. Thoburn, Newport, Otis Hambree, Newport, and John Kinney, of Cincinnati. Although most of the injuries were cuts and bruises, Mr. Schaburn was removed to St. Elizabeth Hospital after treatment from a local physician.

The car bound for Newport and driven by Otis Hambree was said to have noticed the reckless driving of the car driven by Kinney and had pulled his car to the proper side of the road and had completely stopped before Kinney struck him. Both cars were badly damaged.

In the hearing before Judge Riddell, Hambree charged Kinney with reckless driving and also driving while intoxicated. Kinney was placed under temporary bond of $1,000, depending upon the seriousness of the injuries received by the occupants of the cars.

Being unable to raise the bond at the late hour Sunday night, Mr. Kinney, 4910 Paddock Road, Cincinnati, was placed in Burlington jail.

Quite a few from this town have been attending the church services being held at Gunpowder. The sermons are being delivered by Rev. James, of Burlington, and nice crowds have been reported.

MAJOR PLANKS IN 1936 DEMOCRATIC PLATFORM

Philadelphia, June 26—Here are major points of the Democratic platform:

1: Regulation of commerce and of hours and wages "within the Constitution," but pledge to seek a constitutional amendment if necessary to permit state and federal governments "each within its jurisdiction" to guard economic security and regulate commerce.

2: Co-operation between federal and state governments to solve national problems, as opposed to Republican call for return of powers to states.

3: Continuance of reciprocal tariff policy, denounced by G. O. P.

4: Continuance of present monetary policy to maintain "a sound currency and prevent former fluctuations." Landon interpreted the G. O. P. plank to mean a call for the gold standard when feasible.

5: A challenge to compare "three years of New Deal recovery with 12 years Republicanism that left our nation sorely stricken."

6: Aid to farmers in form of assisting victims of disaster and providing low-rate farm deft refinancing.

7: "Fearless enforcement" of anti-trust laws and promise of a balanced budget.

8: Continuance of rural electrification.

9: Broadening of federal housing program.

10: Protection of labor's right to bargain collectively and continuance of program against sweat shops and child labor.

11: Continuance of unemployment relief as a national problem.

12: Extension of merit system among federal job holders, a point emphasized by Landon who called for complete civil service through Postoffice Department.

Report has reached this office that Boone Ryle, now living in Florida, is improving from a recent illness. His health is reported much better at the present time.

IMPROVEMENT ON RURAL ROADS

FOR BOONE COUNTY—$11,849.90 HAS BEEN ALLOTED FOR REPAIRING RURAL ROADS, ACCORING TO CECIL WILLIAMS.

It was announced today by Cecil T. William, Commissioner of Rural Highways, State of Kentucky, that forty-three (43) counties have submitted their programs. amounting to $697,600.10, and that work on most of the projects will be under way by July 15.

Since the Division of Rural Highways was set up, May 1st, 1936, delegations from fifty-nine (59) counties have visited the Department, Mr. Williams stated. Nearly two hundred county officials comprised these delegations.

Seventeen counties have submitted their programs but have not sent delegations to Frankfort, Mr. Williams said.

The forty-three (43) programs submitted have been forwarded to the District Highway Engineers, in the various districts for investigation and approval.

Mr. Williams stated a large number of the counties have made application for convict labor but there has been some delay in getting this labor on the Highways, due to the large amount of work to be done by the Welfare Board in determining the per diem cost to the Highway Department. The cost of this labor is to be charged to the counties' allotments from the two million ($2,000,000.00) dollar rural road fund.

Mr. Williams stated, his department this week appointed Assistant District Engineers in each of the nine Road Districts to handle rural road work and this should speed up the work of his department.

The amount allocatd to Boone County, for construction, improvement and repairing rural roads,, was $11,849.90.

The program for Boone County has been received by the Division of Rural Highways, Mr. Williams, said.

FOUR-H FAIR AUGUST 22ND

PLANS BEING MADE FOR BEST FAIR SINCE STARTING OF THE EVENT FOUR YEARS AGO—ARRANGEMENTS MADE FRIDAY.

The Boone County 4-H and Utopia Club Fair and County Picnic date has temporarily been set for Saturday, August 22nd. Plans are for the best fair since the starting of the event four years ago.

Arrangements for the fair were made by the 4-H and Utopia Club Council in a meeting held at Burlington on Friday night. The Council elected the following officers for 1936: D. H. Norris, Chairman; John E. Crigler, Secretary; John Conner, Treasurer; R. V. Lents, Advertising Manager; Mrs. Vernon Pope and Mrs. B. C. Stephens on other committees. The next meeting of the Council will be held at Burlington Courthouse Monday, July 6th at 7:30 p. m.

COSMETICS TAX RAPPED

COVINGTON PRESIDENT OF PHARMACEUTICAL ASSOCIATION SAYS LEVY IS OPPRESSIVE, INHUMAN.

Louisville, Ky., June 23—Herman Schuler, Covington, today called the new state cosmetics tax ophe, as President of the Kentucky pressive, overburdening, inhuman and unAmerican lawmaking when he, as President of the Kentucky Pharmaceutical Association, addressed its convention which opened here with 1,000 druggists attending.

Schuler warned the druggists to guard against future laws like the cosmetics tax, which becomes effective July 1. He recommended that they form a Druggist Legislative League to obtain fair trade activities, guard them against "unbearable legislation," and support legislation to their taste. Schuler pointed out that even with the effective date of the tax law so near, "here has been no effort by the drug industry to furnish authorities with information that would be valuable in formulating plans for enforcement.

Horace A. Taylor, a druggist and President of the Louisville Board of Aldermen, told the convention that closer cooperation and more effective organization by druggists might have prevented the cosmetic tax being adopted.

T. W. Hoskins, state health board food and drug inspector, and Charles Ehlers, Cincinnati, President of the National Rtail Druggists Association, were other speakers today.

The convention will last through Friday.

Nick Webster narrowly escaped serious injury, when a rock fell on him while working on a basement for A. B. Renaker.

ROGERS TO GET HIGHWAY POST

ACCORDING TO REPORTS FROM FRANKFORT — SWEEPING CHANGES IN GOVERNMENT TO BE MADE THIS WEEK.

Frankfort, Ky., June 29—Changes in the state government, more sweeping than ever attempted in the history of the state, will be made during the week.

O. M. Rogers, Covington, will be the Fifth District advisory highway commissioner, it was reliably reported today.

A new state highway commissioner will be named together with nine advisory commissioners. The veteran Ben Johnson, Bardstown, will be displaced in all probability. The consensus is that Robert Humphries, Mayfield, Chandler campaign chairman last year, will be named.

Despite the fact that Mr. Humphreys is generally believed to have the inside track, there are several persons with the govern's ear who are urging that Zach Justice, Pikeville, be rewarded with the highway chairmanship. Mr. Justice is now a member of the old commission, which expired Wednesday.

FIRE DESTROYS WALTON HOME

EARLY TUESDAY MORNING—BURLINGTON MAN DISCOVERS FIRE—HOUSE BURNED TO GROUND.

The farm house owned by the Lee Gaines heirs was completely destroyed by fire early Tuesday morning when sparks from a chimney ignited the roof.

Dr. K. W. Ryle, Burlington, a passerby, first noticed the flames and immediately notified the occupants of the house. Although most of the household furniture was saved, the house was burned to the ground.

Ernest Price, tenant, was living in the house at the time of the fire. The farm belongs to the estate of the late Lee Gaines, Walton.

WITHDRAWS FROM RACE

IN "INTEREST OF DEMOCRATIC HARMONY IN KENTON" SAYS JUDGE JOSEPH P. GOODENOUGH.

Averring that establishment of harmony in the Democratic party in Kenton County was essential, Judge Joseph P. Goodenough, of Covington announced his withdrawal as a candidate in the congressional race in the Fith District.

Friends of Judge Goodenough urged him to become a candidate. His petition was filed in Frankfort, Monday,, June 22. Others who have filed for the Democratic nomination are Congressman Brent Spence, Joseph J. Leary, Jack Allphin, Jules Appel, and Elmer Gray.

In a statement announcing his withdrawal Judge Goodenough said:

"After looking over the field of candidates for Congress from this, the Fifth Congressional District, particularly the number of candidates from my own county, I have concluded to withdraw from the congressional race in the interest of harmony and unity in the Democratic party of Kenton County.

"At this time the greatest contribution that could be made to the Democratic party of Kenton County would be a gesture to unite the warring factions. With this purpose in view, I will not be a candidate for Congress. I am grateful to my friends who volunteered their support to me."

BOONE COUNTY HOMEMAKERS TO MEET AT NEW HAVEN

July 8th at New Haven School House beginning at 1 o'clock (slow time) there will be a cooking and canning demonstration, conducted by Mrs. Pearl J. Haak from the University of Kentucky, an extension special. Everyone is invited. Come and bring a friend.

NEW CONNECTION

A. S. White

I am pleased to inform my many friends that I am now connected with the Quality Sample Shoe Shop, 627 Madison Avenue, Covington.

In my 24 years in this business, 18 years of which I spent at fitting, never have I seen such a line of high priced shoes, sold at such remarkable prices. I will be more than pleased to have my many friends, drop in and see me.

We are glad to report that the son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Combs is improving after receiving serious injury to his left hand while playing near a water pump in his home.

E. R. RIVARD ENTERS RACE

FOR COUNTY ATTORNEY, SUBJECT TO DEMOCRATIC PRIMARY TO BE HELD AUGUST 1ST.

Mr. Rivard was reared and has spent practically all his life near Devon, Kentucky, Boone County. He has practiced law in Boone and Kenton Counties for the past twenty-seven years, with the exception of the two yeare spent in France during the World War.

If elected, Mr. Rivard promises to render faithful and honest service at all times.

DOUBLE HEADER SCHEDULED AT BELLEVIEW FOR JULY 4TH

The Belleview Big Nine have a fullticket for Saturday, July 4th, at the home grounds in Belleview. They have challenged the fastest colored team in or around Cincinnati, "The Cincinnati Elites," for a twin bill to be played July 4th. The first game will start at 10:00 (slow time).

The Belleview Club has had a very good season this year, and Mr. Williamson, their manager, deserves due credit for his ability to manage a ball club.

Don't forget to be on hand Saturday for two good ball games.

F. H. Rouse, Burlington, entertained with a six o'clock diner at his home on the Burlington-Florence pike Saturday night. There were approximately twenty-two friends and relatives present.

WELCOMED RAIN

The severe drouth and warm weather was broken in this community Tuesday afternoon by a nice rain, followed by cooler weather. This has been one of the most severe drouths since 1930.

FIVE TO BE SENT TO CCC CAMP

YOUNG MEN BETWEEN THE AGES OF EIGHTEEN AND TWENTY FIVE DESIRED. APPLICANTS MUST FILE BY JULY THIRD.

Boone County has been alloted five regulars and one alternate in the forthcoming CCC enrollment for young men between the ages of eighteen and twenty-five.

All youths from needy families who desire to enroll are requested to get in touch with L. A. Thompson, Commodity Supervisor for Boone County, at the Relief Office, Burlington, Ky.

It is necessary that all applications be filed with Mr. Thompson by 11:00 a. m., Friday, July 3rd, 1936.

VOTERS MUST REGISTER

TO VOTE IN AUGUST PRIMARY FIRST REGISTRATION TO BE HELD AT VOTING PRECINCTS AUGUST 1ST.

The registration law passed at the last session of the Legislature makes it necessary that every person who desires to vote at the primary election to be held in August and the regular November election to registed.

The first registration will be held at the regular voting precincts on the date of the August primary, August 1st, 1936. If a voter should fail to register on that day he may register in the office of the Clerk of the County Court between the 15th day of August and 10th day of October. If one fails to register as required he cannot vote as the registration is necessary to exercise the right to vote. Registration may also be made between the 15th day of November and 10th day of July in any year with the County Clerk.

It is not necessary to register but one time nor change your registration unless you change your residence or desire to change your party affiliation. If you change your residence, then it is necessary to have your registration change, as failure to do so, you will not be permitted to vote.

This is a law that just goes into effect in the rural communities but has been in force in cities and towns for a long time.

The election officers in each precinct will have a list of all persons entitled to vote in the respective districts, and unless your name is on that list you can not vote for the candidates of your choice.

It is very important that all voters register as the law requires as failure to do so ,will prevent one from exercising his right of sufferage.

Wilton Stephens, County Tax Commissioner, spent Friday and Saturday of last week in Frankort.

Leslie Voshell and Ralph Maurer left Monday morning for Texas, where they expect to remain for several months.

CAR ACCIDENT PROVES FATAL

TO COLUMBIAN. MRS. A. J. BARKER DIES; TWO OTHERS ARE INJURED TUESDAY OF LAST WEEK.

Mrs. A. J. Barker, well-known Columbian, was fatally injured Tuesday of last week in an automobile accident in which her grandson, Harold Jordan and his wife, were injured.

The three were taken to Fite Hospital following the accident, which occurred shortly before midnight, east of Columbus on the Jackson Highway, where Mrs. Barker died 12 hours later.

She received severe internal injuries and her life had been despaired of since the accident.

Mr. Jordan received a broken arm, broken foot, cuts on the scalp and bruises.

His wife received severe cuts about the face and head.

The accident occurred five miles this side of Vernon, Ala., not far from the Mississippi-Alabama line. The party had been to Birmingham and was returning home.

The car went out of control and plunged into an 8-foot ditch.

Mrs. Barker, who was 73, was a native of Boone County. She and her husband had resided in Columbus for a number of years.

Mrs. Barker is survived by one daughter, Mrs. James J. Miller, of Columbus; a sister, Mrs. Wood Stephens, of Covington; a brother, Marcus Ryall, of Union; and three grandchildren, Harold and Frank Jordan, of Columbus, and Mrs. William H. Krouse, Jr., of Memphis.

Funeral services were in charge of Long-Brumfield Funeral Home, and held from the home of Mrs. Miller, 106 Third Street South, upon the arrival of Mrs. Stephens. Dr. J. D. Franks, pastor of the First Baptist Church, was assisted by Dr. E. Nash Broyles, of the First Methodist Church.

Editorial of the Week

MILK CONSUMPTION

Like other products of the farm, milk and cream have suffered a decline in price during the last three or four years, with the result that dairymen and small producers have had difficulty in marketing these products at a price which would pay the cost of production.

An official of the Department of Agriculture has pointed out that the encouragement of a greater use of milk would benefit both the producers and the public. The per capita consumption of milk in the United States is much lower than in several countries.

Although much valuable work has been done by health authorities, home demonstration agents and parent-teachers associations in the direction of educating the public to the nutritive value of milk and milk products, we still use far less milk than would be good for us. This applies to adults as well as to children.

By drinking an extra pint of milk a day nearly everyone might enjoy personal benefits, in addition to aiding a most worthy national industry.

NEW DROUTH RULINGS UNDER AGRICULTURAL CONSERVATION PROGRAM

The Agricultural Conservation Program because of the drouth has issued new rulings to permit farmers to seed any acreage to soy beans and cow peas for hay this year, provided such acreage is followed by a winter cover crop such as rye, wheat, etc. Formerly soy beans and cow peas were classified as soil depleting crops and counted against the soil depleting base.

The above ruling will be a big help to Boone County farmers, according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent. The present drouth has cut the grass hay crop to practically nothing. Very little clover hay was produced and the alfalfa crop will be short unless rains come immediately. Boone County farmers are facing a drouth that promises to exceed that of either 1930 or 1934. Soy bean and cow pea hay, while expensive will be a big help to many Boone County farmers this year.

There is a possibility that ACP rulings will also allow farmers to plant additional acres of sudan grass, millet and sweet sorghum without affecting their payment. These crops make rapid growth and if favorable weather conditions should develop may help solve the present hay and feed shortage.

FLORENCE 4-H CLUB

The X-L All Club of Florence held their annual tour on July 23, which was on Tuesday of the past week.

Those who went with Mr. Forkner on the tour were Mary Carpenter, Kathryn Hamilton, Dick Stevens and Glenn Stevens.

They visited most of the club members, but were unable to visit everyone because of the large number we have enrolled.

While visiting the members the inspectors found that they were doing some very good work and most of the record books were in good condition.

The inspectors and Mr. Forkner brought with them a picnic lunch and they took their dinner on the lawn at Mary Butts' home near Gunpowder.

This club will hold its next meeting on July 30, which will be our annual picnic day.

Mary Butts, Vice President.

REFRIGERATION NEWS

When is cold not cold enough? This is a question which is being answered in a graphic manner at the special refrigeration showing now going on at the Erlanger Electric Shop, local dealers for Frigidaire.

"There are a number of circumstances," said Mr. King, sales manager of the firm, "under which one may be fooled as to just how cool any object may be, and in the case of food refrigerators, how safe they may be. Most any temperature a few degrees cooler than comfortable room temperature may seem very cool to the hand or arm, especialy if one is working in a warm kitchen. Yet such a refrigerator temperature may be entirely unfit for proper food protection. Many people assume that if butter is reasonably hard, the temperature is cold enough for food keeping, yet it is a known fact that conditions warm enough to permit food spoilage may still be cool enough to keep butter firm.

"However, there is one safe way to handle this question of food safety, and that is to select an electric refrigerators that can prove beyond any doubt its ability to maintain safe temperatures, and then continues to prove to its owner every time the refrigerator door is opened that it is doing it.

"That is one of the main purposes of our special showing now in process. With Frigidaires operating under full food and ice load, Frigidaires that have been operating continuously for days and weens are able to prove beyond any shadow of doubt that safety zone temperatures always are in effect. This proof comes through the use of the food safety indictator, an accurate temperature measuring device, built into the food compartment at the factory. To eliminate confusion as to temperature degrees and other complicated rules, this device has been plotted into three simple zones, namely, that zone which is too warm for safety, that which is too cold for practicability, and that which is approved as proper and safe by every food authority, including the United States government. This last has been termed the food safety zone.

"This is not simply a device that is shown at our store and withdrawn before delivery, but one which is a permanent part of the Frigidaire, telling the user any day or any huor whether or not the best conditions prevail in the food compartment.

"As further proof that such temperatures are held continuously at surprisingly low operating cost, a further part of our special demonstration is the use of electric meters connected to operating Frigidaires that measures the current each day. These are meters that can be read by anyone as easily as an automobile speedometer can be read. They tell any one the exact story as to the cost of maintaining proper temperatures and freezing plenty of ice rapidly."

The parking problem is getting to be a real concern to the younger generation.

When men begin to run for public offices, they begin to acquire better opinions of themselves.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish through the Recorder to thank the friends and neighbors for the kidness and sympathy shown us during the illness and death of our sister, Nora Souther. Especially the singers, pall bearers, Rev. R. D. Carter for his word of comfort; Dr. Nunnelly for his attentive care and sympathy; also the undertakers Bullock and Catherman for their kindness shown us.

Bring Us Your Wheat

We are in a position this year to offer to the farmers the best wheat market that was ever offered to them in the history of our mill.

To those of you who need flour. we bid you 32 pounds of WHITE LILY FLOUR for 58 wheat or better. This flour may be taken out at once or be stored with us and withdrawn as you need it. No storage charge on a deal of this kind.

We offer to pay market price for your wheat but if you do not like the price at harvest, you may store your wheat with us at the rate of 1 cent per bu., per month and sell to us at market price any time before June 1, 1937.

We trade 100 lbs., mill feed which runs 15.5 percent. protein and 4 percent. fat for 100 lbs. of good wheat. With Kentucky Experimental Station, Lexington, as authority, wheat when ground, only runs 12.5 percent. protetin comparison, you not only get a bet- and 2.2 percent. fat. With this ter feed, but you save the cost of grinding.

LAFFOON NAMED IN $91,000 SUIT

BANKRUPTCY TRUSTEE ENTERS ACTION AGAINST INCORPORATORS OF NEWSPAPER AT LOUISVILLE.

Louisville, Ky., June 26—Former Governor Ruby Laffoon; Elam Huddleston, former state treasurer, and Thomas S. Rhea, former state highway commissioner, are defendants in a suit filed in the U. S. District Court here as a result of their newspaper enterprise, the defunct Daily News and Enquirer.

There are 17 other defendants, all incorporators of the newspaper. The amount sought is $91,405. Herman M. Kessler, trustee in bankruptcy, filed the suit, contending that the incorporators are personally liable because they permitted the corporation to begin business and incur debts before 50 per cent of the stock had been subscribed.

The paper was started last October and suspended publication after a short life. Mr. Huddleston is one of the largest creditors with a claim of $40,577. Mr. Kessler points out that assets are insufficient to meet liens and nothing exists for unseeured creditors.

Besides the three named defendants are: Francis M. Burke, Prestonburg, former assistant attorney general; Bailey P. Wootton, Hazard former attorney general; Representative Rodes K. Myers, Bowling Green; E. M. Gatliff, Williamsburg, former highway commissioner; Frank Lebus, Cynthiana, former representative and highway commissioner; Kelly Francis, Stanford former representative; G. H. Mosley, Bowling Green; W. S. Stouffer, Ernest N. Fulton, Bardstown; Edward F. Seiller, former State Labor Inspector; Dr. Watts Stovall, Grayson; Tyler Munford, Morganfield, former representative; Wick H. Strother, Grayson and Graydon M. Pickett, Madisonville.

BELLEVIEW

Mr. and Mrs. Forest Brown accompanied Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Brown to Shelbyville Wednesday to be present at the funeral of their cousin, Chester Hiatt.

Miss Juanita Allen, of Patriot, Ind., was a guest at the Kite home all last week.

Mrs. James R. Huey's sister from Bowling Green is visiting with her at Wm. Huey's.

Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Clore, Mrs. Belle Clore and Mrs. Laura Clore went to Maysville Friday to visit Mrs. Elbert Clore, who has been very ill in a hospital there. They found her slightly improved.

Clayton Brown, of Covington took his mother, Mrs. Forest Brown to Louisville Friday. Mrs. Nat Rogers, who had been a patient for a few days returned home with them.

The members of the W. M. S. to attend the all day meeting at East Bend Church, were: Mrs. Ralph Cason, Miss Dorothea Cason, Mrs. Willard Ryle, Mrs. Jennie Rogers, Mrs. Alvin Buffington and son Jean and Miss Anna Cason.

Mr. and Mrs. John Caurer and Mr. and Mrs. Luther Smith and son visited Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Elliott in Cincinnati Sunday.

The W. M. S. meeting will be at the church next Thursday afternoon. The members are urged to attend and visitors will be welcome.

Sorry to report Mrs. Henry Clore as quite ill at this time.

Mr. and Mrsfi C. R. Kite and family entertained at dinner Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Jones and daughter, Mrs. Sally Ryle, Miss Hilda Ryle, Miss Juanita Allen and Evrette Clore.

William Snelling is the owner of a new car.

Robert Hankinson and family spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Robert Aylor.

ENJOYABLE EVENT

Boone County Utopia Club members held the most enjoyable meeting of the year on last Thursday evening at the home of Wilton, Alvin and Zelma Stephens, of near Burlington. Forty members and visitors attended.

The meeting was held around a bonfire in the Stephens woods. A weiner and marshmallow roast was held following the regular business meeting. The next meeting of the club will be an all day project tour on Thursday, July 30.

MEET THE METER MISER AT THE Erlanger Electric Shop

Our Customers Are Proud To Say, "OURS IS A GENUINE FRIGIDAIRE"

You probably invest more money in an electric refrigerator than any appliance you have in the home. The proofs you are interested in are: Will it do the work I require of it? Will it last? Is it cheap to operate?

HERE ARE THE FIVE STANDARDS OF PROOFS
Built into every GENUINE FRIGIDAIRE:

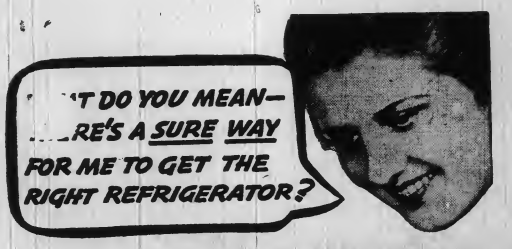
LOWER OPERATING COSTS

Electric meter tests, prove the New Frigidaire uses less than half as much electric as some refrigerators to produce the same amount of cold—and therefore costs half as much to run—consider what it will mean to you in electric consumption alone.

SAFER FOOD PROTECTION

Many refrigerators fail to keep temperatures below 50 degrees in hot weather, every new Frigidaire has a FOOD SAFETY INDICATOR in the food compartment and gives visable PROOF of safer food protection with FRIGIDAIRE.

FASTER FREEZING MORE ICE



Refrigerators vary greatly in their ability to freeze ice and desserts quickly, the SUPER FREEZER in the new FRIGIDAIRE gives you an abundant amount of cold for faster freezing of large ice cubes,—smooth textured desserts—and all kinds of delicious frozen salads—whenever you want them.

MORE USABILITY

You will live with your refrigerator daily—month after month —year after year—that's why you should judge it carefully for convenience and usability. It is not necessary to stoop or stretch to get food out of your FRIGIDAIRE—built waist high with automatic defrosting and instant tray release, makes it the most "usable" refrigerator ever made.

FIVE YEAR PROTECTION PLAN

Every FRIGIDAIRE we sell comes to you protected for five years against service expense on the sealed-in mechanical unit, this warranty backed by GENERAL MOTORS CORPORATION.

LEARY SCORES BRENT SPENCE

IN CAMPAIGN SPEECH AT WILLIAMSTOWN SATURDAY — 400 PERSONS HEARS YOUTHFUL CANDIDATE.

Pledging his support of farm legislation, old age pension legislation and laws favorable to union workmen, Joseph J. Leary, of Covington, former assistant state attorney general, opened his campaign for Congress Saturday in Williamstown.

A crowd of 400 persons heard the youthful northern Kentuckian make his bow in his first race for office. Grant county is the birthplace of Mr. Leary. He is opposing Brent Spence, incumbent, for the Democratic nomination.

Introduced by Larry Tucker, Williamstown attorney, Mr. Leary said there were but two men actually in the race although five had filed.

"The incumbent and I will fight it out," he said.

He took Mr. Spence to task for not adequately representing the district. He told his audience that Mr. Spence is a remnant of the bi-partizan-utility crowd put to rout last fall by the Chandler forces.

GOOD PROJECT WORK INSEPECTED BY 4-H CLUBS

YOUTH DROWNS IN OHIO RIVER

WHILE WADING WITH TWO OTHER BOYS—SWIFT CURRENT AND INABILITY TO SWIM CAUSE OF ACCIDENT.

One of the saddest tragedies that has occurred in this community for several years took place Monday morning when the report came of the death of George Willis Hensley, son of Willis Hensley, Petersburg.

The youth, while wading in the Ohio River about 200 feet south of the wharf, was swept by a strong undercurrent into what is termed the deepest part of the river near Petersburg. His two companions reported that they did not see the boy any more after his first struggle to get ashore. Apparently he was also a victim of "cramps" which cost the lives of more people in water than any other one thing.

The two boys with him at the time of the accident were his smaller brother, Bobbie and Stewart Grant House, of Petersburg. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Willis Hensley, Petersburg, and was only fourteen years of age. He also has one brother, Bobbie, 12 and one sister, Lucille, 16. His father at present, is employed in a factory at Lawrenceburg.

The accident occurred at approximately 10:30 Monday. While workers used every possible means to recover the body, it was not found until 8:30 Monday night.

Funeral services were conducted at 2:00 p. m. Wednesday afternoon at the Petersburg Baptist Church. Interment followed at the Petersburg cemetery. Stier & Williams, Aurora, had charge of the funeral arrangements.

FLORENCE PROPERTY SELLS FOR GOOD PRICE

The property known as the Ruth Aylor estate, sold Thursday, July 2nd for $2700. This property consisted of 2 acres of land and a six-room frame house. The property is located on the Burlington and Florence Pike just out of Florence corporation limits.

Col. R. G. Kinman had charge of the sale. It is thought that the price obtained in this sale was very satisfactory.

EDWARDS-RYLE

The wedding of Miss Catherine Edwards to Howard Ryle come as quite a surprise to their many friends.

The bride is the attractive daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Edwards, of Petersburg and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ransom Ryle, of near Limaburg. The ceremony was performed at the home of Rev. James in Burlington.

They will make their home in Petersburg. Their many friends join in wishing them much happiness.

William Cook of Frankfort, spent the week-end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Mark Cook, of the Camp Ernst Road.

HARVEST HOME WILL RE-OPEN

UNDER MANAGEMENT OF FOUR LOCAL MEN—OPENING SET FOR SATURDAY NIGHT, JULY 11TH.

It was announced Monday of this week that the beautiful Harvest Home Grounds near Limaburg, Ky. would be re-opened for trial operatian, depending upon the desire of the people of this community to have a public dance at that place each Saturday night. If you are interested in having this amusement park re-opened this summer, the management requests your presence Saturday night.

Bob Griffith's famous orchestra will be on hand to furnish the music, and the management promises the best and something new.

It has also been announced that there will be a Harvest Home Fair at these grounds this year. This will be the same kind of fair that has been conducted in the past, although not active in the last several years. Watch this paper for further announcements for all events at the Harvest Home.

Jack Allphin

ALLPHIN SCORES SPENCE'S VOTE

ON UTILITY BILL—CANDIDATE FOR CONGRESS PLEADS FOR BACKING PRESIDENT ON IMPORTANT MEASURES.

Outlining several points of his platform in which he declared the "Fifth District of Kentucky has been neglected," Jack Allphin, candidate for Congress from this district, explained to a group of workers Tuesday night of last week the principles for which he intends to fight for nomination in the August primary.

"I am making the race for Congress to fill a vacancy that has existed for the past six years," Mr. Allphin said. "The Fifith District of Kentucky has been neglected, the representation so shows.

"Covington and Newport, the second and third largest cities in Kentucky, have received less from the Federal Government than any other large centers of population in the country.

"Northern Kentucky has suffered by reason of holding companies owning public utilities, such as light and power and telephone companies. President Roosevelt made a determined fight to end holding companies last year. Mr. Spence, instead of voting for the measures advocated by the President, voted for the utilities. A Congressman should be 100 percent for the President in a situation like that. I will vote to end holding companies which charge high rates to the consumer.

"Home Owner and Farmer"

"I will favor legislation which will benefit the home owner and the farmer and especially those who have had to get assistance from the government to hold their farms and homes from foreclosure. The individual who borrows money from the government should pay the same interest rates as the railroad and insurance companies. There should be no discrimination.

"I will recommend for appointment for position, only true and loyal Democrats—not those who have in the past been "ferryboats" from one side of privilege to the other.

"I base my entire program of proposed legislation upon this one theory a more equitable distribution of wealth produced by the great army of workers.

Shorter Working Hours

"I have always ardently favored shorter working hours, higher pay, child labor law.

"I am not a pussy-footer, My attitude toward selfish gang utility political control is well known. The people saw a demonstration of that in the recent state Democratic convention in Louisville, when my supporters and I defeated the Tracy crowd.

"One of my opponents, who will claim to belong to the same faction that I represent, was in Louisville and together with his friends voted with the Tracy crowd.

"One can always have so-called harmony with the bi-partisan group by simply doing their will. I am for real harmony with good clean government and real democracy prevailing instead of the cheap politiqians.

"I was Governor Chandler's first choice for chief assistant secretary of state. I want the people of this district to send me to Congress because they believe I will best represent the people rather than the utilities, and for no other reason.

"My slogan is: "Play safe, don't be fooled by the gang."

HYSLOP-DUNCAN

Lt. E. R. Duncan, U. S. N., son of Dr. and Mrs. E. W. Duncan and Miss Susan Jane Hyslop, of Corvallis, Oregon, were united in marriage June 22, 1936 in New York City. At present Lt. Duncan is a Naval Inspector of machinery in New York City.

NATURAL GAS IN BOONE CO.

MAY DEVELOP INTO WORTHWHILE PROJECT, WORKERS REPORT—FOUR NEW DRILLS ADDED TO FORCE RECENTLY.

The likeliness that Boone County has an abundant supply of natural gas and possibly oil, is no longer a joking matter to the land owners or this community.

Although it is not possible to tell just how large these wells are, it is the general belief of the drilling crew that Boone County has a large supply of natural gas. The several wells that have already been capped have a large pressure, ranging from 70 to 150 pounds.

The last large well was struck on the farm of A. J. Ogden, Limaburg, last week. The main pocket of gas was reached at a depth of approximately 375 feet. The other two wells were struck within less than 500 feet.

There has been added to the drilling equipment here, four more large drills with capacities of approximately 3,000 feet. These are now in operation, searching for new wells.

It has been reported that the Union Gas & Electric Company, of Cincinnati, has already contracted to take this gas, just as soon as a sufficient number of wells have been struck. All these reports are merely rumors, and cannot be used as a basis of definite information, as it is impossible to obtain from workers or officials of the drilling crews just what their intentions are for the future.

Should this project develop here, Boone County property holders would be greatly benefited, as the value of their property would be greatly increased. The land owners will receive one-eighth of all gas and oil removed from their farms.

WALTON BANKS ARE MERGED

COMBINATION GIVES WALTON A MUCH STRONGER FINANCIAL INSTITUTION—OPEN FOR BUSINESS MONDAY.

The Dixie State Bank, Walton, purchased the assets of The Walton Equitable Bank and opened for business in The Walton Equitable Bank building Monday morning. The Dixie State Bank assumed the payment of all deposits which were insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation. This combination of the two banks gives to Walton a much stronger financial institution.

The officers of the bank are as follows: George W. Baker, President; Walter D. Vest, Vice President; George W. Baker, C. D. Benson, C. E. Flynn, J. W. Conley, A. H. Gaines, Dr. J. G. Slater, Walter D. Vest, Directors; Charles W. Thompson, Cashier; J. B. Doan and E. S. Orr, Assistant Cashiers.

The officers and directors are all careful, cautious and prudent business men and the business of the bank in their hands will be conducted strictly according to banking rules and practice. They solicit the patronage of their community, assuring all that all banking facilities will be accorded them.

The merger of the banks will benefit Walton and community and as the capital of the Dixie Bank has been increased the bank can accomodate all of its customers.

MR. AND MRS ROBERT L. BRADFORD ENTERTAIN

Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Bradford entertained for their Atlanta, Ga., guests, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Wolf and daughter Betty Leigh, with a most delightful musicale. Mr. Hy Geis, master organist and Miss Helen Kilb, concert violinist gave the guests a musical treat.

Among those enjoying this delightful evening were, Mr. and Mrs. Jess McClain, of Phelps Town House, Cincinnati, Miss Genevieve Klein and Griffith Dye, of Clifton, Cincinnati. Also a group of young artists added interest to the evening: Mr. and Mrs. Paul Kraft, Paul Chidlaw just over from studies in Paris, Mr. and Mrs. Gy Geis, Miss Kilb, Miss Thompson, the hosts, and their visiting guests.

Joseph J. Leary

ROGERS TO SPEAK HERE

IN BEHALF OF JOSEPH J. LEARY FOR CONGRESS—PETERSBURG AND HEBRON ALSO ON SCHEDULE.

Joseph J. Leary, democratic candidate for Congress in the Fifth District, will be at the court house in Burlington, Saturday night, July 11th, accompanied by O. M. Rogers Highway Advisor for the Fifth District, who will deliver the address of the evening.

Mr. Leary will also address the voters at Belleview Saturday, July 11th at 1:30 p. m. and at Petersburg at 3:30 p. m.

Leary is an assistant Kentucky Attorney General and was a member of the battery of orators campaigning Northern Kentucky in the interest of Gov. A. B. Chandler last summer. He is a native of Grant County and a graduate of the Cincinnati Y. M. C. A. Law School.

A complete schedule of Leary's campaign addresses in this section will be outlined in the near future. Watch this paper for further retails.

WOMAN IN RACE FOR UNITED STATES SENATOR

Mrs. Helen May Young, of Dayton, Ky., is running for the United States Senate on the Republican Ticket.

Probably no other woman is better or so well posted on the reuirements of this office as Mrs. Young. She is especially determined on better conditions for farmers and labor, in general, besides the assistance of the aged and children, also the Federal tax problem of Kentucky.

ENROLLMENT AT U. OF K.

FOR SUMMER COURSE REACHES SECOND HIGHEST PEAK—SEVEN BOONE COUNTY STUDENTS AMONG ENLISTMENT.

At the close of regular registration for the first term of the 1936 summer session at the University of Kentucky, a total of 1,624 students had enrolled for classes, making the second largest enrollment in summer school history at the University. An additional 60 students were expected to enroll for the special unit courses of two and one-half weeks each, according to information from the office of the registrar. The first term will end Saturday, July 18, and the second term starts the following Monday.

Heavier enrollment is expected the second summer school session over previous corresponding periods, as several popular courses have been changed from the first to the second terms, it was reported from the office of Dr. Jesse E. Adams, summer session director.

Among those registered at the University of Kentucky summer session from Boone county are: Kathryn Chandler, Walton; Clarence G. Conrad, Florence; Isaac N. Conrad, Florence; Ralph G. Edwards, Walton; Boyd W. Mahan, Petersburg; Marvin S. Moore, Burlington and Julia A. Rouse, Walton.

JOHN YOUNG BROWN TO SPEAK IN BURLINGTON

MONDAY NIGHT, JULY 13—IS ONE OF KENTUCKY'S BEST ORATORS. LARGE CROW EXPECTED.

John Young Brown, former Congressman from the State at large and Democratic candidate for the United States Senate will speak in the Court House in Burlington, Monday, July 13th 7 p. m.

John Young Brown's record as a legislator and as a Congressman is unexcelled. No other young man in the State or nation has served his people so capably and faithfully. While sitting in the House of Representatives as its youngest speaker, he opposed a tax that the people found to be very unjust, he also at that time opposed and killed in the committee a present tax that will prove just as unpopular and inexpedient. The people of this State can depend upon John Young Brown to guard their rights and not to sleep upon them. There will be many times in the next few years when it will be necessary for the people to have one so interested and wide-awake, as he proved himself to be while in Washington, as a representative of the people.

Nation-wide praise was directed toward him for the Amendment added to the Banking and Security Act, guaranteeing the deposits of all local banks as well as those of the State banks. It was also his good fortune to make amendments to certain Agricultural Acts guaranteeing the price of tobacco and other crops. He was responsible for the Federal Government buying up large quantities of wasted land areas in Kentucky, and placing here the large number of CCC camps, and other valuable legislation.

With recent developments in the Senatorial race, there has been a wide sympathetic interest in the youthful aspirant. Predictions are very prevalent that John Young will win by as large a majority as did Gov. A. B. Chandler.

John Young Brown's past record as a Congressman and as Speaker of the House of Representatives and as a dutiful servant of the people is ample reason for sending him back to Washington. President Roosevelt would like to have him back so that he could receive such hearty support from Kentucky.

John Young Brown will sincerely appreciate the hearty support of his Boone County friends.

(Signed) Bob Hensley,
Boone County Campaign Chm'n.

DEMOCRATS TO MEET MONDAY

AT COURTHOUSE IN BURLINGTON FOR REGULAR MONTHLY MEETING — JUDGE GOODENOUGH TO SPEAK.

The regular monthly meeting of the Young Men's and Young Women's Democratic Clubs in Boone County will be held Monday night, July 13th, immediately following the address of John Y. Brown. All persons interested in the coming election are requested to be present, whether you are a member of the club or not.

Hon. Joseph Goodenough, of Covington, will be present and address the two clubs jointly, after the business sessions have been held separately.

The Young Women's Club in Boone County, although young, have made quite a bit of progress, and their membership is increasing each month. It will be the duty of each loyal democrat to be on hand and bring your wife so they may attend the meeting for the women.

ICE CREAM SUPPER TO BE GIVEN AT BULLITTSVILLE

There will be an ice cream supper given by the Bullittsville Christian Church Saturday night, July 11th at 7:00 P. M.. Come out and enjoy some delicious home made cream. Public invited.

HAY SHORTAGE IN BOONE CO.

FOR THIS WINTER FACED BY FARMERS ACCORDING TO H. R. FORKNER, COUNTY AGENT. MORE RAIN NEEDED BADLY.

Boone County farmers are faced with a prospective hay shortage for this winter, according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent. Hay shortage is a serious problem for producers of cattle, sheep and horses.

Soy beans, cow peas, sudan grass and millet may be sown within the next two weeks and should give a good hay crop if conditions this fall are at all favorable.

Prof. E. J. Kinney of the College, recommends 25 to 30 pounds of sudan grass drilled per acre for pasture. Best varieties of soybeans for late seeding are Wilson Black, Virginia or other medium late varieties. Millet will make a crop when sown as late as August if moisture conditions are favorable.

Korean lespedeza where not killed by drouth may make a good hay crop if there is moisture the rest of the season. Prof. Kinney expects a Korean seed shortage in 1937 due to the drouth and suggests that farmers save seed where possible.

Boone County was blessed with a good rain on Tuesday afternoon of last week. The south section of the county below Rabbit Hash and through Walton had a second rain Wednesday. Considerable more rain is still needed in the north section of the county.

LOOK WHO'S COMING TO JUDGE THE DOGS

The Dog Show at the Dearborn County Fair, Lawrenceburg, Ind., which will be held July 27 to Aug. 1st inclusive will be the best ever held in this section of the country. Amos Obberting, Chairman, and some of his fellow sportsmen drove to Paint Lick last week and engaged Bob Walker, of the famous Walker family to judge the Fox Hounds on Friday morning, July 30. The judging will be at 11 o'clock Central Standard Time in front of the Grandstand. There will also be classes for Beagle Hounds, Bird Dogs and miscellaneous class. The Dog Show will be over in time for the afternoon program of three Harness Races and other attractions offered.

"UNCLE CHARLIE" AT LEGION DANCE

Mr. Charles Schemmei, the well-known "Uncle Charlie" of the WLW Barn Dance program, entertained the large crowd that attended the American Legion dance at the Harvest Home Grounds Saturday night. His violin and handsaw are his major tools of entertainment.

The dance was reported a huge success, and was attended by a very large crowd.

"Y" STUDENT EMPLOYED

BY ONE OF CINCINNATI'S MOST PROMINENT LAWYERS—HAD ATTENDED Y. M. C. A. BUSINESS SCHOOL SINCE SEPT.

Miss Marjorie Hensley, Burlington, who just recently graduated from the Cincinnati Y. M. C. A. Business School, has recently been employed by Judge Frank R. Gusweiler, attorney at law, in the Carew Tower, Cincinnati.

Miss Hensley was a former graduate of the Burlington high school in 1934, later attending the University of Kentucky, and finally the Y. M. C. A. schools in Cincinnati.

Marjorie is the twelfth student from Boone County to attend this institution in recent years, the greater part of which are now employed in business life.

We wish to extend to Miss Hensley our congratulations upon her accomplishments.

F. H. Rouse and a party of eight, spent a very pleasant Fourth at Herrington Lake fishing and camping.

Editorial of the Week

THE SUPREME COURT

The people who first settled in this country were fleeing from the rule of European kings. They had enough of central governments who controlled their every act, ordered their life, interfered with their freedom to worship, and exacted taxes in any amounts.

When the great patriots and scholars who wrote the Constitution began work they were determined on one thing: before everything else they would write into it such safeguards which would prevent a centralized tyranny under a king or any other name gaining control in America. At no time could the power of the states be over-ridden and one great government order the lives of free citizens.

Thus the new government was divided into three parts—the Congress, the President, and the Courts—with each acting as a brake upon the other.

The Supreme Court safeguards the individual from tyranny; it preserves his rights. If there were no Supreme Court, there would be no machinery for protecting the individual in this country from the tendency of government to be oppressive.

The function of the Court is not to bend the popular will, but to see that the rules of the game, as laid down in the Constitution, are followed. When the Constitution is deserted, the rights of the individual disappear. The Supreme Court exists so that that does not happen.

Politicians are often vexed at the limitations of the Supreme Court. Men who are impatient to carry through quickly some vast change attack the Supreme Court. Careless officials who cater to organized minorities, attack the Supreme Court.

But in our long history of 150 years, it has played this wonderful role of protecting the individual and his liberties. As long as the Court functions, no tyrant, no oppressor, no dictator can rule in the United States.

If dodging work is a paying busineses, there would be millionaires around.

So far as we know, the tariff is not to be blamed for the hot weather.

Hard times or not, there are an unusual number of automobiles being driven along the roads.

When most people ask you to think for yourself, they really want you to follow their belief.

To know what to do is wisdom.
To know how to do it is skill.
To do the thing as it should be done is service.
Most of us are wise and skillful,
but it's service that succeeds

With the swimming soon in full swing at Coney Island, Cincinnati, one of the chief concerns of the Coney Island management is to carefully guard the health of its patrons. This is achieved by keeping the water in the pool absolutely pure.

A point of interest with Coney bathers is the huge filtration plant, housed in a building as the far end of the pool. The accompanying picture shows three fair pool patrons inspecting the plant. Two of the seven huge tanks of the filtration plant can be seen in the picture.

The filtration plant has been frequently described as being of sufficient capacity to take care of the water needs of a city the size of Dayton, O. It filters 4500 gallons of water per minute—a total of 6,480,000 gallons a day. The Coney pool holds 4,000,000 gallons.

A total of 145 tons of filtration material—gravel, sand and silicate—is part of the filtration system. The water passes through that on its way into the pool. It is then treated with ammonia, and as it passes into the pool it is given a chlorine bath. At the bottom of the well, before entering the huge basin, the water passes successively through four screens, the last of these being so fine that it catches even a human hair.

One of the questions that is frequently asked of A. W. Hutchinson, pool manager, is: "How to you keep the filters clean?" This is accomplished through a backwash. It takes between 145,000 and 150,000 gallons of water daily to clean the filters. This water is drained into the sewer.

The bottom of the pool is kept clean through a vacum cleaning system. Every morning members of the Natatorium staff, wearing diving helmets which are supplied with air from a compressor in the filtration plant descend to the bottom of the pool and "sweep" it with a vacum cleaner.

Water samples are taken at the pool regularly every two hours for bacteriological tests. Tests are also made at such intervals for alkalinity, for ammonia and for chlorine.

Among the many other attractions at Coney Island are the many rides and fun devices, Moonlite Gardens, Coney's famous summer ballroom "with the night club atmosphere;" the Rose Garden, a dinner and refreshment rendezvous; the picnic grove, with its thousand free picnic tables; the Land of Oz, a special section for the kiddies; and the 20-mile river ride on the Island Queen, largest river excursion steamer in the world. Coney may be reached by auto over U. S. Highway 52, East. Automobile parking is free.

Lesson for July 12

WITNESSING UNDER PERSECUTION

LESSON TEXT—Acts 3:1-4:31.
GOLDEN TEXT—We ought to obey God rather than men.—Acts 5:29.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Brave Peter and John.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Two Brave Preachers.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Two Brave Witnesses.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC — Courageous Witnessing for Christ.

In I Corinthians 1:21-25, Paul sets forth the attitude of the world toward Christ and his gospel. The one who preaches Christ crucified must expect opposition, and even violent persecution. This attitude of the world, instead of being a deterrent, should be a spur to activity.

I. Peter Healing the Lame Man (Acts 3:1-11).

The place (vv. 1, 2). It was at the beautiful gate which leads from the outer to the inner court of the temple. This helpless man had been placed at the entrance of the place of worship where he might receive the sympathetic attention of worshipers.

2. The man (v. 2). This beggar was infirm from his birth. He was not more than forty years old (Acts 4:22). When he saw Peter and John, he asked alms.

3. The method (vv. 3-8).

a. Gaining the man's attention (v. 4). Peter and John commanded him to look on them. He asked for money and got healing.

b. Peter commanded him in the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth to rise and walk (v. 6). This was the very thing he had been unable to do all his life, but with the command went the ability to do.

c. Peter took him by the right hand (v. 7), gave impetus to his faith, not strength to his ankles.

4. The man's response (v. 8). Strength at once came to him. He stood, walked, leaped, and shouted praises to God.

5. The effect (vv. 9-11). The people were so filled with wonder that they ran together to behold this thing. There could be no question as to the genuineness of the miracle for the man had been a familiar figure for many years.

a. This helpless man had to be carried to the temple. Men and women out of Christ are so helpless that they need to be brought where the life of God can be applied to them.

b. Peter, taking the man by the hand, shows the manner of helping the lost. Christian witnesses should bring them to Jesus.

II. Peter Witnessing Before the Multitude (Acts 3:12-26).

Though this miracle directed the attention of the people to Peter and John, Peter seized the opportunity to present Christ to the people.

III. Peter in Prison for Christ's Sake (Acts 4:1-4).

1. The leaders. Both priests and Sadducees joined in this persecution (vv. 1, 2).

The priests were intolerant because these new teachers were encroaching upon their functions. The Sadducees did not believe in the resurrection, which was a vital part of the apostolic preaching.

2. The result (vv. 3, 4). Though they were held in bondage by chains, Christ continued to work. The number of believers greatly increased.

IV. Peter Witnessing Before the Sanhedrin (Acts 4:5-21).

1. The inquiry (vv. 5-7). The inquirers admitted the reality of the miracle but they wanted to know what it signified.

2. Peter's answer (vv. 8-12). With stinging sarcasm he showed them that they were not on trial as evildoers, but for doing good in the name of Christ to the helpless and needy man.

3. The impression upon the Sanhedrin (vv. 13-21).

a. They marveled (v. 13). They were made conscious that they were on trial instead of sitting as judges.

b. They took knowledge that Peter and John had been with Jesus (v. 13).

c. They forbade them to speak in Christ's name (v. 18). They could not deny the miracle or gainsay the accusation brought against them, so they attempted intimidation.

d. Peter and John's reply (vv. 19, 20). They expressed their determination to obey God rather than men.

e. Their release (v. 21). Seeing that the people were on the side of the apostles, the rulers were helpless.

V. The Church at Prayer (vv. 23-31).

As soon as Peter and John were set free, they hastened to their fellow disciples and told their experiences. They praised God for deliverance and prayed for boldness to speak the Word of God.

Pulling Together

If the money getters would line up behind the knowledge getters, and all pull together in a definite well-organized plan, we'd raise the standards of human life higher than the most fantastic imagination ever dreamed they could be raised.

Give A Young Man A Chance

In 1907 when Governor Beckham was a candidate for the United States Senate against Governor McCreary, he issued a pamphlet in which he set out that Governor McCreary, who at that time was about the same age Governor Beckham is now, had been in Congress, had been Governor of the State and had been United States Senator, and he then added that the people had honored Governor McCreary with every office within their power to give. He ended his pamphlet by setting out his own record and asking—Why not give a young man a chance?

I would like to ask Governor Beckham why he has changed his mind, for, if that was good logic in 1907, what's wrong with it today, when he, an old man, is running for the same office that I, a young man, now seek?

In the six years that Governor Beckham was in the Senate he was not successful in having enacted into law a single piece of legislation which bears his name. He is noted for but one vote, and that against allowing women the right to vote. On three different occasions in the United States Senate he voted against the amendment which would give women the right to vote, and now in this election he is asking the women to give him the vote which he three times voted to deny to them.

At the time Governor Beckham was in the United States Senate the problems of unemployment of relief, of social security, of old age pensions, of benefit payments to farmers and the hundred and one other social and economic ills of which this nation is now suffering had not appeared, and I submit to the voters of Kentucky that Governor Beckham, coming from retirement of about twenty years, is not in touch with the pressing problems now confronting the nation.

As our great President has said, we are facing new frontiers of life. In the conquest of the old frontiers the young men went forth to do battle with the obstacles of nature and the craftiness of the red man. Today the frontiers of life are social and economic and the battle front is in Washington, the seat of government, and I submit to the people of Kentucky that a young man, with vigor and enthusiasm, can better protect their interest and promote their welfare.

To those who, during the six years of depression, have known the terrors of privation and suffering, I submit the fact that Governor Beckham and myself come from life's two different sides. Governor Beckham was born in Bardstown, Kentucky, into an old aristocratic family. His family was one of comparative wealth. As he lives today in his beautiful home in a fashionable section of Louisville, thus far in his life he has never heard the howl of the wolf at the door, nor felt the pinch of penury nor known the woe of want. His hands have never calloused or blistered in handling a hoe or wielding a pick, but he has known the easy side of life, with all of its necessities and most of its luxuries.

On the other side of the picture, I was born in Union County, the son of a tenant farmer. My father did not own a foot of land. I was the first member of my family that ever attended college. I went to the same college that Governor Beckham attended, Centre College, but under different circumstances. He had his way paid by his family. I waited table for my board, fired a furnace for my room rent and worked in a drug store for my spending money. For twenty years of my life I lived on a farm. My hands have been calloused from handling a hoe and blistered from wielding a pitch fork. Governor Beckham has never known what this means. I worked for two years in the coal mines where I belonged to the United Mine Workers at Madison No. 1 at DeKoven, Kentucky. I know what it is to take my pick, shovel and dinner pail and fold my hands behind my back, bend my shoulders, bow my head and walk a mile and a half under the ground to get to the face of the coal. I know what it is to bend on one knee, or, for that matter, lay on my side and pick away at a coal bank to earn my daily bread.

I submit to the voters who must face the future without the hope of ease which Governor Beckham has known, that I can more sympathetically represent their interest at Washington than can one who has never known their problems or faced their hardships.

Bring Us Your Wheat

We are in a position this year to offer to the farmers the best wheat market that was ever offered to them in the history of our mill.

To those of you who need flour, we bid you 32 pounds of WHITE LILY FLOUR for 58 wheat or better. This flour may be taken out at once or be stored with us and withdrawn as you need it. No storage charge on a deal of this kind.

We offer to pay market price for your wheat but if you do not like the price at harvest, you may store your wheat with us at the rate of 1 cent per bu., per month and sell to us at market price any time before June 1, 1937.

We trade 100 lbs., mill feed which runs 15.5 percent. protein and 4 percent. fat for 100 lbs. of good wheat. With Kentucky Experimental Station, Lexington, as authority, wheat when ground, only runs 12.5 percent. protein comparison, you not only get a better feed, but you save the cost of grinding.

What Irvin S. Cobb Thinks about

SANTA MONICA, CALIF.—So soon as this, with both tickets just put up, folks already are saying this is starting out to be a bitter campaign—the bitterest, perhaps, since away back in 1896.

My guess is these prophets don't realize the twentieth part of it. I'm reminded of what happened when my old friend, Col. Bill Hayward, sailed with his negro regiment for France during the war.

Irvin S. Cobb

The outfit embarked at night. Next morning, when the transport was well out at sea a pop-eyed trooper from the interior South stood staring at the endless watery expanse.

"Boy!" he exclaimed to a companion, "dis sho' is one big ocean!"

"Mos' doubtless," stated the second soldier, "but, son, whut you's lookin' at now is only jes de top layer."

The Union Party

AT CLEVELAND there was harmony and a quiet interment for the old Guard. At Philadelphia the proceedings moved along on greased rollers. But for real excitement, wait until that new Union party holds its convention.

Then will be the signal to remove the women and children to a place of safety. Just consider who'll be there:

The inflationists who think that, as long as we have government engraving plants and printing presses, money should be plentiful. The group committed to the idea that, if the farmer won't do something for himself, something should be done for the farmer. Doctor Townsend, with his project to provide old age pensions for everybody over sixty except Congressman McGoarty. Father Coughlin, calling for social justice and better radio hookups. Huey Long's successor, who'd share the wealth and make every man a king.

Al Smith's Strategy

AS AN old-time headliner of political vaudeville, Al. Smith should have known better than to pull that ancient wheeze—shooting at Philadelphia letter carriers on a Sunday afternoon.

And besides, think of the desperate chance he and his supporting quartet of sharpshooters took: come between a mother panther and her cubs; come between a Frenchman and his fracas; come between a radio announcer and his elocution, but never, right on the eve of their national convention, try to come between a flock of office-holding Democrats and the prospect of four more uninterrupted years of the same.

Trouble of Travelers

OUTSIDE the larger cities, when a hotel manager wishes to show a special guest special attention, he assigns him to the bedchamber of state which usually is on the second floor, invariably is at the front of the house and nearly always on the corner where electric signs twinkle merrily till daylight in the poor sleepless wretch's eyes.

And along toward 2 a. m. a party named Dewey, standing in the street below, will start telling a party named Pink, about sumpin mighty comical that's come up Sad'day night whereupon Pink will be moved to recall a few social reminiscences of his own.

Convention Invocations

ALTHOUGH a southerner—however, not working at the trade as steadily as some—I have to snicker when a Democratic senator walks out on his own convention because a colored preacher asks the divine blessing on its deliberations. Which reminds me:

The first time that great Texan, Jim Hogg, ran for the governorship his party split. The bolters joined with the Republican outfit—mostly black—to put up a fusion ticket.

At this pinto convention, the Rev. 'Sin Killer" Griffin, a famous black evangelist, delivered the invocation. In concluding, he threw an unexpected bombshell into the piebald ranks by earnestly urging the Lord to Put Hogg in the governor's chair.

Terrific uproar ensued. Finally a dusky stalwart got the floor.

"I moves," he bellowed, "dat dis yere traitorsome and on-Republikin prayer be expunged from de record."

Majestically, 'Sin Killer" erected himself.

"I rises," he stated, "to a p'int of order. It's too late to expunge frum de record a prayer which already done got to heaven more'n five minutes ago."

ADJUSTMENT PROGRAM MODIFIED IN KENTUCKY AS RESULT OF DROUTH

The Agricultural Adjustment Administration has notified the College of Agriculture at Lexington that, as a result of the drouth, the conservation program has been modified in an effort to increase the production of food and feed crops.

On farms where the production of food and feed crops is less than normal because of drouth, or other unfavorable weather conditions, farmers may grow all the food and feed acreage necessary to bring their production up to normal without affecting payments, provided they comply with other requirements of the program.

Farmers may now plant food and feed crops above their general soil depleting bases and yet receive full payments for diverting tobacco or cotton or for carrying out soil-building practices, if the additional acreages are made necessary by the drouth. The program originally provided for deductions in payments where the acreage in soil depleting crops exceeded the base.

This provision particularly affects farmers who planted their regular acreage of crops other than tobacco or cotton and who did not expect to qualify for diversion payments from the general soil-depleting base, but who expected to qualify for tobacco and cotton payments by diverting acreages of these crops. A large number of Kentucky farmers, however, planned to divert acreage from their general soil-depleting bases as well as from their tobacco and cotton bases.

The modification in the adjustment program also allows farmers confronted with feed shortage to make additional plantings of annual grasses, sorghums and small grains without classifying these crops as soil depleting.

This means that farmers who have complied with the program to date by diverting acreages from the general soil-depleting base now may make emergency plantings of sudan grass, millet, sweet sorghum and small grains and still receive full payments.

A previous ruling of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration classified soybeans and cowpeas as soil-conserving crops when cut for hay and followed by cover crops. Therefore, these summer legumes so grown for hay will not affect payments.

INCREASED AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENTS ALARM INSURANCE COMPANIES

The recent startling increase in casualities has become the concern of the various insurance companies which issue life, accident, liability, and other allied policies. Mr. Frank G. Morris, an executive of one of these campanies, said: "In analyzing the cause (of disastrous loss experienced under automobile liability policies) we found an abnormal percentage attributable to overindulgence in alcoholic beverages by automobile operators, both young and old."

Mr. G. W. Fellows, president, Associated Insurance Companies, San Francisco, Calif., in referring to the alarming increase in bodily injury and property damage, stated: "The principal factor in this startling increase is the result of wider use of alcoholic beverages by automobile drivers."

Life and accident insurance companies attribute the great increase in the cost of conducting their lines of business to overindulgence in alcohol by many of our citizens, it is pointed out.

Observers declare that the country is far from reaching the peak of possible losses in life, property damage, and bodily injuries, due to this cause. The upward curve in these losses, they point out, follows the upward curve in the advertising campaign carried on by the liquor interests through the radio, newspapers, bill posting, and magazines intended to make this country a nation of drinkers.

The profit to be had in selling alcoholic beverages, these observers declare, overcomes much of the moral principle or feeling for human welfare which the dealers in these beverages may possess. No reforming from this quarter, therefore can be expected, it is contended.

Strength in the next reform movement against the liquor interests, it is claimed, must come from the various lines of business which are being affected by the unnatural diversions of the Nation's wealth to the dealers in alcoholic beverages. It is from the industrial and commercial concerns dealing in the essential things of life, from insurance companies and other allied businesses, led by the moral forces, that funds must be sought, these observers hold, to wage a counter campaign in the press, on the radio, in magazines, and on billboards against the evils of the drink habit.

The fascinating and alluring advertisements of the liquor dealers, used to draw the earnings from the people into their own pockets, can be more than matched by the degrading, death-dealing, and impoverishing results of drinking. These results, it is emphasized, can be set forth in graphic word-pictures and cartoons with such effect that the demand for alcoholic beverages will be greatly reduced.

A THRILLING SPORT

Recent feats of several young Americans in gliding have stimulated interest in that thrilling, but no t necessarily dangerous sport. There are already about 50 glider clubs in the United States, while more are being formed.

The glider, as is well known, is a light flying machine without motors, whose operator keeps it in the air for varying periods, someties several hours, by taking advantage of the natural air currents. The start of the glider from the ground has been thus described:

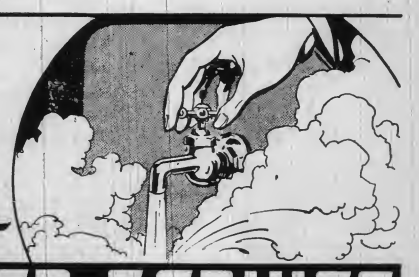
Ten or 12 men run against the wind with a long rubber cable attached to the glider, while others hold the glider until the cable is stretched, and then let go. The operation is similar to that of getting a kite into the air. The glider is cut loose by the pilot when the desired attitude is reached.

Gliders are usually launched from the top of a hill, so that the beginner may take a gradual decent into the valley below. With proper instruction, gliding can be learned with little risk, as the first flights are made at heights of only 10 or 12 feet. At one glider school more than 800 flights were made in a year without injury to a single student.

Besides the attractiveness of gliding as a mere sport, it is a most desirable preliminary to learning the operation of motored airplanes. Some air transport companies require their pilots to have glider licenses in addition to planes.

Personally, we would like to see the day when workers are assured of jobs but we have to admit that many workers do better when they are not assured of one.

Speakers in behalf of the candidacy of John Y. Brown will be heard Wednesday, July 15th at 10:00 a. m. at Union.



The W. M. S. of East Bend will give an ice cream supper at the home of Christina Kirtley, Friday night, July 10th. Home made ice cream will be served and all members are requested to be present.

ACP DROUTH RULINGS ARE IMPORTANT

The recent ACP drouth rulings are important to farmers, according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent. Apparently many farmers have misunderstood the interpretation of these rulings. A brief summary is as follows:

1. Soybeans and cowpeas pastured grazed or hogged-off, either when green or mature, are now classified as a soil conserving crop. When left on the land (that is, neither harvested nor grazed) will be classified as a soil conserving crop. Soybeans or cowpeas harvested for hay will be classified as soil conserving crop, provided a winter cover crop is planted on the acreage prior to October 31. In other words farmers may now sow all the soybeans and cow peas for hay they wish, provided a winter cover crop (as rye, wheat, etc.) follows the soybeans or cowpeas this fall, and they will not count against the soil depleting base or will not affect benefit payments.

2. Annual grasses (as sudan grass and millet), small grains or sorghums for hay or pasture seeded after June 1, 1936 will be disregarded in classifying the use of the land on which these crops are grown, provided the County Committee determines that the acreages of such crops were necessary to off-set less than normal production of feed crops because of drouth or other unfavorable weather conditions.

3. Spring oats and wheat when mature if harvested or grazed off whether followed with a legume or not count as a soil depleting crop and also count against the soil depleting base the same as an acre of corn.

ROBERT HENSLEY WILL MANAGE CAMPAIGN FOR JOHN YOUNG BROWN

Robert Hensley, graduate of the University Law School in June has been chosen as campaign manager for John Young Brown in his Senatorial race in the coming August primary. Bob, as he is known to the people of Boone County has in the past year taken a very active part in politics. In November of last year he was chosen to organize Young Democratic Clubs in the Colleges throughout the State. He is credited with having done a commendable job, having enlisted over 1500 Young Democrats in the colleges.

Plans have been completed to cover every precinct in the County and it is Bob's intention to contact each Boone County voter if time will permit. He says he will appreciate the assistance of all the persons who are interested in having truly representative government in Washington.

Speakers in behalf of the candidacy of John Y. Brown will be heard Tuesday, July 14th at 10:00 a. m. in Florence.

Speakers in behalf of the candidacy of John Y. Brown will be heard Friday, July 17th at 7:00 p. m., at Constance.

IN OUR JULY ROTO SECTION

YOU WILL FIND MANY INTERESTING FEATURES THAT HAVE NOT BEEN PRESENTED HERETOFORE.

Readers of The Boone County Recorder like our State Farmer Section, all-rotogravure monthly agricultural magazine supplement! Many of them have assured us of this fact. And, best of all, assert most of them, are the scores of pictures which our State Farmer Section always presents.

Answering the demand for still more pictures, The Boone County Recorder in its July State Farmer Section is going them one better this week by presenting an entire extra page of photographs, most of them featuring Kentucky.

For instance, on this big special extra picture page, this week, you will find pictures of 17 beautiful coeds in the Mountain Laurel Festival at Pineville; Miss Marjorie Fieber, of Nicholasville, Kentucky's sponsor in the famous Rhododendrom Festival at Asheville, N. C.; an attractive scene at Sayre College's May Day festivities at Lexington, the men's weaving contest at Berea College and many others.

Most Kentucky farmers these days are discussing the new soil conservation program, so our State Farmer Section for July presents a clear cut analysis of the program showing that it is being met with general approva l throughout the state, with more than 1000,000 farmers signed up. Figures shown in a graphic chart reveal the actual land conditions throughout the state.

The Boone County Recorder would be glad to hear from readers as to what features they like best in our State Farmer Section this week. If you want still more pictures—or some special types of articles—just write the editor of this newspaper your suggestions.

PROPER HOG FEEDING

In an address before a group of livestock raisers and industrial leaders in Birmingham, Ala., a few days ago, President Robert H. Cabell of Armour & Co., discussed the possibilities of increased stock raising in the South, and also gave some warning against improper feeding of livestock intended for sale to packers.

His company has recently purchased a packing plant in Birmingham and he explained some of the problems it faced in marketing certain types of Southern meats. He referred to the fact that peanut-fed hogs produced "soft" pork, which is an undesirable product for packers to handle.

Mr. Cabell also cautioned against using whole soybeans for hog feed for the same reason, saying that the oil should be extracted from the beans before being fed to hogs.

This advice is in line with what various state and private experiment stations have demonstrated in recent years. Fortunately, these demonstrations have led to the development of practical processes for the extraction of the oil and producing a wholesome and highly desirable stock feed called soybean oilmeal. Incidentally, it may be mentioned that the oil so removed has been found valuable in the manufacture of soap, paints, varnishes, linoleum and other commodities of general use, as well as in numerous food products.

Soybean oilmeal is now extensively used as the protein ingredient of the best commercial stock feeds, highly desirable for hogs, dairy cows and poultry.

BIG BONE W. M. U.

The Big Bone Baptist W. M. U. had their regular monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. Tom Hamilton. A very pleasant day was spent by all prsent. The morning was spent in christian fellowship. HIGH HONOR TO KENTUCKY GIRL

Miss Rosetta Sexton, of Lexington, a student in the home economic department of the University of Kentucky, has been awarded the Donforth Summer Fellowship, providing for two weeks study at the Ralston Purina Mills at St. Louis and two weeks of leadership training at the American Youth Foundation Camp on Lake Michigan. A member of Phi Upsilon Omicron, national professional home economics fraternity, the Home Economics Club and the Agriculture Society, Miss Sexton has been outstanding in scholarship and service during her three years of college. This is the first year that home economics students have been included in the Danforth awards.

THE FARM AND HOME

(Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station)

Regardless of fade-proof claims, care should be exercised in washing colored materials, for faded garments are never attractive. Likewise attention should be given to the possibility of shrinkage, although most garments are now pre-shrunk.

Now is the time to begin planning a laying house for the poultry. Egg prices are highest in fall and early winter, and a good house increases productioni. Write the College of Agriculture, Lexington, or see your county agent for plans.

For canning, select firm, ripe tomatoes of medium size and uniform shape. Never use overripe tomatoes or any part of those from which decayed spots have been removed. Never add water when canning tomatoes.

Eating on a screened porch, especially in the evening, is one of the joys of summer living. In remodeling a house or building a new on, don't forget a deep back porch fully screened where the family can spend many happy hours.

Late lambs that must be carried through the hot, dry weather of mid-summer need special care. Nearly always they require drenching to prevent stomach worm injury. Plenty of good drinking water is important, and feed other than grass may be necessary.

Many ton-littr feeders have found the self-feeder plan satisfactory. Tests indicate that pigs gain faster when self-fed, if the ration is well-balanced. Farmers also report that self-feeders save both grain and labor.

Saturday, July 4th, Mrs. Mary V. Gaines and family entertained with a picnic social for their relative Mrs. Mollie Gaines Clore. A pleasant day was enjoyed by 40 relatives and friends.

Soil Program Meets General Approval

By A STAFF WRITER

The beginning of gullying, a familiar sight in the sloping hill country of the Tennessee Valley.

TENNESSEE and Kentucky farmers are cooperating whole-heartedly with the new soil conservation program. In fact, a greater number are apparently participating in this program than did in the various activities under the AAA.

Total figures released the first of July show more than 100,000 farmers in Kentucky signed up under the soil program, and in Tennessee more than 85,000.

At least, that is the number that have completed work sheets, qualifying farm operators for earning payments. It is presumed by the administrators of the program that the same number of applications for participation in benefits will be made. The worksheet deadline previously set for the end of May was advanced to June 15.

Community meetings were held in every county in both states. Soon now, a second series of meetings will be under way to acquaint the farm operators with the correct method of making out benefit applications.

Comparison of the whole AAA total of contracts does not give an accurate estimate of the definite number of farmers participating, since the AAA contracts were signed on various commodities rather than by farms. Census reports show around 270,000 farmers in Tennessee, but there are only approximately 100,000 farming tracts under the soil conservation program classification. It appears a more general type of farm operator is being taken in under the benefits of the new program.

75 Per Cent Take Part

J. B. Hutson, administrator of the East Central Region which includes Tennessee, Kentucky, North Carolina, West Virginia, Virginia, and Maryland, states that better than 75 per cent of farm operators are taking part in the new program. He believes truck gardeners and livestock farmers are better satisfied with the new program than they were with the AAA, but figures from cotton and tobacco producing counties appear to indicate that the percentage of farmers participating was as great as under the commodity plan, while in counties in which corn is the main crop the numbers cooperating exceed the AAA total.

In Kentucky, it was found that in many counties 85 to 90 per cent of the crop land could be included in the conservation program. For the state as a whole, it was estimated between 75 and 80 per cent of the total land should come under the program.

The Department of Agriculture survey shows 95 per cent of the land in Kentucky had been damaged by erosion. This means that more than 24,000,000 acres have lost some of their productive capacity. It was estimated that 87 per cent of Kentucky's farming land was affected by gulleying and that 2,697,495 acres had been destroyed so far as further conservation was concerned. Sheet erosion, it was estimated, has affected an area of nearly 19,000 acres.

Drought Hits Hard

East Tennessee in particular, and the state as a whole, suffered from the Spring drought which hit Georgia, the Carolinas and Kentucky, the latter to a lesser extent. Cotton and corn escaped serious damage, but pasture crops, grains such as barley and oats, and truck crops, especially strawberries and Irish potatoes, were greatly reduced in quantity and quality. Tobacco growers began to feel the effects of the drought early in May and by June 1 it was realized that the cut in the year's crop was going to be greatly under the five-year average.

All this, while it delayed the making out of work sheets, contributed to success of the farm program. Since the work sheets are based on the 1935 farm record, rather than the 1936 farm plan, a drought, or extremely wet season would not affect soil conserving or soil building payments, thus constituting a form of insurance.

The report of the government survey in Kentucky is summarized as follows:

"Three distinct erosion conditions exist in the Appalachian Highlands in the eastern part of Kentucky. Severe sheet erosion was found on a large percentage of the corn and tobacco land in the northeastern part.

Demonstrate Erosion Control

"In the central part, erosion has been less severe because a smaller proportion of land has been cleared and utilized for clean-tilled crops.

"The southern part of the Highland area was subject to occasional gullying with little or no sheet erosion.

"The inner Bluegrass region in the north-central part, west of the Appalachian Highlands, was found to have a moderate to serious sheet erosion.

"Because of the topography, erosion is very severe in the Highland Rim area. "The steep lands of low soil fertility in the western coal fields area have suffered from both severe gullying and severe sheet erosion.

The Soil Conservation Service, with headquarters at Zanesville, Ohio, has set up an erosion-control demonstration at Paducah, Ky., known as the Massac Creek project. It has a cooperative agreement on farms covering 4,500 acres of the 25,000 acres in the watershed of this creek.

Practices recommended by the Kentucky College of Agriculture are being used to stop the washing of the soil. The utilization of Winter cover crops and strip-cropping also are included in the erosion prevention demonstration at Paducah. More legumes will be recommended in the development of better cropping system. Ground limestone will be used to make possible the growing of sweet clover and alfalfa.

Retirement of unsuitable land from grazing and cultivation is another goal. Planting trees on a large portion of the area will serve to re-build eroded areas. More than 2,600,000 trees have been set at the Massac Creek project.

Increase in wildlife in the area will result from the erosion control practices. The present state of wildlife has suffered from the burning over of forests and pastures and from lack of proper vegetation. Planting and other management measures designed to reduce erosion and develop valuable wildlife feed and cover are part of the program.

Erosion Control in Coal Fields

At Madisonville, Hopkins County, in the heart of the western coal fields, 20 farms totaling approximately 2,500 acres are under cooperative agreement in the Soil Conservation Service project for demonstrating erosion-control.

The work area consists of about 29,000 acres immediately north of Madisonville, and includes 400 farms on the watersheds of Greasy and Pond creeks which drain into Tradewater river. The area extends about 6 miles from Madisonville along U. S. Highway 41 and about 2 miles east and west of this road.

Practical methods of erosion prevention and control for the outer Bluegrass region are being demonstrated on a 28,000-acre watershed project in northern Grant and Pendleton counties. All farms in the drainage basin of the Middle Fork and Grassy creek are included in the project area. Frequent gullies and rocky fields bear mute testimony to the severity of erosion damage.

The first step of the Soil Conservation Service coordinated erosion-control program is a complete inventory or stock-taking of the soil and erosion conditions on the farms under consideration. Information about the farm obtained from this detailed erosion survey is used in drawing up a complete plan for the farm in close cooperation with the farmer.

Pastures Improved

The resultant cropping plan, which lists the use of every field for a period of five years, is an important part of the cooperative agreement between the farmer and the Soil Conservation Service. Field crews may then start to work to effect the erosion-control program for the farm.

A typical plan for a farm in the project area calls for farming the ridge tops, keeping as much of the hillsides as possible in permanent sods, and reforesting the badly eroded spots which commonly occur at the breaks of the ridges. All intertilled crops are grown in contoured rows. Pasture improvement is done on present pasture fields where the sod is thin or broken.

The cases where there is not enough ridge land to care for the farmer's needs, the less steep hillsides are cropped in strips. Corn and tobacco strips are alternated with meadow strips, thus protecting the hillside against uncontrolled erosion. This type of farming has been found to give effective control over both gully and sheet erosion in other areas of smaller slopes.

Since the soils of ridge tops are commonly acid and comparatively low in productivity, field limerock is being crushed to correct this condition.

This soil improvement program encourages the growing of legumes, which in turn raises the productivity of these ridges and allows a more complete retirement of the slopes to sod crops.

Farmers Make Crop of Game

Pointing quail in a brushy fence corner. Leave fence rows and clumps of rocky ground uncleared for game cover.

BY DICK WOOD

SPORTSMEN are waking up to the fact the supply of game is not going to last indefinitely by letting Nature take its course. Regulating game bags, by state and federal laws is not enough to insure a plentiful supply for increasing hordes of nimrods.

Game farming has long been a custom in Europe. Any land owner, or city sportsman fortified with a shotgun and hunting license costing $2 or less can hunt in this country, but in Europe, the average sportsman is comparatively rich. There most hunting is done on public or private shooting preserves at a considerable fee.

Game shooting cannot long continue in this country for a dollar or two expenditure for license; half of that sum is spent on game law enforcement. It has long been done because the farmer has produced game birds and animals and willingly granted hunting rights to city sportsmen.

Hunting Necessary

In some sections, small game of various sorts thrive under natural conditions, and need periodical hunting to maintain a proper balance. An overabundance of squirrels or raccoon will damage corn considerably. Doves, pheasants and wildfowl will make heavy inroads on grain in the shock. So hunting is often welcomed by farmers who lack time to keep game in check.

Farmers who have considerable areas of waste land may profitably convert it into game refuges. Ring-neck pheasants, quail and ducks are easily raised for stocking purposes. Some states are experimenting with the guinea.

Ducks, when released, will leave with the migratory flights, but other feathered game will remain on the farm, if cover, roosting and feeding conditions are satisfactory.

Quail should be raised to maturity with a bantam hen, then be released in good cover, adjacent to feed and water. Commercially, quail are most economically raised by the incubator-brooder system.

Sportsmen May Aid

Pheasants may be released at 10 to 12 weeks of age. Pheasants range similar to, but less extensively, than turkeys. Swamp land is best. Feed should be planted in advance, if necessary, allowing an acre to each bird. Guineas will range in more upland, brushy waste land and will stand slightly more crowding than pheasants.

Ducks and Canadian geese often will remain or return to waters where they are raised, thus affording the raiser some shooting. Ducks are almost invariably released for flights and the good of sportsmen in general.

Whether the farmer is interested in bettering his own shooting opportunities or has in mind commercializing shooting rights, he will find it profitable and inexpensive to encourage game propagation on waste lands. A club may be formed of sportsmen who should gladly pay for eggs or breeding stock, brooders planting feed, etc., for shooting privileges.

JEST A-WHITTLIN' AN' A-THINKIN'

BY PETE GETTYS

Along comes a science feller who says you can make lemonade out of tobacco, for there's actually more citric acid in tobacco than in grapefruit.

An' nicotine has such a large an' growin' use for killin' bugs they're tryin' to make tobacco plants extra full of nicotine.

A feller in Massachusetts has learned how to turn cow ponds into laboratories. He puts six kinds of bacteria to work makin' vegetable gums in indoor water tanks. Billions of these cellulose-forming germs turned loose in the old frog pond produce cloth for dresses, swimmin' suits, an' things. Ain't that a new wrinkle to write home about!

An' here's somethin' to make your eyes blink: The U. S. D. A. got together a lot of fire sirens to kill 17-year locusts due this year. The siren's high-pitched sound waves is figured to drown out the insect's matin calls an' papa locust can't call an there won't be any more baby locusts. High sound waves, human can't even hear, have killed mice an' smaller varmints by congealin' their blood. A lot of off-note singers can do that—but the sirens'd be worse'n the locusts—an' a little thing like a siren blowin' ain't goin' to stop a gallant young-blood from findin' his mate. There's an old sayin' that "love will find a way."

Looks like sometimes we are gettin plum away from some of the fundamentals that's liable to throw us outer balance. 'Course cabbage does smell pretty ordinary a-cookin' in a cheap boardin' house—but most of us have learnt to expect sech things—an' it's sorter like homefolks to us. But goodbye old boilin' cabbage—in a year or two you'll be gone, for market gardeners will be offerin' us smell-less cabbage.

An' down in Florida they're tryin' to grow an odorless an' "tearless" onion—an' that won't be any fun, an' I bet they won't taste near so good neither. Coffee don't taste as good now as it used to when Maw roasted it at home Saturdays on a wood stove, an' it smelled so good, an' every morning you could hear her grindin' it in the little wooden coffee mill on her lap. Fact is, you can jest keep on improvin' things, as they call it, till all the best part is gone—an' I still want my onions strong.

Ever have a pig for a pet? What a wonderful pal a pig is—the very flower of discretion. Your intimate confidences are safe with him. An' how attentive he is! He stands with ears straight up, his little eyes lookin' right into yours and his nostrils twitchin' with interest an' anticipation. Ever notice that a pig more'n any other animal looks like many people you know? The moment you see a new pig you have a dozen names in your mind—an' every one of 'em fit perfectly.

When you learn to know a pig, your admiration grows for him. He never poses like somethin' he ain't. He lives purty much to a pattern with nary a worry, jest plain contented. He has none of that nervous twitchiness that's so wearin' to live with. He has no ideas about anything or himself. He never gets moody, uppity or frivolous.

So, when you reach that time in life when you commence sufferin' from the chronic orneriness of a man over 50, get yourself a pet pig.

BETWEEN THE ROWS

Aesop's story of the satyr and the woodman is retold with a moral in a recent publication of the Rural Electrification Administration.

No doubt you recall how the satyr, upon meeting a woodman returning home one cold evening, asked the man why he blew upon his hands, and in reply was told it was to make them warm.

Upon reaching the woodman's cottage, the two sat down to hot porridge, and again the satyr questioned the man as to why he blew on his soup, and was told that thereby it was cooled.

Whereupon the satyr declared that one who could blow both hot and cold with the same breath must be bewitched and he left that place forever.

"And," moralizes the publication interested in more electrified farms, "despite his very active imagination, Aesop himself would believe the modern farmer bewitched who can by the snap of an electric swith, make heat or cold, power or light."

A negro minister was describing the "bad place" to a congregation of awed listeners in Tennessee.

"Friends," he said, "you all have seen melted iron runnin' out of a furnace, has you? It am white hot, sizzlin' and hissin.' Well, dey use dat stuff for ice cream in de place I'se telling you about."

This reminds the writer of what I heard an Irish preacher in Virginia say about the evils of whiskey when prohibition was being discussed on every corner:

"Drink," he said "is the greatest curse of the country. It makes yer quarrel with yer neighbors. It makes yer shoot at yer landlord and it makes yer miss him."

Mark Twain, the famous humorist, once served as editor of a Southern farm paper while the regular editor took a vacation.

Toward sundown on the day after the paper went to press an old gentleman with a fine, but austere, face entered the office and asked:

"Are you the new editor?"

Mark answered in the affirmative.

"Have you ever edited an agricultural paper before?"

"No," the man who was later to become famous as a humorist answered. "This is my first attempt."

"Some instinct told me so," said the old gentleman. "I wish to read you what must have made me have that instinct. It was this editorial: 'Turnips should never be pulled, it injures them. It is much better to send a boy up and let him shake the tree.' Now what do you think of that?"

"Think of it?" replied Twain. "Why I think it's good. I have no doubt but that every year millions of bushels of turnips are spoiled in this township alone by being pulled in a half-ripe condition when, if they had sent a boy up to shake the tree . . ."

"Shake your grandmother! Turnips don't grow on trees!"

"Oh, they don't, don't they? Well, who said they did. The language was intended to be figurative—wholly figurative. Anybody that knows anything will know that I mean that the boy should shake the vine."

A B C's of Tobacco Culture

BY ROY H. MILTON
Tobacco Specialist, University of Tennessee

I have prepared a sort of "ABC" of tobacco production, which the producer should bear in mind, from season to season, as the most practicable to obtain the maximum of benefit, through good and lean years.

First, select fertile land. Sod land is preferable. Next, land which can yield corn at the rate of 60 bushels to the acre, rich in nitrogen, phosphorus, lime and humus.

Provision of early plants should come next. Select an open spot in woods or a field, well supplied with organic matter. This land should be well sterilized and fertilized liberally, at the rate of one-half to one pound of fertilizer to the square yard. One tablespoonfull of good graded seed should be planted to each 30 square yards. Sowing should be done in normal seasons on or before March 12.

Land to be planted to tobacco should be turned in Fall, Winter or early Spring. Besides disking, dragging should be done before laying off the rows.

Fertilizer Necessary

Outside the Central Basin of Middle Tennessee, land should be fertilized liberally.

Transplanting must be done with care. Hills should be uniform. When plants are set, press firmly into the ground, at least a foot apart.

Start cultivation as soon as land gets sufficiently dry after setting. Insect and cutworm control should be practiced early.

At the ripening period, top plants should range from 16 to 22 leaves high. Pull suckers at week intervals. Place from five to six large plants, at cutting time, on each four foot stick. Tobacco leaves burn easily when cut in August and September. Plants should be allowed to wilt when possible before scaffolding. In hauling to the barn, wait until dew evaporates. Poorly wilted leaves break easily.

A good, correctly built barn is needed. Space sticks wide apart on tier poles, with a foot as the recommended distance. Tobacco yellowed on scaffold may be closer on tier poles. Ventilators should be opened by day and closed by night during the yellowing period. In very dry weather sprinkling the floor is helpful. In the case of excessive moisture, particular attention must be paid to ventilation. Artificial heat may be necessary.

The ABC's

For processing from bulking on:

Let leaves cure and dry completely before bulking: Green stems will rot when tied into hands; wet (green) stalks bulked down may get hot and rot leaves in contact.

Bulk unstripped tobacco in a two-layer bulk: Tobacco is bulked down off of stick of hold right order; two-layer bulk is desirable. (The leaves inside and butts of stalks outside); compressed air sprinkler may be used to order the butts of the stalks. Sprinkling the heavy leaf is dangerous.

Sort the tobacco on a stripping table: Convenience must not be overlooked in sorting (matching color, texture and body); better light can be had on a table than on the ground; standing is not so tiresome as sitting in one place; the table may also be used as a stick rack on which tied hands are placed.

Matching Essential

Northern light needed: A good light without cross-shadows is needed; sun dries tobacco and interferes with matching colors when it shines on tobacco; light from the north is regular and constant; well lighted stripping room is the most desirable place for stripping or sorting. Every grower needs one.

Match color, body, texture and length of leaves: Tobacco has many grades; each grade carries a different price there are wide ranges in prices; color, body, texture, and length should be matched in the hand; each grade should be tied into a separate hand.

Tie neat, attractive hands: Break off the leaves, lay each grade down on a separate area, pick them up and tie them; make hands nearly as large as a silver dollar; push stems down evenly; wrap securely with a leaf of the same color; make the top edge of the folded wrapper or binder leaf even with ends of the stems of the leaves. Tie securely with a tie-leaf folded to a width of 1½ inch.

Deliver In Good Order

Place each grade on separate stick: Place empty sticks in racks under table top or in prepared rack; when hand is tied, open and place astride stick fixed for it; place each grade on a separate stick, hands close together, 16 hands on each stick..

Bulk tulled sticks down time they are filled: make plank platform; raise platform a few inches above ground; bulk each grade separately; cross sticks about foot from ends—tails inside; when a stick is put down, put a plank on it for pressing and straightening; pick up plank and put down on each newly filled stick when it is put into bulk; weigh bulk down at night and on non-stripping periods.

Keep each grade separate: Have a bulk for each grade or label sticks; partition each grade on the load; put each grade on a separate basket on loose floor.

Deliver in Good Order.

Paradise or Hades?

BY JOHN W. HERSHEY
Forest Tree Crop Specialist, TVA

Should the original pioneers of the Tennessee Valley have come from the tree crop countries of southern Europe, with their sacred respect for a crop of trees, instead of the plow crop countries of northern Europe, we could today have a land which could be called the Eden of America. The steep hills and narrow valleys of the Southern Highlands, with their high annual rainfall and intense heat, truly provide a tree growing paradise! With ideal hands guiding and guarding this tree crop, this valley would sustain a larger population than is here today, in a more healthy condition of mind, body and contentment of soul.

Let us envision these Southern Highlands, with their glorious, natural beauty unmarred by furrow and gully, if for 200 years men had been improving the following tree crops by selection and introduction. Here we would now find:

Japanese persimmon grafted on the useless wild persimmon sprout.

Acorns—Of better varieties, upon which train-loads of hogs could feed, and from which the inhabitants could grind flour and make delicious biscuits, much are made from corn meal.

Hickory nuts, black walnuts and pecans—All thin-shelled and rapid-growing, excellent food.

Delicious Foods

Persimmons, American and Oriental—Of select strains that bear from August until late Fall; fresh, sweet and juicy; dried to store all Winter; delicious dessert strains that could be shipped for city trade; dried ones on which domestic and wild life could feed all Winter. Oriental varieties, as large as apples nnd more delicious than pastry, also superior hog and cattle forage.

Honey locusts—Varieties carrying 1-3 sugar, covering grasslands, protecting them from the burning sun, stimulating grass growth, and producing a crop of food, more valuable than grass or corn, to drop all Winter for cattle forage.

Papaws—(northern bananas), large, delicious and high in food value for cattle and wildlife, and a table delicacy.

Berries—Such as blueberries, huckleberries, farkleberries, sarvisberries, cherries and wild plums, improved haws and hawthorns, myriads of berry-bearing bushes and trees to sustain a prolific supply of game life. Mulberries—from which so many people profit by feeding their chickens, hogs, and birds.

Such a picture sounds almost too good to be true, but it could have been.

Why This Program?

With the revival of interest in conservation work, the Tennessee Valley will come back with our friends, the trees, supplying perpetual sustenance.

In the TVA's program of building flood and navigation control dams, it was found essential to buy "protecting areas" around the edges of lakes back of dams. To make the best possible use of this area, forestry was turned to as one of the methods to control erosion and utilize the land.

A tree breeding experimental station has been started at Norris where, for the first time, forest crop trees are being bred under controlled methods. Superior trees from all over the world are being collected for observation, study, and selection. This work will act as a yardstick of measurement in a national tree crop development program and can be applied on your farm and mine, with certain modifications as to climate.

Crochet this Smart "Straw" —Yourself

BY MARY BROOKS PICKEN

Many a fashion-wise young lady is making her wardrobe appear twice its size with the addition of smart straw-like hats crocheted from crepe paper. They're easy to make and without trimming, cost only 15 cents, the price of one fold of crepe. Simply cut the crepe paper in strips, stretch and twist them, and crochet as with yarn.

Crepe paper is a millinery favorite. It is durable and inexpensive and available in a variety of colors.

The hat shown is right for any sports costume. For a dress-up event, the pompon may be replaced by a bunch of flowers, and a veil added.

First cut the crepe paper across the grain into strips 3-8-inch wide. Stretch and twist these by hand or with an inexpensive gadget called a twister. The following directions are for a 22-inch head size. The stitch used is: S c, taking up both loops of previous st.

Crown. Ch 3, join in loop with sl st. 6 s c in loop. Row 2. 2 s c in every st. Row 3. 2 s c in ever 2d st. Row 4. 2 s c in ever 3d st. Continue increasing enough to keep crocheting almost flat until circle measures 2½ inches diameter. increase 6 st evenly spaced around row. Repeat from * to * until work measures 4¾ inches from center of top to edge. Work will cup slightly. Next 4 rows without increasing.

Start Headband. Next row. Decrease 1 st every 10 st. Next row. S c all around. Next row. S c 9, decrease 1 st every 10th st. Then decrease 1 st every 20 to 25 st. Do not decrease in the same place as in previous row. Continue until a 21½ inch head size is acquired. Work plain until work measures 7 inches center top to edge of brim.

Finish Hat. When completed hat will look like a beret. The underneath part (or headband) should be approximately 2 inches wide. With fingers or a warm iron, press the underneath part down flat. Catch it down all around with two rows of wool in a running stitch. Sew 3 wool pompons in place across the top.

Allay your fears about rain. In white or pastels, your bonnet will bear up beautifully; in deeper colors, if you must stay out in the rain, an inexpensive water repellent solution can be applied.

THE CLUB HOUSE ACTION BUILT

(North Carolina Home Demonstration Club Gets Real Results)

When progressive members of the Home Demonstration Club of Wakefield, N. C., wanted a real club house, they answered their own demand with action.

Led by Mrs. S. H. Hoyle and Mrs. W. A. Joyner, they went into the woods, selected trees and then went to work on the logs with drawing knives, hatchets, old froes and mattocks.

Food sales, a play, along with fair prizes and other funds went into the club's building treasury. Business firms and husbands helped, too.

The result is shown in an accompanying picture. The main room of the house is 18 by 30 feet. A kitchen at the back forms a "T."

Because of the interest and help of D. S. Joyner, the club was named in honor of his wife, "The Genia Joyner Home Demonstration Club."

"Didn't we have a good time doing it!" say the hard-working ladies now.

Wardrobe Chic for Midsummer

TEXAS CENTENNIAL
Pattern No. 9708

The Texas Centennial and Spanish trend in spectator sports wear, is illustrated by Universal's lovely Priscilla Lawson. Lines conform to simple treatment universally demanded by style-lovers and a bolero characteristic which is taking the world by storm this season.

Pattern designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, 20; 40 and 42. Size 16 requires 4¾ yards of 39-inch material for the dress, and ⅞ yard for the bolero. Scarf and belt require ⅝ yard.

SUMMER SPORT FROCK
Pattern No. H-3124

A lovely day, a lovely lady, and a lovely frock combine to make this exquisite picture of summer charm and beauty.

Pattern available in the following sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46. Size 36 requires 4¾ yards of 39 inch or 4⅞ yards of 35 inch fabric.

PATTERN NO. H-3167
Trimmed in Pique

Universal created this superbly graceful frock of a royal blue shade of crepe for the lovely Ann Preston, and it is brought to you here in pattern form as a fetching contribution to your summer wardrobe.

Easily made with the assistance of the detailed instruction chart supplied with each pattern, it is offered in the 12 to 20 range and features a deep, inverted pleat which runs high for fullness yet retains the slimming hipline. White pique, in striking contrast, fashions the collar and bows, the top being tied through a fan-shaped piece cut in the blouse.

Pattern available in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Corresponding bust measurements 30, 32, 34, 36 and 38. Size 14 (32) requires 4¾ yards of 35 inch fabric with ¾ yard of contrasting pique.

Milking time at Springdale Farm near Spartanburg, S. C. Milk is carried through sanitary pipes to the milk bottling room adjoining, shown in illustration to the left. Within a few minutes, from the time the milk leaves the cow, it is cooled and bottled. When a cow is milked, the gate in front is opened by the operator by means of a lever, the cow walks forward and out to her barn or feed lot and the gate closes. The rear gate opens and a cow coming in to be milked takes her place in the stall. One operator can handle from three to five stalls and milker units, and milk from 30 to 50 cows per hour.

This attractive milking parlor is on the Suwannee Farm, owned by the Florida Milk Co., St. Petersburg, Fla. In 15 months more than 75,000 visitors came to the farm to see this novel method of milking. Right, the milk bottling room.

Milking Cows in a Parlor

BY C. L. REISNER

WHOEVER heard of cows being milked in a parlor! Well, it's being done in a big way by some of the finest dairies in the country.

Several years ago at the dairy farm owned and operated by the Bureau of Dairying of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, Beltsville, Md., a room for milking cows was built and equipped with special run-through stalls and a special type of milking machine designed by the De Laval Separator Company.

Fast Milking

Cows were brought into this room and the milk was withdrawn by the milking machine into glass jars suspended on a scale attached to each stall. Sanitary pipes conveyed the milk by vacuum to the milk bottling room.

Dr. Harris Moak, then secretary of the Certified Milk Producers Association of America, called the room in which the cows were milked the "milking parlor." That name stuck.

One man can operate three to five milker units and milk from 30 to 50 cows per hour. Only a few minutes elapse from the time the milk leaves the cow until it is bottled.

Help Sell Milk

Milking parlors help sell milk. People like to watch the cows being milked in this way. This provides advertising of inestimable value.

Some progressive milk producers capitalized upon this idea and as a result constructed attractive milking parlors with large windows, so that the milking and bottling operations would be visible to the public. This feature has proven so effective that already substantial businesses have been built around it and existing dairies who have installed this system have almost invariably increased their milk sales. Some dairies having milking parlors report thousands of visitors during the course of the year.

Use Increases

More dairies are using milking parlors and combine milkers in the Southeastern States than in any other section of the country.

Among prominent users are the Biltmore Farms, Asheville, N. C.; Springdale Farm, Spartanburg, S. C.; Dr. F. H. McLeod, Florence, S. C.; B. H. Darden & Son, Norfolk, Va.; Yoder Bros., Newport News, Va.; Lickingview Farms, Newport, Ky.; Virginia Polytechnic Institute; Winthrop College, Rock Hill, S. C.; Clemson College, S. C., and University of Tennessee.

The milking parlor idea and the combine milking system have done much to elevate and dignify the milking of cows and to attract the attention and interest of the milk consuming public, which undoubtedly should result in a larger consumption of milk.

Just how extensively this system will be used, of course, cannot be known at this time. It does seem, however, there is a place near every city and good-sized town for at least one milk production plant of this kind.

In the milking parlor of the Lakeside Dairy, owned by B. H. Darden & Son, near Norfolk, Va., shown above, are two rows of stalls and milker units. Observation room for visitors is shown, upper left. Exterior view is of the building in which are located the milking parlor, observation room and milk bottling plant.

Agricultural Brevities

Cotton

Cotton breeders are working to bring to the cotton field the "blood" of an American Indian cotton, that has only one important good quality—exceptionally fine fiber.

Recent tests have revealed that strength and wearing quality is associated with fine fiber, as much as it is with long fiber. Heretofore growers and spinners alike highly prized Sea Island cotton for its strength, took it for granted that it was the long fiber that was the essential characteristic.

Experiments in the Department of Agriculture have exploded this belief and indicate that strength is more a result of fineness of fiber than of length. In breeding to secure fine fiber, the Department has turned to an almost worthless variety of very low yield grown by Hopi Indians in northeastern Arizona. Now Hopi isn't a market cotton, since it yields only a few pounds to the acre and is generally undesirable. It does have fine fibers remarkably uniform in length and strong.

Last year, the Department crossed Hopi with Acala cotton, a variety introduced years ago by the Department from southern Mexico. The results have been promising.

Officials in the Department point out that a new supply of superior quality fine-stapled cotton adapted to American conditions would help to hold and reclaim the world market against all competitors.

Export Trade

Chester C. Davis, former AAA Administrator, recently appointed to the Federal Reserve Board, upon his recent return from a two months survey of European markets emphasized the importance to the American farmer of a solution of our foreign trade problem.

In a press statement, he said: "Increase the foreign trade in our farm products and our agricultural problem would fade accordingly—trade is exchange of goods, it has to move both ways—if it does not there is no trade—our government is promoting reciprocal trade agreements — the United States now has concluded 14 of these agreements—eight of these agreements have been in effect long enough to give us some idea how they are working—our agricultural exports to these countries during the first quarter of 1936 increased 15 per cent above the farm exports for the same quarter last year."

Livestock

Chemical warfare against injurious bacteria, viruses, and parasites has done much to reduce the hazards of the livestock industry, according to Dr. John R. Mohler, Chief of the U. S. Bureau of Animal Industry.

While species of livestock parasites number thousands, through diligent research science has not only devised means of keeping such enemies down, but has succeeding in practically annihilating certain species.

Dr. Mohler points out that the campaign in the South against the cattle tick has reclaimed about 91 per cent of the area formerly infested by this parasite. Eradication of bovine tuberculosis has been so successful that 40 entire states are now practically free from the disease.

Much of the success in these states, Dr. Mohler feels, has been due to the whole-hearted cooperation of livestock owners and public veterinary and livestock officials. He also credits manufacturers of disinfectants and insecticides with having a most important influence by providing chemicals for use against animal diseases and parasites.

A survey of milk consumption in 59 cities made under the direction of the Department of Agriculture discloses that the weekly per capita consumption of whole milk was 2.44 quarts. Nutritionists agree that an adequate standard calls for between three and five quarts a week. The survey establishes definitely the fact that there is a great deficiency in the average amount of milk consumed by a large number of families. The elimination of this deficiency would change the present milk surplus to a milk shortage.

Tobacco

Funds appropriated for the redemption of tobacco warrants are available until Sept. 1, 1936. No checks can be issued after that date, according to a statement from the office of the Secretary of Agriculture. These funds will be used to redeem tax payment warrants issued to eligible producers of Burley, flue-cure, fire-cured, dark air-cured and cigar-leaf tobacco.

Contracting producers holding warrants eligible for redemption have been urged to file their applications immediately with the tobacco section tof the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, Washington, D. C. County Agents throughout the tobacco producing area have been supplied with the necessary forms and regulations. Only warrants issued to producers who signed tobacco production adjustment contracts are eligible to be redeemed.

Economic Advisor

Dr. John Lee Coulter, former member of the U. S. Tariff Commission, and agricultural economist, has been appointed economic advisor to the Committee on Agricultural Cooperation of the National Association of Manufacturers.

This committee is making a study of the farm situation to give industry a better grasp of the farmer's problem and to encourage a spirit of cooperation between agriculture and industry. The committee is headed by Lewis H. Brown, president of Johns-Manville Corporation.

Dr. Coulter was at one time Dean of the West Virginia College of agriculture. He became chief economist of the Tariff Commission in 1929.

International

B. H. Heide, secretary and manager of International Livestock Exposition, announces various changes in rules pertaining to feeder cattle to be exhibited at the 37th exposition which will be held in Chicago, Nov. 28 to Dec. 5 of this year.

The exposition will have a sifting committee to inspect single steer entries. The least worthy entries will be eliminated and sold on the open market. According to Mr. Heide, this procedure will work to the benefit of exhibitors whose animals have no chance of recognition.

Modernizing

During the past 12 months, the Department of Agriculture has had calls for 250,100 copies of Farmers Bulletin 1738, which contains sketches and floor plans of 40 houses, and there have been innumerable requests for other government bulletins providing information in building and modernizing.

The Department has two new bulletins issued this year: Farmers Bulletin 1749, "Modernizing Farm Houses," containing plans, photos and sketches of 13 typical farm houses remodeled by their owners, and Farmers Bulletin 1751, "Roof Coverings For Farm Buildings and Their Repair," which discusses shingles, bituminous coverings and canvas for roofs.

In the farmhouse plan bulletin are plans for one story "growing houses" of two or three rooms to which additions can be made readily. There are houses for every section of the country. Working drawings with all necessary dimensions and details for building are available from extension services of state agricultural colleges at a small charge to cover printing and mailing.

The modernizing bulletin, in addition to floor plans, photographs and sketches of typical farmhouses, contains descriptions and costs of the work. Discussions cover electric power, heat and installation, water supply and plumbing, etc.

Ticks

Recent cases of Rocky Mountain spotted fever near Washington, D. C., emphasize the need for vigilance against wood ticks that spread this disease, warns Dr. F. C. Bishopp of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Fortunately, Dr. Bishopp says, only a small proportion of these common ticks are infected. The disease, however, is widespread and has a high mortality. In the East, infested ticks are known to occur in Maryland, Virginia and North Carolina. A large percentage of the cases of spotted fever have been in Maryland and Virginia in the vicinity of Washington, D. C., and in North Carolina.

Ticks are unusually abundant in the East this year. As many as 100 have been picked off a dog at the end of a day in the woods. Ticks are most numerous in the early Summer. Usually they practically disappear by Aug. 1, making the late Summer safer for camping trips and hikes.

Dr. Bishopp points out that ticks are not likely to transmit the disease unless they remain attached to a body for at least six hours.

Minerals

Isaac Van Horn, Editor of The Southeast Miner, calls attention to the opportunities open to many farmers to increase their cash income by the exploitation of various mineral deposits on their farms. In this respect Mr. Van Horn says:

"In almost every section of the farming districts of the Southeast, are located minerals of commercial value if they were developed—these deposits are receiving practically no attention whatever.

"We wish to give an illustration—A farmer in Buncombe County, North Carolina, who for 25 years had plowed around a stony section on his farm; he visited us and upon our advice at spare times, did enough work and secured samples, which he had assayed and the result is, the value of his farm today in mineral being produced is far more than he ever dreamed his entire farm was worth; yet, it is an extra crop because his agricultural lands are undisturbed.

"Such work will in this area in many cases develop great values in the metallic minerals, such as Gold, Silver, Copper, Lead, and many others.

"It may result in finding Brick Clay, Pottery Clay, Mica, Feldspar, Sandstone, Building Stone, Gravel, or a hundred other non-metallic minerals."

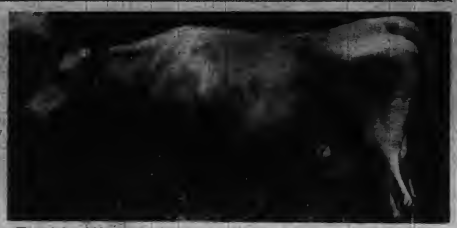
Dairy Industry Grows In Tennessee



By A. S. EDWARDS
Dairy Mfg. Specialist, University of Tennessee

DEVELOPMENT of the dairy industry in Tennessee cannot be better emphasized than by calling attention to the achievements of butterfat producers in recent national competitions.

During 1935 there were 58 entries from 15 Tennessee creameries entered in various contests. The average score was 92.82. The national average score for Tennessee entries was 93.04, placing second in the competition rating.

Larson 1935 Champion

Only a few years ago, Tennessee buttermakers labored under various handicaps. Not the least was the standard of dairy cows. Another problem, was uniform grading. Since 1927, creamery operators have employed a four day cream grading method. With the cooperation of state agricultural authorities and the University of Tennessee Extension Service, this grading system is being maintained with fair success.

Tauvic's Gift, owned by the Middle Tennessee Experiment Farm, Columbia, yielded better than three pounds of butterfat a day.

To Herman Larson, of the Bradley County Co-Operative Creamery, Cleveland, goes 1935 honors as Tennessee's master buttermaker. Mr. Larson made an average score of 98.48. This score was the highest in the five years the competitions have been sponsored.

Started in 1931

Close behind Mr. Larson was Thomas Hardison, Marshall County Creamery, Lewisburg, with an average of 93.45. In three national contests, Mr. Hardison averaged 94.25.

H. Coleman, Rutherford County Creamery, Murfreesboro, was third with 93.25.

The butter making contests started in 1931. Sponsored by the University of Tennessee, we prevailed upon leading creamery men to compete with states better known for dairy production. The butter maker must enter his product in at least three national, and two regional contests. In 1931, the state's average score was 91.78.

Stars Fell on North Middletown

BY C. A. LEWIS

TWO momentous events occurred in North Middletown community, Bourbon county, Kentucky, in 1833. In October, the people of the community compromised their differences and organized a union church that continues to this day to serve every spiritual need. In November, occurred a meteoric storm of falling stars known in astronomic history as "the falling stars of 1833."

Rev. F.M. Tindler

The year of 1833 marked an epoch in the history of the region. Covering the countryside were numerous revivals and protracted meetings. At the Cane Ridge church in Bourbon county a great revival continued, some histories say, all Summer, attracting 20,000 persons. Alexander Campbell, founder of the Church of the Disciples, toured the region. Then came Asiatic cholera, killing hundreds.

Started in 1833

The North Middleton community is served by one strong, vigorous, active church which does its work efficiently, effectively and satisfactorily at a minimum cost per individual. The community is approximately 10 miles across, extending in a five-mile radius from the village of North Middletown.

Free From Debt

The North Middletown church came into being in 1833 a union of factions who had been meeting in Bethel church a few miles east of the village on the Prescott Turnpike. Until about 30 year ago a sprinkling of denominations remained in the community. The Methodist church burned in 1903 and was not rebuilt.

In 1913, the present modern plant was dedicated. In 1917, the Rev. F. M. Tinder, one of Kentucky's famous country pastors, became the minister. There are 700 names on the church rolls. Four hundred men, women and children attend Sunday school.

The church always has kept free from debt. A committee handles the finances. The annual budget of $5,000 to $6,000 is raised without difficulty.

The modern North Middletown church traces back to 1789, when the Bethel church was built of logs.

Youngest State Champion

John E. Kalmey

The Holstein-Friesian Association of America recently accorded to John Elmer Kalmey, Jefferson County, Ky., the honor of being the youngest 4-H state champion Holstein raiser. He is 12 years old July 5. In the following article, John tells how he became interested in the big black and white dairy animal.

BY JOHN ELMER KALMEY

Exactly when my interest in livestock and 4-H club work began is hard to say. When I was four years old my father bought a purebred Holstein bull. The owner reserved the right to exhibit him that year. I was present when he won a blue ribbon at the Kentucky State Fair. Noticing my interest, the owner gave me the ribbon.

The same year, my father bought some purebred heifers, and told me I could have one. The one I picked was my champion cow last year.

My first 4-H club work was in 1934. With two heifers, I won two blue ribbonds at the Jefferson County fair and second and third at the Kentucky State Fair.

In the county show, a cow and two heifers won a championship, two blue ribbons and one red ribbon. I showed three heifers and a bull calf at the State Fair last year, winning a championship, a blue ribbon and a red ribbon in the 4-H club classes and placing third in the county group class. In the Kentucky class, I took a blue ribbon, two red ribbons and one white ribbon.

In the last two years, my Holsteins won $114 in premiums. I plan to show five females and a male this year. My champion cow, tested in a dairy herd improvement association, has averaged 426 pounds of butterfat and made a profit of $136 a year. I am saving money to buy a calf from even higher producing stock.

I want to study agriculture in college. I give to 4-H club work and county agents credit for much of my success. To all boys and girls, I say that 4-H club work has been most interesting and profitable.

Begin Culling This Month

July is the month to begin culling the poultry flock. Most hens lay well in the Spring and early Summer, and for that reason, suggest poultry experts at the Kentucky College of Agriculture, it is not advisable to try to cull during that time. In July and August, however, there are certain characteristics which indicate the poor producers.

(1) A hen that molts early, does so because she has stopped laying. These hens take a longer time to grow their new feathers.

(2) The yellow color in the beak and shanks fades as the hen lays. Hence, yellow color at this time of year is an indication that the hen has not laid eggs recently. If the color has faded out, the hen has been laying heavily. Allowance should be made for the return of color in hens that have hatched and brooded chicks.

Record Cited

(3) A laying hen has a large, moist vent and width (two fingers) between the pelvic bones. The abdomen and pelvic bones are soft and pliable.

(4) A high producer has a wide back, carrying this width beyond the hips to the tail head, three to five fingers width between pelvic bones and end of breast bone, and a bright, clear, prominent eye with eyelid free from fat.

The Kentucky poultrymen cite the record of a 200-hen flock in Missouri as showing the value of culling. Hens in this flock that quit laying and started molting in July averaged 109 eggs in the year, and took 182 days off; that is, it was 182 days from the time of laying the last egg before molting to the first egg that Fall or Winter.

Wisdom Shown

Hens that quit laying and started molting in August averaged 134 eggs and took 151 days off.

Hens that quit laying and started molting in September averaged 137 eggs and took 143 days off.

Hens that quit laying in October averaged 153 eggs and took 94 days off.

Hens that quit laying in November averaged 171 eggs and took 69 days off.

Hens that quit laying in December averaged 174 eggs and took only 45 days off for the molting period.

The record of this Missouri flock points clearly to the wisdom of getting rid of early molters.

KEEP YOUNG TURKEYS AWAY FROM CHICKENS

Keeping turkeys away from chickens is the most important precaution to take in preventing blackhead, advises A. J. Caldwell, University of Tennessee Extension specialist.

Chickens are known to be carriers of blackhead. Artificial incubation and brooding offers one of the best means of preventing blackhead. By this method, turkeys can be grown on ground known to be free of infection and can be kept away from chickens and old turkeys.

A good layer. Note the strong, deep body, broad back, prominent eye, and general up-standing characteristic of this bird.

Home on the Range! Daddy Gander's in full charge of this family of chicks at the home of Mrs. Bedford Chaffin, near Baxter, Tenn. What's more, according to Mrs. Chaffin, this fatherly gander fights inquisitive visitors who come too near to the 20 incubator hatched chicks, who've taken a real liking to him as their custodian.

JOHN Y. BROWN IN BURLINGTON

ADDRESSES LARGE AUDIENCE MONDAY NIGHT—"CAN'T EXPLAIN "HAPPY'S" ATTITUDE IN LETTING HIM DOWN."

Former Congressman, John Y. Brown, Democratic candidate for U. S. Senator, addressed one of the largest audiences Monday night that has ever gathered here for a political speech.

In speaking of the state administration's recent indorsement of former Governor J. C. W. Beckham, another of the three candidates for the Senate, Brown said, "Last year Happy Chandler and I made a pledge to support one another in the race for Governor and Senator. I kept my pledge, spent my money and the money I could borrow, to elevate him to office. Last week my friend cut me to the quick. I can't explain his actions. Happy Chandler has deeply hurt me."

His address at Burlington was the third of the day, the other two being at Falmouth and Williamstown.

While former Congressman Brown softened his blows at the chief executive, he struck hard at Dan Talbott, the administration's "ax man" and his two senatorial opponents, M. M. Logan. incumbent, and Governor Beckham.

He told his audience that Governor Beckham was in the race at the request of others and that the former head of the state government did not want the job.

"Beckham," he declared, "is responsible for the ice cream tax, the tax on cosmetics, the entire nuisance tax. He could have replaced the 30-cent tax on real estate but he was afraid to offend his friends who are holders of valuable Kentucky land."

He closed his attack on the Louisville candidate with a plea for the audience to give a young man a chance.

"I have been poor all my life," he said. "I understand your problems. Let me have a chance to serve my people and my state."

He leveled much criticism at Senator Logan's record.

"A colleague of Senator Logan's told me in Washington,' Mr. Brown said, "that it would be hard to campaign against Senator Logan. The junior senator from Kentucky has done nothing to warrant his being in the senate and you can't attack a man who has done nothing."

He quoted a newspaper story of four years ago in which Senator Logan was said to have tired of his job and in which he sought to return to Kentucky. He told his listeners that for four years Mr. Logan had failed to vote on any senatorial measure.

Mr. Brown was introduced to the audience by Robert Hensley, Burlington, manager of the Brown campaign in Boone County.

FLORENCE MAN LEFT BY HIT-SKIP DRIVER

Charles Hodges, 50 years old, of Florence, was in serious condition Friday night at St. Elizabeth Hospital, Covington, where he was taken after he was struck by a hit skip driver on the Dixie Highway two miles south of Florence. His skull was fractured.

BEN JOHNSON REFUSES OFFER

OF HIGHWAY JOB GOV. CHANDLER MADE THROUGH MESSENGER—WAS CHAIRMAN OF OLD DEPARTMENT.

Frankfort, Ky., July 7—Ben Johnson, of Bardstown divorced himself yesterday from all connection with the Kentucky State Highway Department by rejecting an offer of Governor Chandler to become an Advisory Commissioner, representing the Fourth Road District. Half an hour later Governor Chandler sent to Johnson's hotel room the official commission with a brief note expressing a wish that Johnson would accept. The commission was sent by messenger from the Governor's office.

"I read the note and gave the commission back to the messenger," Johnson said. "I told the messenger to tell the Governor I did not care to accept the position."

CAR STOLEN

Jacob Van Velzel, Burlington, was the victim of another automobile theft in Covington last week. His car, a 1928 Chevrolet was stolen, stripped of all parts, then shoved over a 40-foot embankment.

The car was left parked at 6th and Bakewell Streets, Covington, while the owner was eating lunch. Upon his return a few minutes later, he could find no trace of the car. He immediately notified police of the theft and the car was found several hours later in Devou Park. It had been stripped of all parts and accessories and then shoved over an embankment, being wrecked to such an extent that it could not be repaired.

So far, police have been unable to find any trace of the robbers.

Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Cotton were: Mr. and Mrs. Menter Martin, of Florence, Mr. and Mrs. B. W. Franks, of Walton. Miss Helen Roberts, of Cincinnati, Jake Holmes and daughter Mary Lee and Clifto n Roberts, of Covington, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Roberts, Mr. and Mrs. A. K. Powers and son George Robert, Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Wilson, of Verona, Mrs. W. L. McBee and son Billy and Mr. and Mrs. John Conner, of Burlington.

W. B. Arnold entered Good Samaritan Hospital Monday for observation. His many friends wish for him a speedy recovery.

LIGHTNING STRIKES BARN

NEAR HEBRON SATURDAY AFTERNOON—HAY AND SMALL FARMING EQUIPMENT ALSO DESTROYED BY BLAZE.

The much needed rain Saturday afternoon was welcomed to the North Bend neighborhood, although the electrical storm which followed caused much damage.

A barn belonging to Leroy McGlasson was struck by lightning and burned to the ground. It contained quite an amount of hay and some small farming equipment. The loss was estimated at approximately .....

Lightning also struck a pole at Paul Hafer's Friday night and followed the pole to the house, setting fire to it. The fire was discovered in time to be extinguished.

Geo. Parson, living on the Reinhardt farm was also a victim of the storm Friday night as his barn was blown down by the severe wind that accompanied the light rain.

The precipitation in this community was very light but it offered temporary relief and was welcomed by everyone.

RANKIN RANDOLPH REVILL

Rankin Randolph Revill, aged 64 years, passed away at his home in Ashland, Ky., after several weeks illness of heart trouble. He had been in the banking business most of his life and was at one time Chief Deputy Banking Examiner of the State of Kentucky.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Bessie Kirtley Revill, one son, Milton Revill, of Memphis, Tenn., three sisters, Mrs. Maud Furnish, of Erlanger, Ky., Miss Jonet Revill, of Washington, D. C., and Mrs. J. T. Deal, of Conway, Ark.

His remains arrived in Covington Monday afternoon and were taken to Bullittsburg cemetery. The Rev. R. D. Martin, pastor of the Erlanger Baptist Church held a short service at the grave.

Funeral director Philip Taliaferro had charge of the funeral arrangements.

WILLIAM KEATON

Wm. Keaton, 76, formerly known as "Buddie" son of the late Geo. Keaton passed away Sunday morning at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Albert Fritz, of Fort. Thomas.

He left here about 24 years ago and made his home in Florida. About four weeks ago he returned to visit his relatives and took seriously ill.

At an early age he was united in marriage to Laura Williams. He was a member of the Bullittsburg Baptist Church.

He leaves his wife, six children, two brothers and a host of relatives and friends to mourn his going.

Funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon at Bullittsburg Baptist Church by Rev. J. W. Campbell, after which the remains were laid to rest in Bullittsburg cemetery. J. J. Radell Co., had charge of the funeral arrangements.

SPENCE SEEKS RE-ELECTION

MAKES FORMAL ANNOUNCEMENT TO BOONE COUNTY VOTERS IN THIS WEEK'S ISSUE OF RECORDER.

In this issue will be found the announcement of Hon. Brent Spence of Campbell County as a candidate for re-election to Congress from the Fifth Congressional District of Kentucky.

Mr. Spence needs no introduction to the voters of this district, having just completed his third term as their representative in the National Congress.

During these six years of service, times of national stress and strain under both Republican and Democratic administrations, he has permitted no other consideration than that which he conceived to be for the common good for all the people to dictate his actions and votes upon important matters of Legislation.

He, at all times with his voice and votes, upheld the policies of President Roosevelt and the administration. He has served with distinction on the Banking and Currency Committee which is one of the truly important committees of the House and his knowledge of this subject has been of tremendous service to this committee.

Loyalty to friends and political associates, is also another attribute of this leader. He has stood for principles through his long career, and there is no sacrifice which he is unwilling to make to mantain those principles.

Well schooled in the philosophy of Thomas Jefferson, the founder of the Democratic party; Brent Spence, upon every occasion whether in a convention or caucus, has fought to keep the Democratic party faithful to the teachings of its illustrious leader.

He, in his official life, has been true to that principle enunciated by Cleveland: "A public office is a public trust."

DANCE TO CONTINUE

The dance at the Harvest Home Grounds was well attended last Saturday night, thus causing the management to announce that there would be a dance at this place each Saturday night thruout the summer months.

There will be special music and entertainment each week, giving the patrons something new in the way of entertainment.

There is also to be two more outstanding events at these grounds in the near future. The Harvest Home and the Free Fair. The Harvest Home will be the same as several years ago, and the Free Fair to be sponsored by the 4-H and Utopia Clubs of Boone County. Although both of these affairs are well under way, no definite dates have been announced, but will appear in the near future.

ALLPHIN IS CONFIDENT

OF VICTORY—SAYS HIS ONLY WORRY IS MONEY TO FINANCE HIS TRIP TO WASHINGTON.

In an interview with Jack Allphin democratic candidate for Congress from the Fifth Congressional District, he stated that he was sure of victory. We quote Mr. Allphin:

"I am going to win this race. The only thing that worries me is how I will raise money to finance my first trip to Washington. I am not financed by the utilities, I have no money.

"Mr. Leary says there are only two candidates in the race. I say, he and Mr. Spence are the only two utility candidates—I am on the other side.

"I have been fighting for principle and the people's rights for six years and have never held a political job or received one cent. I am now seeking my reward."

Mr. Allphin will address the voters at the Burlington court house Saturday, July 18 at 1:30 p. m.

FRANK A. OLDING

Frank A. Olding. aged 48 years, traveling salesman for the Chas. Meis Shoe Co., Cincinnati, O., was instantly killed last Tuesday near Iona, Mich., when his auto left the road.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Gertrude Olding, six daughters and one son, his father, Henry Olding, two sisters, Miss Henrietta Olding, New York City and Miss Frances Olding, of Erlanger.

Funeral was from the late residence 617 Garvey Ave., Elsmere, Ky., Friday at 9:00 a. m., with solemn Requiem High Mass at St. Mary's cemetery.

The pall bearers were Ben and Gus Olding, Julius Machinski, Alex and Eddie Daron and Larry Rauen.

Funeral Director Philip Taliaferro had charge of the funeral arrangements.

J. J. LEARY VISITS COUNTY

BUT WEATHER IS TOO HOT FOR SPEECHES SCEDULED AT PETERSBURG AND BELLEVIEW—MINGLES WITH CROWDS.

Mingling with voters was substituted Saturday for speaking engagements when Joseph P. Leary, Covington attorney, opened his congressional campaign in Boone County.

When Leary appeared at Belleview and Petersburg he found the halls too warm for an audience. After requesting them to go to the stores, Leary and his party mingled with the crowds and discussed the political situation in the Congressional race.

The invasion of Boone County ended in the evening with an address at Burlington by O. M. Rogers of Erlanger. Leary was introduced to 300 voters by Walter Ferguson, chairman of the Congressional campaign in Boone County.

After receiving pledges of support from Boone County officials, Leary took Congressman Brent Spence to task for his "lazy" administration.

"Brent Spence," he said. "has wasted years of his life enjoying the comforts of the nation"s Capitol at the expense of the taxpayers of the Fifth Congressional District. When hard times hit his home section, Spence did nothing to help his fellow citizens.

"Other Kentucky congressmen worked tooth and nail to provide governmental projects for their districts. What did Brent Spence do? not one single, solitary thing. He toasted his feet by the fire while courts, relief headquarters, and other governmental agencies left the Fifth District for regions represented by wide awake, two-fisted fighting congressmen."

MRS. IDA MAE RICE

Mrs Ida Mae Rice, 71 years. 5 months and 9 days of age, passed away at her home in Burlington Tuesday night at 8:00, after a short illness.

Mrs. Rice was the wife of the late Edward Rice, who preceded her to the grave several years ago. She is survived by three sisters, Lucy Aylor, Cora Kelly and Bessie Clore; six brothers, James, Ira, Lawrence, Sam, Dode and Mosby Pope. She also leaves two children, Mrs. Lallie Eddins, Burlington and Wallace Rice, two grandchildren, Betsy and Jeff Edw. Eddins.

Mrs. Rice became ill Sunday afternoon and was not confined to bed until late Monday evening. Her death comes as quite a shock to her many friends and relatives in Boone County, as she has spent her entire life here.

As we go to press. funeral arrangements have not been announced. Chambers and Grubbs will be in charge of arrangements.

NOTICE

Dr. E. J. Love will re-open his office in Burlington, Ky. Office hours from 12:00 to 2:00 p. m. Location to be same as before.

COURT RULES AGAINST TAX

ON ICE CREAM—JURIST RULES ACT IS HURTING BUSINESS—STATE TO APPEAL DECISION AT ONCE.

Paris, Ky., July 13—The new state tax of 28 cents a gallon on ice cream, Circuit Judge William B. Ardery held today, is discriminatory and confiscatory, and, therefore, unconstitutional.

Ruling on two cases involving what is believed to be the first excise tax on ice cream in the United States except for general sales taxes, Judge Ardery granted a temporary injunction to restrain Hughes and Company, Lexington ice cream manufacturers from paying the tax, and another temporary injunction to restrain collection of the tax by the State Tax Commission.

An appeal from Judge Ardery's decision will be taken at once to the Court of Appeals, J. W. Jones, Assistant Attorney-General announced. Revenue estimated at $500,000 a year is at stake.

In the case of Aniello Nocero, Covington ice cream manufacturer retailer, against the State Tax Commission, Judge Ardery entered an order premitting Kentucky dealers to execute bond in amount of 10 days' tax, on which the revenue department could levy if the Court of Appeals dissolves the Circuit Court injunction.

Ice cream men present at the hearing in Bourbon Circuit Court said they felt they could not afford to "gamble" on the Court of Appeals decision, and probably would continue to collect the tax until the higher court handed down its opinion unless they were advised otherwise by state revenue authorities. The Court of Appeals is expected to rule on the injunction in the next ten days.

APPLICATIONS FOR OLD AGE PENSIONS NOW IN HANDS OF COUNTY CLERK

County Clerk, C. D. Benson announced Monday that Old Age Pension applications were obtainable at his office.

Applicants are required to state whether they are married, and if married, how many children they have; give a record of their residence for the last nine years; give a report of their income from all sources. state whether they own property, whether they are inmates of an institution, and whether they carry insurance; agree that any assistance given to them by the state becomes a lien on any real property they may have; agree to reimburse the state for any assistance given, and to submit properly acknowledged instruments to carry out this agreement.

PROGRESS OF THE A. C. P.

The Boone County Agriculture Conservation is progressing rapidly in Boone County, according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent. The listing sheets for approval by the State office have practically all been completed and the checking of compliance is expected to begin in about two weeks.

The total benefits under the new farm program are expected to about equal those of the AAA program in 1934 and 1935. Special concessions are being made to the farmers due to the drouth conditions.

POULTRY TOUR TO BE HELD

WEDNESDAY, JULY 29TH—J. E. HUMPHREY FIELD AGENT OF COLLEGE OF AGRICULTURE WILL ATTEND TOUR.

Boone County poultrymen will hold their annual demonstration flock tour on Wednesday, July 29th according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent. Poultrymen, who the past few years have followed the approved brooding practices that gave good results, will be visited and this poultry plan studied.

Mr. J. E. Humphrey, poultry field agent from the College of Agriculture will attend the tour. He will take part in the discussion on the various poultry problems that are being encountered in Boone county. Everyone interested in poultry raising is invited to attend.

Editorial of the Week

EVERYONE DO HIS PART

The old proverb says that if everyone would sweep before his own door, the whole world would be clean. You can apply that to the development of a good many places in Boone County.

Sometimes we find fault and complain about this or that thing in our home town that we feel is wrong, when we ourselves are leaving something undone.

If every business man would run his business in an enterprising way, if every worker would do a full day's work, if every householder would clean up his place and improve it and keep it nice, then we would have a strictly model town, and visitors would come a long distance to ask how we did it.

—o—

THE COUNTRY VOTE

The politicians are paying more and more regard to the small town and farmer vote in past years than has ever been experienced before. They come out to agricultural fairs and shake hands with everyone, making excellent speeches, telling of the importance of the farmers and all that. The country people are glad to see that their interests are appreciated.

But it is up to the politicians to do something more than make speeches. The essential reason why there is so much dissatisfaction among the farmers nowadays, is that they have the feeling that legislation for many years has been largely shaped according to the demands of the city population, while the needs of the country regions have been largely ignored.

Arguments are unending; they rarely settle the issues, although they unsettle the disputants.

One thing for the census, it permits commercial associations to lie nine years without apprehension.

JEST A-WHITTLIN' AN' A-THINKIN'

By Pete Gettys

Away back younger when they had to set your leg or cut your tonsils out, or anything the doctors had to do for you—they'd take a modden mallet an' bust you on the head with it so you'd be unconscious and wouldn't know if it was hurtin' while they was doin' the cutting—but they've got all kinds of anaesthetics now—gas when they pull your teeth—ether—chloroform—everything, even brands of corn licker that makes it easy for thugs to lift your pocketbook

But here's what started all this talk: They've gone to puttin' fruits and vegetables under the influence of a anaesthetic. That ought be news. Carbon dioxide, so they say, "anesthetizes" fruits an' vegetables in storage, and keeps em fresh by retarding their breathin' an' other things about livin.'

U. S. D. A. specialists found this out in studyin' the possible uses of solid carbon dioxide in shipping fruits and vegetables. Their tests shows this treatment may be right well used in preservin' the quality of newly harvested stuff durin' the day or two required to cool 'em in refrigerator cars by ordinary refrigeration, an' at cannin' factories that ain't got ice boxes.

Strange how you see mules an' horses aridin' along in a truck, seems like they're realyl enjoyin' it too—and here's somethin' about loadin' 'em for the ride that maybe you never though of, and the Dept. of Agriculture gives the advice.

When horses are loaded crosswise into an open truck ther're safer if their heads are toward the outside of the road. You read in the papers of horses seriously hurt by passin' traffic—often another truck—when they're loaded with heads toward the center of the road. It's more dangerous at night.

Generally when haulin' horses in open trucks you load 'em half an' half; that is, crosswise with every other head toward the center of the road. The length of the average horse from tail to breast is about the same as the width of the average livestock truck. Although horses load conveniently an' compactly in this fashion, with the head and neck extended over the side of the truck, it's safer to load 'em so all face the outside of the road.

Seems funny seein' mules an' horses speedin' down the road in a truck—used to herd 'em and drive the cattle to town too—an' about the queerest ridin' thing you see is taking a whole train across a river on a ferry.

RABBIT HASH

E. S. Ryle of Willards, Md., accompanied by his sister-in-law, Mrs. Jas. Webster and her mother, Mrs. Harper, of Southgate, Ky., spent the Fourth at J. H. Walton's. Mr. Ryle remained until Monday, when he received the sad message of the drowning of his sister's son, Buster Hensley of Petrsburg. Angero Walton took him to the scene of the tragedy. Mr. Ryle's mother, Mrs. Anna Bell Sullivan, who has been in Maryland for over a year, accompanied him here for an extended visit with her daughter, Mrs. Hensley. We extend our sympathy to all the grief stricken rlatives of little Buster Hensley.

Bruce Ryle and S. B. Ryle and their families spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Percy Ryle, of Lawrenceburg, Ind.

Mrs. Ada Wilson was given a surprise birthday party Friday night by her neighbors and relatives. Ice cream and cake were served during the evening.

The ice cream social given by the W. M. S. and Y. W. A. at Christine Kirtley's Friday night was well attended and enjoyed by all.

FIRST LINE QUALITY—The new Firestone Standard Tire has been designed and constructed by Firestone skilled tire engineers—it is a first quality tire, built of high grade materials, embodying exclusive Firestone patented construction features.

FIRESTONE NAME AND GUARANTEE—Every Standard Tire is backed by the Firestone name and guarantee—your assurance of safety, dependability and economy.

LONGER NON-SKID MILEAGE—The wider, flatter tread is scientifically designed with more and tougher rubber on the road for long, even wear, and thousands of extra miles.

GUM-DIPPED CORD BODY—Eight extra pounds of rubber are added to every one hundred pounds of cotton cords by the Firestone patented process of Gum-Dipping. This not only provides greater strength, but gives greatest blowout protection.

TWO EXTRA LAYERS OF GUM-DIPPED CORDS UNDER THE TREAD—Cushion road shocks. Afford extra protection against punctures and bind the whole tire into one unit of great strength.

IT COSTS LESS TO BUY—VOLUME PRODUCTION SAVES YOU MONEY—The new Firestone Standard Tire is the greatest tire value ever offered car owners—volume production, efficient factories and the most economical distribution system make it possible to sell this new tire at these low prices.

FOR TRUCK AND BUS OWNERS

GIVES LONGER MILEAGE AND MORE ECONOMICAL SERVICE AT VOLUME PRODUCTION PRICES!

WHETHER you operate one truck or several, dependable service is your greatest asset. In hauling produce to market, operating fast local deliveries, in heavy cross-country hauling, operating school buses, or in any type of trucking service, you need a first-quality tire, built of first grade materials to give you long, trouble-free mileage. Now, for the first time, you can get such a tire at prices you can afford to pay. Come in today and let us show you how the new Firestone Standard Truck and Bus Tire will give you better service and save you money.

NEW TAXES EXPLAINED

Effective July 1 a State tax of 1c in each 5c, or fractional part thereof, of the retail selling price is imposed on bottled drinks, unbottled drinks not made with tax paid syrup, candy, chewing gum and nuts, of 76c a gallon on fountain syrup, 7c quart on ice cream, and 20 per cent of the invoice price plus 20 per cent of the transportation costs on the receipt of cosmetics in the State by a Kentucky retailer.

The Department of Revnue has required that all Kentucky wholesalers and manufacturers of bottled drinks, ice cream and fountain syrup, post bond to assume the tax imposed thereon.

Bonded wholesalers and manufacturers hold certificates, commonly designated as Revnue Form 604, which will be evidence to retailers that they are bonded to pay the tax on these commodities, and that they are authorized to write on the invoices the amount of the tax due, and to charge the tax to the retailer. Retailers purchasing these commodities are required to keep the invoices rendered them for a period of 90 days.

If retailers make or purchase bottled drinks, unbottled drinks, fountain syrup, or ice cream, from other than a bonded dealer, they are required to affix an adhesive stamp to the bottled drinks, and to make a monthly report on the unbottled drinks, ice cream and fountain syrup. The adhesive stamps may be secured from the Department of Revenue in 1c, 2c, 3c, 4c, and 5c denominations. The first report, which will be for the month of July, is due by August 10. Retailers purchasing from bonded wholesalers and manufacturers must make a sworn inventory of their stock on hand July 1 and submit the inventory and payment of the tax due on the inventory to the Department of Revenue.

One and two cent sales of candy, chewing gum, and nuts are exempt from the tax. The payment of the tax on candy, chewing gum and nuts is evidenced by destroying in the presence of the customer tax stamps equal to the amount of the tax due on each sale. The Department of Revenue is busily engaged in supplying retailers throughout the State with these stamps in 1c, 2c, 3c, 4c, 5c, and 20c denominations.

It is believed that many retailers in the State have not yet placed their order for these stamps. The Department advises that retailers selling candy, chewing gum and nuts without destroying the stamps must keep a record of all such sales made on and after July 1, and upon receipt of stamps must cancel stamps equal in value to the tax due on the sale of these commodities, and return the cancelled stamps to the Department of Revenue, transmitting therewith an affidavit that the cancelled stamps cover all taxable sales of these commodities.

There seems to be considerable misunderstanding relative to the tax on cosmetics. This tax is imposed on the receipt of cosmetics on and after July 1st. Stock on hand before July 1 is not taxable. Retailers are required to keep all invoices of cosmetics for a period of 6 months, and to report on or before the 10th day of each month the total amount of cosmetics purchased during the previous month, together with transportation costs. The first report is due by August 10. Forms for making this report will be furnished.

For purposes of imposing the tax, cosmetics includes all preparations which are advertised, sold or used for the purpose of softening, cleansing, or beautifying the skin, hair, teeth or nails. Provided, however, that neither prescriptions prepared by physicians for a special individual and filled by licensed pharmacists nor soaps retailing for thirty cents (30c) a pound or less shall be taxed. Soaps such as Ivory, Lux, Lifebuoy, Woodbury's facial, and other popular brands usually retailing at less than 30c a pound are not construed to be taxable, even though in certain localities they may be sold for more than 30c a pound. Sales of bottled and unbottled drinks, ice cream, fountain syrup, candy and nuts necessary in the operation of an educational or public charitable institution are exempt from the tax. All receipts of cosmetics and sales of chewing gum are taxable.

VEGETABLE CANNING

Vegetables must be canned when they are young and tender if flavor, vitamins, minerals and market value are saved, according to Mrs. Pearl Haak, Specialist in Foods, College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky. Forty-five members of the Homemakers Club of Boone county attended a canning demonstration given by Mrs. Haak at the New Haven Schoolhouse last week.

Mrs. Haak state that there were three methods of canning, (1) Open kettle, (2) water bash and (3) pressure cooker. The latter two are practical and safe while the first is uncertain. Beans and beets were canned in a pressure cooker and the peaches and tomatoes were processed in a water bash because they do not require a long time to cook.

Homemakers will have to can vegetables frequently and in small quantities this year to save the products as they grow large enough for canning due to the drouth.

SOCIAL SERVICE IN THE EARLY CHURCH

LESSON TEXT — Acts 4:32-35; II Corinthians 8:1-9.

GOLDEN TEXT—He said: "It is more blessed to give than to receive."—Acts 20:35.

PRIMARY TOPIC—How Jesus' Friends Shared.

JUNIOR TOPIC—When Christians See Others in Need.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Christians Sharing With Others.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Christians and Social Service.

Social service in the early Church was a by-product of the gospel and not the gospel itself. Those who are saved by the gospel will show their concern for their fellows, especially those who are fellow members of the body of Christ.

I. Characteristics of the Primitive Church (Acts 4:31-35).

1. It was a praying church (v. 31). The early Christians for every want and need betook themselves to God in prayer. Their faith caused them to go to the living God, believing that their needs would be supplied.

2. The Spirit-filled church (v. 31). When they prayed, the place was shaken wherein they were gathered together and they were all filled with the Holy Spirit.

3. It was a church which had great boldness in preaching the Word of God (v. 31). The ministers of the Spirit-filled church will not offer any apology for the Bible, but will preach it.

4. It was a united church (v. 32). They were all of one heart and soul.

5. It was a generous church (v. 32). They held nothing back from those who had need. The needs were supplied from a common fund. This was not Communism any more than when the church today helps from a common fund those who have need.

6. The ministers had a powerful testimony (v. 33).

7. It was a church whose members possessed unblemished character (v. 33). Great grace was upon them all.

II. Generous Act of Barnabas (Acts 4:36, 37).

He sold a piece of land and turned over all the proceeds to be used for those in need. It is not said that Barnabas sold all the land he had. His act, therefore, cannot in any real sense be used as a precedent for a community of goods in the church.

III. Stephen the Deacon (Acts 6:1-8).

As soon as the church had relief from external troubles, difficulties arose within. Up to this time it would seem that the problems of the church were in the hands of the apostles. A congregational meeting was called, the case placed before the church, and the church instructed to select seven men of good reputation and Spirit-filled, to administer the temporalities, giving the apostles time for prayer and the ministry of God's Word. Among the seven deacons thus chosen, Stephen had first place. While engaged in his duties as a deacon, he sprang into the light as an eloquent and powerful preacher.

IV. The Good Deeds of Dorcas (Acts 9:36-43).

Dorcas was a practical Christian woman. She was full of good works and almsdeeds which she did, not what she talked of doing. Her death was a real loss. If all professing Christian women would use their needles as Dorcas did, there would be more real testimony for Christ.

V. Christian Stewardship (II Cor. 8:1-9).

1. Examples of true Christian benevolence (vv. 1-5). The liberality of these Macedonian churches exhibits practically every principle and motive entering into Christian giving.

a. The source of true giving (v. 1). is said to be the grace of God.

b. They gave from the depths of their poverty (v. 2).

c. Their willingness surpassed their ability (v. 3).

d. They were insistent on being allowed the privilege of giving (v. 4).

e. They first gave themselves to the Lord (v. 5).

2. Emulation of Macedonian benevolence urged (vv. 6-15).

a. Not as a command (v. 8). Acceptable giving must be spontaneous.

b. As proof of the sincerity of love (v. 8). Sincere love is benevolent action toward the object loved.

c. As the completion and harmony of Christian character (v. 7).

d. The self-sacrificing example of Christ (v. 9).

e. The true principle upon which gifts are acceptable to God (vv. 10-12). The motive of the giver determines the value of the gift.

f. Every Christian should give something (vv. 13-15).

Philosophy of Bacon

"While a little philosophy leads away from religion, much philosophy leads back to it." The man who said this was not an outsider, but a philosopher of the philosophers—Francis Bacon—the one, indeed, on whose inductive philosophy all the science of our modern world is built.

Waste of Life

The true waste of life consists in the love we have not given, the service we have not rendered, the sacrifice from which we have drawn back.

DARING STUNT FLYER KILLED

Word has been received by Leonard Haag, Secretary of the Dearborn County Fair that Chaming Seabury, daring stunt flyer, who was to perform at Dearbon County Fair on Thrill Day, July 29, was killed July 9 at Minneapolis, Minn. Seabury was flying a Gee-Bee Midget Speed Ship. He went into an uncontrollable spin high in the air. Seabury attempted to use his chute at two hundred feet, but it failed to open. D. A. Fowlie, alleged "King of Thrills' 'has been contracted to take his place flying the same type of ship. Other high lights of his program are Jeanette Rand, Hollywood Double who will turn over new stock car in front of Grandstand. Red McManus spectacular air pilot who will do smoke writing, combat flying, and other thrilling stunts, Lloyd Sheldon, Dublin, Ireland, Master of Dirt track, Wild Bill Beamiah Texas School Boy, Ace Johnson, Scandinavian speed king of Minneapolis, and greatest of all, the "Bird Man" who will do sensational manoeuvers at 10,000 feet in the air with the aid of specially constructed wings. Don't miss this "Thrill Day Program," Wednesday, July 29, at the Big Dearborn County Fair, Lawrenceburg, Ind.

HAMILTON 4-H CLUB PICNIC

Hamilton Silver Leaders 4-H Club held its fifth meeting with a tour and picnic the second day of July.

After a wonderful dinner at the home of our leader, Mrs. J. L. Jones, the meeting was called to order by President, Paul Robinson. The minutes of the last meeting were read and the roll was called by Hazel Hager in the absence of our Secretary, Aline Shields. The group captains gave reports on the different projects and most of them have a good start. Ella Ruth Black gave an interesting talk on what she saw at Lexington Junior Week.

The meeting was adjourned by repeating the club pledge and a yell for the leaders. After the meeting the tour continued the rest of the afternoon and some very good work was viewed.
